HOOVER URGES UNITY TO AVERT ECONOMIC WAR

Says Three Roads Lie Before Nation.

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—In his last public address before retiring to private life President Hoover tonight before the National Republican club pleaded for unity of action in this country which would permit international coöperation in stabilizing the currencies of the important commercial nations.

Only by such action, he said, and a return to the gold standard, could a world-wide economic war be avoided which would destroy the present systems of production and distribution and lead to lower standards of living for generations.

Three Roads Ahead.

Three roads lie before the United States now, he said. These are the road of coöperation, leading to stability; the road of national self-containment, leading to increased tariffs, and the road to inflated currency. Our problems are dark, but not insoluble, in the President's opinion. Bold action is necessary to restore confidence.

Mr. Hoover addressed the Lincoln day dinner of the club and took occasion to speak of the virility of the Republican party, which, he pointed out, commanded 15,000,000 votes in the face of the world's worst depression. He declared that the Republicans would abide by the will of the people and would support the new administration in every measure for the public welfare, opposing it when measures were deemed harmful. His topics were nonpartisan, consisting of party principles, tariff, gold, and the necessity of international coöperation.

Arrives by Special Train.

The President and his party arrived in town by special train from Washington only about an hour before the dinner. Mrs. Hoover as well as Postmaster General Brown and Chairman Sanders of the Republican national committee accompanied the party.

Automobiles were waiting for the party and with a motorcycle police escort to clear the way through traffic the party was taken direct to the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, in the grand ballroom of which the function was held. More than 800 policemen and detectives were on guard along the route traversed by the President and his party and at the hotel. A detail of plainclothes men was assigned to aid the secret service men who came with the President.

Arrangements were made to escort the party back to the train immediately upon the conclusion of the President's speech for the trip back to Washington. The President hoped to be back in the White House in time for breakfast.

Pleads for Confidence.

After paying tribute to Lincoln and the Republican party, President Hoover said:

"Further steps toward economic recovery is the urgent problem before the entire world. Ceaseless effort must be directed to restoration of confidence, the vanquishing of fear and apprehension, and thus the release of the recuperative spirit of the world.

"It is, therefore, my purpose to discuss some of the broad measures which confront us in reaching further to the roots of this tragic disturbance particularly in the field of foreign relations. While we have many concerns in the domestic field we must realize that so long as we engage in the export and import of goods and in financial activities abroad our price levels and credit system, our employment, and, above all, our fears will be greatly affected by foreign influences.

Back to International Field.

"During the last two years the crash of one foreign nation after another under direct and indirect war inheritances has dominated our whole economic life. The time has now come when nations must accept, in self-interest no less than in altruism, the obligations to coöperate in achieving world stability so mankind may again resume the march of progress. Daily it becomes more certain that the next great constructive step in remedy of the illimitable human suffering from this depression lies in the international field. It is in that field where the tide of prices can be most surely and quickly turned and the tragic despair of unemployment, agriculture and business transformed to hope and confidence."

Effect on U. S. Tariff.

President Hoover then traced the cycles of cause and effect in the economic degeneration besetting the world. He pointed to the effect of the economic war on the United States:

"Ever since the storm began in Europe the United States has held

MR. KUS SHOVELS HIS WAY RIGHT INTO THE JAIL

Henry Kus, 33 years old, 1460 West Erie street, was shoveling snow yesterday from the walk in front of his home into the street. Some of the snow fell on the street car tracks. Paying no attention to the remarks of the street car crew, Kus continued to shovel snow.

A short while later Policeman William Smith of the Racine avenue station appeared. He informed Kus that he had been sent on complaint of the street car company and ordered him to stop shoveling snow on the tracks. Kus replied that he would throw the snow wherever he pleased. Smith then arrested him and took him to the corner patrol box to call a patrol wagon.

As Smith was telephoning the station, Kus struck the policeman on the head with his shovel. Smith fell and Kus struck him several more heavy blows, breaking Smith's left arm and three ribs. Witnesses went to the policeman's aid and Kus returned home.

Later a police squad found him still throwing snow on the car tracks. They disarmed him and took him to the station. Policeman Smith was taken to the North Avenue hospital. Kus will be arraigned in the Racine avenue station today on a charge of assault.

VIRGINIA CRIES AND CRIES UNTIL ROBBERS GO AWAY

Virginia Schwild, 9 years old, and her baby brother, Ernest Jr., were aroused from sleep by two gunmen who invaded their home last night at 3008 Larrabee street. The robbers pointed guns at their mother, Mrs. Julia Schwild. Virginia looked at the strangers and began crying. One of the gunmen patted Virginia gently on the head.

"Don't cry, girlie," he whispered. "We're just waiting for your papa to return home with some money. He makes lots of money in his meat market, you know. So please don't cry."

But Virginia cried all the louder. Finally, with exclamations of disgust because Virginia kept on crying, the bandits departed. As they closed the door behind them, Virginia stopped crying.

Gunmen Lure Physician from Home and Rob Him

Dr. Leon Gratowski, 1113 Chicago avenue, received a call to visit a sick person at 2022 Cortez street last night. As he reached the front of the residence, two gunmen held him up and robbed him of $10. Later the doctor learned that no one at that address had called him.

8 Days' Bank Holiday Called in Michigan

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 14 [Tuesday].—(AP)—Gov. William A. Comstock early today proclaimed an eight day banking holiday—from today to Feb. 21, inclusive—in the interest of the public welfare and the preservation of public peace. Under his proclamation, all banks, trust companies, and other financial institutions of similar nature will suspend business during the period specified.

An Acute Situation.

A statement issued by the governor said:

"At 3 p. m. Monday, Feb. 13, I was requested by telephone to reach Detroit from Lansing at the earliest possible moment to take part in an important conference relative to the general banking situation.

"This conference was precipitated by an unforeseen and acute situation which had suddenly arisen in the affairs of one of our leading financial institutions, the Union Guardian Trust company.

"It was the concensus of opinion after long conference by those present that the difficulties might be ironed out provided time could be had for negotiations. As matters stood it would have been necessary to close the doors of the institution involved on the morning of Feb. 14, which would likely bring in its train disaster to many others of our banking institutions in Michigan.

Protect Small Depositors.

"The crisis was caused by the inability to realize immediately upon the assets of the institution to meet threatened withdrawals. For the protection of smaller depositors in our institutions and to prevent the withdrawal of large sums from the state of Michigan it was deemed wise to declare a banking holiday for a period sufficiently long to allow the situation to be cleared up.

"The conference was participated in by representatives of all clearing house banks of Detroit, representatives of the Michigan Bankers' association, Secretary of Commerce of the United States Roy D. Chapin, Undersecretary of the United States Treasury Arthur A. Ballantine, the deputy governor of the Federal Reserve bank for the Seventh district, the chief national bank examiner for the Seventh district, representatives of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and the Michigan banking commission.

"I am convinced that the action taken is in the best interest of the people of this state and especially the smaller depositors in our banking institutions."

MAYORS TO MEET

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—A move to throw all the resources of the Reconstruction Finance corporation behind the cities of the country, many of which are facing financial collapse because taxpayers have been unable to pay their taxes, has been started by Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit.

Mayor Murphy, assisted by Paul V. Betters of Chicago, executive secretary of the American Municipal association, has called a national conference of mayors to convene at Washington Friday, formulate a program, and present it to congress. Already more than thirty mayors of leading cities have accepted.

The goal will be an amendment to the R. F. C. act which would authorize the corporation to extend credit to "save" municipal governments in the same way it has already aided banks, railroads, insurance companies, and other large corporations with loans.

STATIC ELECTRICITY PASSES THROUGH MAN, STARTS LAUNDRY FIRE

Wellesley, Mass., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Static electricity which jumped through a man's body ignited a bottle of naphtha he held in one hand. That set fire to the Lake Waban laundry on the Wellesley college grounds and resulted in damage of $500 to the plant.

Friction from a drying machine generated the static electricity, which started all the trouble, and Ralph Bond was the employé whose body took up most of the charge and passed it on through the naphtha.

Considerable gasoline and naphtha stored in the plant escaped the flames, as did the flimsy dainties of the college students. The girls were in classes during the fire.

BOY IS SHOT BY ACCIDENT; MAY DIE OF WOUND

Harold Le Boy Jr., 14 years old, 1956 East 73d street, was shot and probably fatally wounded in his home yesterday when a .22 caliber rifle held by a playmate, Melvin Spencer, 14 years old, 8040 Maryland avenue, was accidentally discharged. Both boys are Hyde Park High school students.

Young Le Boy was taken to the Michael Reese hospital, where Dr. W. J. Nixon performed an emergency operation in an effort to save his life. The bullet struck the boy in the abdomen.

Questioned at the Grand Crossing police station the Spencer boy said that Harold had struck the rifle, causing it to discharge.

Pennsylvania House Asks Congress to Submit Repeal

DENVER FAMILY HAS $60,000 RANSOM READY

Police Seek Alterie for Questioning.

BULLETIN.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Police Chief Albert T. Clark tonight declared he expected to have the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher II. solved within 48 hours and the wealthy broker returned to his home. Clark said he did not know who kidnaped Boettcher, but indicated he knew the "brains" behind the crime.

"The ransom has not been paid—yet," Clark said, indicating that Boettcher might be returned before payment of the $60,000 demanded by the kidnapers.

Claude K. Boettcher, father of the victim, said that as far as he knew the case was in exactly the same position that it was 24 hours ago.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Frantic relatives of Charles Boettcher II., kidnaped member of a wealthy pioneer Colorado family, tonight awaited word from his abductors after signifying willingness to comply with the $60,000 ransom demand. The first step toward negotiations was undertaken by Boettcher's father, Claude K. Boettcher, by inserting a personal advertisement in all Denver newspapers.

The advertisement stated, "Ready to come home, Mabel." It had been dictated by the kidnapers as a means of making overtures for Boettcher's release in a note thrust into the hand of his wife at the time of the abduction.

Posts $5,000 at Outset.

The elder Boettcher posted a $5,000 reward for the safe return of his son at the time he moved to open negotiations. Airplanes were made ready at Lowry field in the event contact should be made with the abductors in a remote section of the state. James Q. Newton, brokerage partner of young Boettcher, issued an appeal to the public for information which might aid in the search.

Doctors attended Mrs. Boettcher, who is said to be an expectant mother, in her home. They stood by her as she told how the kidnapers approached her and her 31 year old husband with "Come here, Charlie, and throw up your hands."

The wife expressed her intention of complying with the demand in a telephone call to Boettcher's mother, Mrs Millson McCormick, who was visiting her sister in Kansas City. Mrs. McCormick informed her daughter-in-law she would return to Denver immediately to aid in the negotiations.

Hunt Former Gangster.

A few hours later the senior Boettcher inserted the advertisement in Denver newspapers. Police guard was placed about the homes of the son and father as a reply from the kidnapers was awaited.

Meanwhile, police are seeking Louis [Diamond Jack] Alterie, former Chicago gangster, and two unidentified men who were seen with him less than two weeks ago. Chief of Police A. T. Clark refused to discuss the search.

Boettcher was kidnaped late last night by two men who confronted him and his wife as they drove into the driveway of the Boettcher mansion. Boettcher was forced to get into the kidnapers' car and driven away after one of the abductors thrust a note into the wife's hands.

Police guarded the contents of the note. It was reported to be written on plain, white paper and to read, "Don't notify the police. Tell Claude Boettcher he had better get $60,000 ransom. Follow instructions. Remember the Lindbergh baby would still be alive if ransom had been paid. Notify us through a personal ad stating, "Please write, I am ready to return. Mabel."

Boettcher is said to be a close friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Called "No Amateurs."

Chief Clark said the careful planning and cunning execution of the kidnaping leaves no doubt that it was performed by professional kidnapers. For this reason he said he wished to question Alterie.

Alterie, once a figure in Chicago gangland as a lieutenant of Dion O'Banion, slain gang leader, checked out of a Denver hotel Jan. 31. He had been ordered to leave Colorado

Hawaii Drops Massie Rape Case; 4 Freed

BY CLIFFORD GESSLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Feb. 13.—Charges against four Hawaiian youths of mixed blood, who were accused of raping Mrs. Thomas H. Massie, naval lieutenant's wife, were quashed in the Circuit court here today.

Thus was written the finale of a case which shook Hawaii to its social and governmental foundations and threatened to cause the United States to deprive this territory of its self-governing status. Circuit Judge Charles Davis required only three minutes to end the case which has been pending since September, 1931.

Dismissal of the case was recommended by Public Prosecutor John C. Kelley. He also made public a report by the Pinkerton detective agency on an investigation of the assault which was made at the instance of Gov. Lawrence M. Judd and Attorney General Harry Hewitt.

Identification Is Doubted.

The report said that the investigation had failed to substantiate Mrs. Massie's identification of the men as her attackers. It added that no substantiation had been found for her identification of Joseph Kahahawai, the fifth man accused of the crime and who was kidnaped, shot, and killed on Jan. 8, 1932.

The document goes so far as to say it is doubtful whether rape occurred at all.

Lieut. Massie, husband of the victim of the attack; her mother, Mrs. Grace Fortescue, and two naval enlisted men, E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, were convicted of manslaughter in a trial for the killing of Kahahawai. They were sentenced to ten years in prison, but the sentence was commuted to one hour by Gov. Judd. At the trial Lieut. Massie testified he shot Kahahawai. His plea was insanity.

Attacked on Lonely Road.

Mrs. Massie was attacked the night of Sept. 9, 1931, four months before Kahahawai was killed. She had left a party at Ala Wai inn near Honolulu. There had been considerable drinking. As she was strolling along a lonely road, she told a jury, that she had been dragged into an automobile, driven away and raped.

From the witness stand she identified the five defendants and pointed out Kahahawai as the man who had broken her jaw, but the jury disagreed after deliberating 97 hours. The defendants were freed on bonds pending further proceedings.

The four living defendants, whose names were cleared today and who were ordered discharged, are Ben Ahakuelo, Hawaiian; Henry Chang, Chinese, and Horace Ida and David Takai, Japanese.

Charges of another sex crime against Chang are being considered by the territorial board, which will decide whether he shall serve the remainder of a 15 year sentence for criminal assault imposed in 1929 and from which he was paroled after serving six months.

Points Out "Weaknesses."

Prosecutor Kelley submitted a brief in support of the dismissal today, in which he said an analysis revealed several weaknesses in the prosecution's case against the accused youths. He cited among these "weaknesses" the method used in obtaining identification by Mrs. Massie and the "lack of medical, physical, and material evidence" of the alleged attack.

The Pinkerton agency's report upon which the prosecution based its mo-

BALANCE WORLD BUDGETS TO END SLUMP: BARUCH

Asks Tax Cuts, Calls Inflation Ruin.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier summoned to Washington as a doctor of depression, walked today into the senate finance committee's clinic on the distorted dollar and announced with the authority of the consulting specialist that the cure could "be written on a calling card: "Balance the budgets of the world."

Then he threw out of the window some of the pet pills and powders dear to many of the attending physicians—those Republican and Democratic senators lined up on both sides of the big table.

Smashes Inflation Bottle.

And the bottle that he hurled the farthest was the vial labeled "Money Inflation."

"It's the road to ruin," he declared as he smashed the bottle to bits.

Down at the end of the table, for he is a junior member of the committee, Senator Tom Connally of Texas, a fellow Democrat, but not a fellow physician, hunched impatiently forward in his chair, just waiting for the chance to challenge the visiting doctor's prescription.

Lists Dozen Things to Do.

But before that chance came, Mr. Baruch listed a dozen or so things that, he pointed out, any wise medico, any thoughtful nurse could, and should do for the comfort of the patient. These included:

1. Cut governmental expenditures to bring about "actual and certain" saving of $800,000,000.

2. Get $150,000,000 new revenue from beer.

3. Insist that emergency appropriations be covered by new revenue sufficient for sinking fund and interest.

4. Abandon the "present treasury method of financing the deficit."

5. Restrict government aid to debtors to immediate revision of the bankruptcy act, and "to a contingent liability on a guarantee of interest on scaled down debts to be applied only on prudent risks."

Prescribes Medicine for Farms.

That was the fiscal medicine proposed by Banker Baruch. The farm medicine came in two bottles: a farm mortgage plan, the effect of which would be to write down the principal of existing farm mortgages by one-half, and the interest rate about two-thirds; a federal land leasing policy to take acreage out of production.

As extra aids to national recovery, Mr. Baruch suggested: the repeal of the 18th amendment, refusal to cancel the war debts, international conference on silver, and revision of the Versailles treaty to "remove the age-old causes for world conflict," and thereby promote disarmament.

But the prescription the doctor wrote over and over, not in the fancy Latin of the academic medico, but in the plain English of the everyday taxpayer, was:

"Balance budgets. Stop spending money we haven't got. Sacrifice for frugality and revenue. Cut governmental spending. Cut it as rations are cut in a siege."

Long and Loquacious Session.

And when, in a later discussion with Senator Connally, the Texan waved aside the witness' repeated plea for a balanced budget with something about, "O, we've heard you say that before," Mr. Baruch shot back, "Yes, and you'll hear me say it again. You'll hear it as long as you are around me."

It was a long and loquacious session, this, first in the series of sessions to be held by the finance committee, under the titular head of Republican Chairman Reed Smoot of Utah, but under the real impetus of Democratic soon-to-be Chairman [after March 4] Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

The clinic, to diagnose the depression and by that diagnosis, bring about the recovery of prosperity, received this lecture from Mr. Baruch, chairman of the war industries board during the crisis of 1918, close adviser to President Elect Roosevelt in the crisis of 1933:

"There is one essential thing—to get people back to work. To do that we must make money work. To make money work we must balance the budget. That should be accomplished first by reducing expenses. If we can bring the expenditures in our national budget under three billion [and he insists that it can be done] that in itself would result in a return of confidence and therefore an increase in business and employment. That increase of business would bring the budget into full balance without further taxation.

"A balanced budget and a sound money policy go hand in hand. If these two things are done there would be more sound money flowing into activity than all the unsound money our inflationist friends propose to coin. Immediately the government would be able to fund its already unwieldy short term obligations into long term investments which would free the banks to take care of the business that must increase."

Money Must Go Back to Work.

Men cannot go back to work, Mr. Baruch argued, until money goes back to work. And nobody, he insisted, "will risk dollars which the government threatens to devaluate."

This particularly was irksome to Senator Connally, who is preparing an inflationary measure which depends on reducing the gold content of the dollar. He shook a denunciatory finger at the witness and, after the fashion of the country prosecutor cross-examining the defendant, he shouted:

"Instead of trying to raise commodity prices separately, why don't we reach up, once and for all, grab the gold dollar, and bring it down to the level of commodity prices?"

"If you could do it," Mr. Baruch replied quietly, "I'd say, 'God bless you, go ahead.' But you can't do it."

The grabbing down of the old large dollar would, he explained, raise prices for the new small dollar; but the new dollar wouldn't really buy any more, since its purchasing power would decrease in proportion to the inflation.

"The farmer, that's the fellow I'm interested in," Senator Connally retorted. "He'd profit."

"Sure," agreed Mr. Baruch, "but you could do the same thing for him by printing paper."

Reed Sides with Baruch.

Then Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, who is on the Republican side of the fence politically but on the Baruch side of the line economically, cut in with the reminder that England went off the gold standard over the weekend, whereas America would have to take such measures only after congressional debate, a week of it, at least.

"What would happen during the week?" he asked.

Mr. Baruch smiled;

"There'd be such a rush for gold that there wouldn't be a nickel's worth of gold left in the federal reserve system to put behind the devalued dollar."

Senator Reed nodded, tossed in the reflection that government credit would be destroyed for the several years it would take the courts to find out whether or not government obligations had to be paid in old fat dollars or in new slim ones.

Then Mr. Baruch repaid the Republican aid of the senator from Pennsylvania by declaring that the Republican administration, for 3 years, had been conducting a "vast but vain experiment in inflation." He referred to the fact that America, "not willing to sacrifice for a balanced budget," had been selling Uncle Sam's due bills to the banks.

Cash Balance at Low Point.

"We have coined our deficit to pay our expenses,' Mr. Baruch insisted. And added:

"The outgoing administration will leave cash balances at a low point and present us with a dangerous and totally obscure fiscal problem at the very outset. Delay in balancing the budget is trifling with disaster."

Because he feels that the only remaining safeguard in the present crisis is the federal credit, Mr. Baruch is very fearful of the many "inventions" that now are before congress. The only one which he believes will aid and not oppose a natural cure is the pending La Guardia bankruptcy bill, which is designed to allow debtors to compromise their debts without going through formal bankruptcy.

This same compromise between debtor and creditor also was the keynote of Mr. Baruch's own farm mortgage plan. The plan calls for a federally supported corporation, with government guarantee of interest on the bonds, which would offer the mortgage holder cash and the farmer forgiveness.

Farmer to Get New Mortgage.

Mortgages could be refinanced at not more than 60 per cent of their present value, with the mortgage holder receiving the money from the corporation, and the farmer receiving a new mortgage in the same amount at a low rate of interest and on amortization terms, graduated to give him a breathing spell for the first couple of years.

The second agricultural medicament offered for the consideration of the clinic was one calling for governmental leasing of surplus farm lands at a rental slightly larger than the profit that could be made on the reduced crops at farm prices in their pre-war relations to general commodity prices. The average rental, Mr. Baruch suggested, would be about $3 an acre, and the total cost would be an estimated 160 million dollars.

Clinic Continues Tomorrow.

At the close of the day C. C. Teague of California, former member of the federal farm board, likewise advocated a federal leasing of surplus acreage. His plan contemplated the withdrawal from production of some 45 million acres, and at average rental of $4.50 per acre, to be paid for from a tax levy of not more than 200 million dollars.

Tomorrow the clinic continues. A quartet of visiting specialists will come with their cures. These gentlemen are Paul Block, New York publisher; Dr. Herman F. Arendtz, Harvard university professor; George N. Peek of Moline, Ill., and James H. Rand Jr. of New York. Mr. Rand has asked permission to write his prescription in a confidential statement. The other doctors will open their little black bags of medicines in public.

G. O. P. Emergency Tariff Plan Beaten by Democrats

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—House Democrats, determined to leave the tariff problem to their own incoming administration, today stifled Republican efforts to force a vote at this session on legislation providing for compensating tariff increases against imports from countries with depreciated currencies.

By a vote of 174 to 212 the Democratic majority in the lower body overrode the Schafer discharge motion, which would have brought the Crowther depreciated currency bill to the floor for a record vote. Based on the Republican contention that lowered production costs in nations with lowered currency standards give their products a price advantage over American goods produced on a gold standard basis, the Crowther measure would authorize the secretary of the treasury to increase the tariff duty on imports from nations whose currency values have dropped by five per cent or more.

Fight on Party Lines.

It was the old party tariff fight in the house today, with Republicans demanding protection for American industry and Democrats protesting against crippling our world trade by prohibitive tariff legislation. The vote followed almost exact party lines, with only fifteen Republicans deserting party ranks to vote against the discharge motion and only three Democrats voting for it.

Among the Republicans voting with the Democrats in opposition to the motion were Representative Morton D. Hull of Illinois, Representatives Amlie, Nelson, Peavey, Schneider, and Stafford of Wisconsin, and Representative Gilchrist of Iowa. The three Democrats who voted with the Republicans were Representative Connery of Massachusetts, Hill of Washington, and Martin of Oregon, all of whom were excused by their leaders on the ground that they had made campaign pledges to support depreciated currency legislation.

Urges U. S. Protection.

Typical of the debate which preceded the vote was the statement of Representative John C. Schafer [Rep., Wis.], author of the discharge motion, that "this is a vote for American products first and for foreign products second."

"I call on the Democratic and Republican progressives," he said, "to vote to bring this truly American legislation before the house."

Equally typical from the Democratic standpoint was the declaration of Chairman James W. Collier [Dem., Miss.] of the ways and means committee that "this is not only voting for an embargo against all the world, but in indorsing the Hawley-Smoot tariff act which has done more to aggravate this depression than any other thing."

Representatives from the north central area voted as follows on the motion to discharge the committee and bring the bill up for a vote:

ILLINOIS.

FOR—Adkins, Allen, Britten, Buckbee, Chindblom, Chiperfield, De Priest, Hall, Holaday, W. E. Hull, Yates, Republicans.

AGAINST—M. D. Hull, Republican; Arnold, Beam, Dieterich, Keller, Kelly, Kunz, Major, Parsons, Rainey, Sabath, Schuetz, Democrats.

WISCONSIN.

FOR—Boileau, Frear, Kading, Schafer, Withrow, Republicans.

AGAINST—Amlie, Peavey, Schneider, Stafford, Republicans; Bailly, Democrat.

INDIANA.

FOR—Hogg, Purnell, Wood, Republicans.

AGAINST—Boehne, Crowe, Greenwood, Griswold, Gillen, Larrabee, Ludlow, Pettengill, Democrats.

SEEK ROOSEVELT DECLARATION ON FISCAL AFFAIRS

Leaders Hope to Allay All Apprehensions.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Uncertainty regarding the fiscal and other economic policies of the Roosevelt administration, apprehensions that Mr. Roosevelt may embark upon a program of money inflation have produced a new and more disquieting phase of the depression, in the opinion of many public men.

So serious is the situation that it is to be brought to the attention of the President elect as soon as he returns from his holiday cruise with a view to eliciting from him a declaration that will abate public alarm by setting at rest all doubt of the course in fiscal affairs he intends to pursue.

One suggestion to be submitted to him is that he come to Washington for another conference with President Hoover and for consultation with Democratic leaders after which his position would be publicly stated.

Eager For Information.

People with their savings in banks or invested in mortgages and other securities are nervously watching every straw blown by the wind of rumor that might indicate whether the Roosevelt régime is going to inaugurate an era of cheap money. They are eagerly scanning the utterances of Democratic leaders, who will stand high in the Roosevelt administration and presumably will have influence at the White House after March 4. Many of these key men of the President elect's party favor inflation of one sort or another. Many oppose it vigorously.

One of the straws is the attitude of Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], toward Mr. Roosevelt's tender to him of the treasury portfolio. Senator Glass, secretary of the treasury in the Wilson administration, known as the father of the federal reserve act, a conservative and a "sound money" man, still has the offer of the cabinet position under advisement.

According to one version the 75 year old senator is hesitating because of the state of his health which has been none too good for the last year or two. Another is that his hesitation is due to doubt of Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward inflation.

Glass Delays Decision.

If Mr. Glass were to join an administration which should go in for inflation, he would find himself in an embarrassing, an impossible, position. It is said that, barring a rejection of the offer because of his health, he will not decide whether to accept until he can have a frank talk with the President elect on the inflation question.

The Democratic party in its platform and Mr. Roosevelt in his campaign speeches declared for sound money. New York financiers who sounded him some weeks ago, reported the President elect opposed to currency but in favor of credit inflation. The present policy of the federal reserve system is one of credit inflation, though the inflation has not materialized up to date.

In some communities there have been a renewal of large scale withdrawal of deposits from banks and other evidence of increasing hoarding of gold and currency. In almost every case these developments have been traced to the spread of reports that the government is headed toward inflation. In some instances the apprehensions of depositors was attributed to publication of the loans to banks by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Disclosure that a bank had sought and received aid shook the confidence of depositors. In one state the alarm was imputed to a regular weekly broadcasting of inflation schemes.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] took note of the situation today, "It is impossible for me to believe," he said, "that any statesman in office or any Democrat supporting the nation and the incoming President would support a policy of inflation of the American gold currency and the dollar of the United States and displace our nation from the position it now holds as the only country whose money is the first and most preferred of all monies of any or all nations.

Seen Action Impossible.

"Surely, no American of thought would topple his own nation from her pedestal of financial superiority over every other nation of civilization by choosing the standard of inflated money in place of the established value of the present American dollar that ranks as a purchasing agent superior to any currency, silver, mongrel money of credit, greenbacks, and alloyed gold.

"I do feel free to say that President Elect Roosevelt understands what would be the injurious effect on the money and credit of the United States of an inflation policy put upon the United States that would destroy our credit at home and reduce the United States to a partner with the nations of the earth afflicted with deflation that has taken from their past credit in finance and their once glory in history.

"Our United States stands alone now as mistress of strong and stable currency and guide in secure commerce and industry. The President elect will not allow this supreme position of his nation to be altered."

Senators Vote 22 Millions for Camps for Idle Boys

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Relief advocates and national defenders met one another in compromise in the senate today and added to the war department appropriation bill for 1934 22 million dollars to enroll and train 88,000 homeless and idle young Americans in year round citizens' military training camps.

In that, the amendment to the supply bill will provide a place to go, something to eat, and something to do for nearly one-third of the 300,000 transient boys, said to be tramping the country, it was a victory for Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.].

Boys Must Drill.

As a measure which will place the boys under discipline, require them to drill, require them to be American citizens, and make sure that they are physically and mentally fit for community life, it was a win for Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.], chairman of the senate military affairs committee and in charge of the war department appropriations bill.

With its additional 22 millions for the relief camps and with $1,660,630 added by the senate appropriations committee, principally for regular army clothing, supplies, and transport, the bill was passed bearing $372,516,351 in annual appropriations, and $12,479,440 for permanent items. Last year's measure, which was swelled by some 60 millions of emergency construction and from which more than 10 millions will be saved under the economy act, carried $468,604,743 in all.

The present bill must have its senate changes agreed to by the house. Senator Couzens was responsible for the idea of caring for transient boys in army camps. Available barracks and tentage could shelter 88,000 of them, the war department announced, and the cost would be approximately $250 per individual per year. Camps and posts throughout the country would all be called on to care for their quota.

Debated for Two Days.

Senator Reed objected to the original Couzens proposal and today's solution was reached only after two days of debate. As first drafted, the Couzens amendment left the question of discipline unsettled, provided no status for the campers, stated no entry requirements other than age and unemployment.

"I cannot agree," said Senator Reed. "But there are two methods, to either of which I will agree. One is to enlist these young men in the regular army; the other to enlist them in the C. M. T. C."

Senator Couzens accepted the second course and the amendment was passed by unanimous consent. Of the 22 millions, 5 millions will be made immediately available.

As now drawn boys between 15 and 21 years old will be admissible provided they can show that they have been without work for six months or more, and provided they can meet the C. M. T. C. entrance requirements as to citizenship and health.

Venezuelan Consul Wants Apology from the Police

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Unless Dr. Pedro J. de Larralde, Venezuelan consul in Los Angeles for the last six years, receives "satisfaction" from the Los Angeles police department as the result of an altercation with a traffic policeman, he will resign as consul and return to his native country, he declared tonight.

"My country has been insulted, not I, as an individual, he said. According to the consul, Officer C. F. Phelps, "manhandled" him and Mrs. De Larralde in a difference over the consul crossing the street at a signal.

Bernard M. Baruch warned the senate committee nation "is trifling with disaster," saying budget must be balanced.

WIFE HAS CASH FOR HER NEEDS; WILLETT SAYS

Howard L. Willett, for the loss of whose affections his wife is suing Mrs. Mary Cave Hall for one million dollars, refused yesterday to make a direct answer to Mrs. Willett's assertions that he had left her in "a precarious financial condition." Through his attorney, however, the president of the Willett Teaming company declared that even though he left his home at 2130 Lincoln Park West on Jan. 6 for a room at the University club, he had "made all arrangements" for her financial comfort, and that she had cash in plenty for her needs.

To interviewers Mrs. Willett stated that she has no intention of suing her ausband for divorce, indicating that she felt any alimony arrangement made would react to the disadvantage not only of herself but of their daughter, Mrs. Samuel G. Taylor III, and son, Howard L. Willett Jr. Two weeks ago, she added, a message reached her from her husband suggesting that she file suit for divorce. She had previously tried to communicate with him personally and had failed.

Mrs. Hall, widow of David White Hall, late secretary of the Addressograph company, maintained her seclusion yesterday in her apartment at 5490 South Shore drive and refused to discuss the suit.

TAYLOR TO WIN G. O. P. VOTES FOR SCHOOL POST

Votes of both Republicans and Democrats are expected for the election of Trustee Orville J. Taylor as president of the board of education tomorrow. Most of the board members are of the opinion that a president should be selected in order that his official signature may be affixed to tax anticipation warrants should a plan for paying teachers and other school employés go that far.

An election was recommended in a legal opinion by Henry E. Cutler of Chapman & Cutler, security experts, who approve warrants purchased by the banks. Since the opinion was announced the board members have offered the presidency to Trustee Taylor, an appointee of Mayor Cermak and leader in the fight for economies in school expenditures.

James A. Hemingway, Republican and appointee of a former administration, who has been acting president of the board since the resignation of Lewis E. Meyers, declared yesterday that he would do nothing that might delay pay for teachers.

"If there is an election," said Mr. Hemingway, "I shall be glad to cast my vote for Mr. Taylor. He can be depended upon to guide the affairs of the school system wisely and economically."

Mr. Taylor has stated that he would be willing to serve as president until next May.

BRITISH SEEK TO LINK DEBTS AND WORLD PARLEY

Envoy Sails Today; Will See Roosevelt.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The Anglo-American discussions, which will be resumed when Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States, returns to Washington in a week, will not be confined to war debts, but will range over the entire economic field. They may even merge into the pending world economic conference, which it is now recognized need not be held at all if Britain and America fail to agree on debts and cognate issues.

This became clear today from a series of answers by Prime Minister MacDonald to questions in the house of commons. When Sir Ronald sails tomorrow morning on the Majestic he will be accompanied by T. K. Bewley, a high treasury official, who has been appointed permanent financial adviser to the British ambassador at Washington.

Lindsay Carries No Offer.

It is stated that this appointment was decided upon some time ago quite independently of the debt situation and that while it may have been hastened by that problem, it was not in any sense due to the debt discussions. The new appointment will not preclude sending over later a higher grade of experts, such as Sir Frederick Leith-Ross or Sir Warren Fisher, when the need for their services arises.

Sir Ronald, it is understood, carries back with him no offer and no plan from the British cabinet, which met this afternoon to give him final instructions. He was, however, fully informed of the cabinet's opinion on all matters to be discussed with Washington, and he is in a position to lay before President Elect Roosevelt and his advisers what is considered the British opinion on the situation. He is not empowered to make any proposals or conclude any agreements. His position is that of a liaison officer who will listen and transmit to headquarters what the other side has to say.

MacDonald Prepared to Come.

When this process has gone far enough and if there is a prospect for a successful settlement, then a mission headed by MacDonald will go to Washington to carry on the negotiations and conclude an agreement. Any statement that Britain has made an offer of a lump sum or any other method of settlement, THE TRIBUNE is emphatically informed, is untrue.

Among the subjects which Sir Ronald is authorized to discuss are currency, the gold standard, the Ottawa empire trade agreements, tariffs, ability to pay, and in fact any and every factor which the British believe is holding up the return of world prosperity.

Outlines Policy in Commons.

The width of the field of discussion was made clear by MacDonald in the house of commons in answering a question by R. J. G. Boothby, Conservative, who asked whether the forthcoming discussions in Washington were to be confined to the question of debt payments. The prime minister said it already had been announced that the government had agreed that concurrently with the debts discussion there should be a discussion of world economic problems in which the two countries are mutually interested with the object of promoting a revival of world trade and prosperity.

While a settlement of war debts, he said, is an effective condition of such a revival, the government has always recognized that there are a number of factors, economic as well as financial, which would have to be dealt with. And the government would be very glad indeed, he said, to exchange views with the United States government over the whole field.

Bars Commons Debate.

Maj. H. L. Nathan, Liberal, then asked if before any delegation left for Washington the house would have an opportunity of discussing the matter. MacDonald replied that if any delegation went—and that has not yet been decided, he said—it would be much better for the house to wait until it had a report before it took up a position that could not be changed except by further debate.

Maj. Nathan pressed him for assurance that the house would not be bound to accept the delegation's work before discussing the delegation's report, to which the prime minister replied:

"I think the house can gather from what I have said that the purpose of the delegation is to keep in close personal touch with the United States government so that we can go on harmoniously—I don't say to a definite agreement—but so that we can go on harmoniously facing the very big problems that will have to be faced by both governments before we can come to a settlement."

MacDonald Is Peeved.

George Lansbury, Labor leader, then took up the heckling of the prime minister. He wanted to know whether Mr. MacDonald would give the house and the country in general an idea of what the British government intended to ask the United States government to discuss. MacDonald took shelter behind an answer that it was all in the agenda of the economic conference drawn up by the experts at Geneva and that if any more questions arose they would be included in that agenda. When Lansbury pressed for more specific information on the war debt policy, MacDonald answered somewhat peevishly:

"As has been stated again and again, as far as the war debt is concerned, we want an agreement with America which will enable us to pursue our European policy."

Morgan Jones, Laborite, then returned to the demand for a pledge that no agreement would be entered into with America before the house had opportunity to discuss the matter. MacDonald dodged again by saying it was difficult to answer such questions.

"Great mistakes have been made in the past through answers to supplementary questions," he said. "If there is any point or substance to the question, let us have it on an order paper."

This brought Lansbury to his feet again, asking:

"Is the prime minister aware that the chancellor of the exchequer [Neville Chamberlain] has made a certain definite statement in regard to government policy? I think he will agree that this is probably the most important piece of work the government will undertake in the next few months, and surely the house and country are entitled to ask for a clear statement as to the broad lines of policy both with regard to war debts and other questions coming under the discussion—trade, tariffs, and so on."

Speaker of House Intervenes.

Here the speaker of the house intervened, saying it seemed to him the discussion was developing into a debate, and that the matter would be allowed to drop.

One thing which seems most clearly to emerge from this exchange of questions and answers is that MacDonald contemplates telescoping the debts conference into the world economic conference. His statement that everything to be discussed in Washington will be found in the agenda of the world economic conference drawn up by experts at Geneva may indicate he has given up the idea of holding the world conference in London and has come around to the idea that it would be well to transfer the venue to Washington after the preliminary Anglo-American discussion, at which a general agreement might be reached between the two countries on a number of subjects conditioned to their fitting into the jigsaw to be put together by the world conference.

MAC DONALD CLAIMS HE HAS ARRESTED THE DEPRESSION IN BRITAIN

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Premier MacDonald in a letter to the Bethnal Green council about idleness today said the government's policy is arresting the depression and that there are definite signs of recovery.

"The government reached a definite decision to discontinue the policy of attempting to deal with unemployment by the system of state assisted relief works," the letter says. "Instead, the government directed its policy towards the revival of ordinary industrial activity by creating conditions under which industry can thrive. Although having regard for past disappointments, it is safe to prophesy the outlook of some heavy industries as more hopeful than for a long time past and there are definite signs of increased activity.

"In the circumstances, the prime minister thinks the government can justifiably claim that its policy has arrested the depression and there are now signs of national recovery and moreover, when general world recovery comes, its policy will have placed this country in a favorable position to take advantage of it."

WANTS ENGLAND TO PAY JUNE DEBT TO U. S. IN SILVER

Pittman Bill Asserts Both Nations Would Benefit.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Great Britain would be authorized to make the payment on her debt due in June in silver under the terms of a bill introduced today by Senator Pittman.

This authorization, Senator Pittman said on introducing his measure, would operate to the advantage of the United States; would enable England to avoid transfer of gold to meet the next war debt payment and would make possible acceptance by Great Britain of silver in payment of a large sum due from India before the June war debt payment.

The Pittman bill would authorize the acceptance by this government of any sum up to $100,000,000 due from Great Britain in silver at current market value.

Explains His Measure.

Its purpose was explained as follows by Mr. Pittman:

"The government of India owes Great Britain approximately $85,000,000. It has been reported with some authority that India desires to pay this debt to Great Britain with silver. The acceptance by the United States of $74,950,000 worth of silver at the world market price of silver of approximately 25 cents an ounce, which is probably lower than it will ever be again, would not only be profitable to the United States but advantageous to both the United States and Great Britain.

"Under such a settlement the United States would receive 299,800,000 ounces of silver at the present market price of around 25 cents an ounce. Under the provisions of the act our government out of such silver would coin 74,950,000 standard silver dollars. It would deposit them in the treasury and issue and circulate against them $74,950,000 in silver certificates similar to those now in circulation in the United States.

Parity to Be Kept.

"As it requires only seventy-eight one-hundredths of an ounce of silver in the coinage of standard silver dollars, there would remain, therefore, in the treasury, in addition to such 74,950,000 standard silver dollars, 241,339,000 ounces of silver to be held in the treasury as security for the maintenance of the parity of the silver certificates so issued."

Senator Pittman contended that the additional supply of silver certificates thus issued would "not overbalance our silver currency as against our gold currency in circulation," since, even with this addition, our silver currency in circulation would be proportionately less to gold than it was in 1913.

"The currency so issued would in no sense be fiat money," he said, "as there would be supporting it sufficient silver to insure at all times the intrinsic value of the silver certificates issued."

Arrested as He Flourishes Revolver Over Auto Crash

Louis Groger, 47 years old, 4854 Armitage avenue, was arrested by Cragin police yesterday after he had flourished his revolver at William Argentino, 2258 North Lawndale avenue, following a collision between their cars. No one was injured in the crash. Groger described himself to the police as a merchant and said he carried the gun for protection. He was booked for assault with a deadly weapon, released on bonds, and ordered to appear in South State street court this morning.

ETTELSON PUTS GUARD AT HOME; THREAT IS BARED

Will Have Bodyguard in Insull Hearing.

With a bodyguard at his side, Samuel A. Ettelson, former corporation counsel, will go before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson this morning to renew his effort to prove that Samuel Insull and a group of bankers "framed" the receivership of the bankrupt Insull holding and investment companies for Insull's benefit and theirs.

Mr. Ettelson admitted that he had employed George Hargraves detective agency to guard him, following receipt of anonymous information that an attempt might be made on his life. George Hargraves has been acting as his bodyguard.

"I don't know that the tip should be taken too seriously," he said, "but I don't believe in taking any chances in a case of this importance."

Guards Stationed at Home.

A visit to the Ettelson residence at 1020 East 48th street indicated that the former corporation counsel was indeed "taking every precaution." Four detectives are patrolling the grounds at night and two others are stationed at the nearby apartment of his daughter.

It was learned that the former corporation counsel has been preparing his case at home and has kept away from his office at 120 South La Salle street since he brought his charges. The reason, he admitted, was his inability at this time to meet the expense of employing additional detectives to guard the office.

Certain interests unknown to him have retained another detective agency to keep him and his office force under surveillance, Mr. Ettelson asserted. The other agency is reported once to have performed important commissions for Samuel Insull.

Ettelson suspects that his telephone lines have been tapped. He had Detective Hargraves inspect the wires and asked the telephone company to test the lines for interference. No wire tapping was discovered, but persons who have telephoned the Ettelson home have noted a "peculiar and persistent clicking on the line."

Insull Jr. to Be Heard.

Chief among those subpoenaed for today's hearing is Samuel Insull Jr. If the court permits, Mr. Ettelson says he will ask young Insull to confirm or deny reports that on his recent trip to Europe to carried a large sum of money to his father, who fled to Athens and from there resisted extradition on charges of larceny and embezzlement.

Bankers under subpoena are James R. Leavell, Abner J. Stilwell, Albert W. Harris, Howard Fenton, Edward E. Brown and Solomon Smith. John E. Wing of the law firm of Lincoln, Isham & Beale is also under subpoena.

If he is called and concludes his testimony by noon, young Insull is reported planning to catch an early afternoon train for Washington to appear tomorrow before the senate banking and currency committee. Others subpoenaed there are Melvin Traylor, Charles G. Dawes and Harold L. Stuart.

BRITISH REPORT FINDS NATION CAN PAY DEBT IN GOLD

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—If the United States refused to grant a revision of the war debt and Great Britain continued to pay in gold, such payments could continue after the Bank of England's gold stocks of £12,000,000 had been exhausted, according to a review issued by J. Henry Schroeder & Co.

Britain could buy enough gold to meet the payments out of the annual production of South African and other mines and out of the Indian hoards that have already produced £80,000,000 since India followed Great Britain off the gold standard, according to this view.

"If Britain and other nongold countries definitely decided never to return to gold," the statement says, "practically the whole gold output might be poured into gold standard countries and the proceeds of the sale of such gold might be employed to purchase securities from gold standard nations and so might gradually wipe out the unfavorable balance of indebtedness between gold and nongold countries.

"The end of this process ultimately would be to leave the gold standard countries no longer in a creditor position, but saddled with a useless mass of gold. Alternatively the dollar proceeds of sales of gold would be offered on the exchange market and tend to create a large demand for sterling, which gradually would bring it and all the currencies linked with it to the old parity."

CREATION OF SIX NEW CARDINALS ORDERED BY POPE

Elevates Papal Envoy to U.S. and Quebec Prelate

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 13.—Six new cardinals will be created in March, it was announced today by Osservatore Romano, official Vatican newspaper. Elevation to the sacred college will occur at a secret consistory on March 13 and a public consistory will be held March 16.

Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States and Mexico, with headquarters in Washington, D. C., and Jean Marie Rodriguez Villeneuve, archbishop of Quebec, are among the six to be elevated.

Makes 58 Cardinals.

The promotions will bring the number of cardinals to 58 of a possible 70, and will give Italians a majority, 30 to 28. It will be the first creation of new cardinals since 1930.

Besides Msgr. Fumasoni-Biondi and Msgr. Villeneuve, red hats of the cardinalate will be conferred upon Archbishop Innitzer of Vienna, Archbishop Fossati of Turin, Archbishop Della Costa of Florence, and Archbishop Dolci, papal nuncio to Rumania.

Shoemaker's Son to Be Cardinal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 13.—A Montreal shoemaker's son will be Canada's next cardinal. Today news came from Vatican City that Msgr. Jean Marie Rodriguez Villeneuve, archbishop of Quebec, will be granted the red hat at a consistory next month.

When Jean Villeneuve was born in this city on Nov. 2, 1883, to Rodriguez Villeneuve and his wife they determined that their boy should enter the priesthood. But they never dreamed they would live to see him a prince of the church. They are now looking joyfully forward to the event.

HUDSON FACTORY STRIKERS RETURN; BRIGGS STILL OUT

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Striking workmen of the Hudson Motor Car company today returned to the jobs they left a week ago. The Conors avenue body plant went back into production. This followed assurances from the foremen that wage difficulties would be settled by private negotiations to the satisfaction of the workmen.

Officials announced that the main plant will be in full production by tomorrow afternoon.

The picket line at the Mack avenue branch of the Briggs Manufacturing company contained about 300 strikers. Minor disturbances resulted in the slight wounding of several workmen. Several were arrested charged with disturbing the peace. Briggs strikers today staged an automobile parade over a route five miles in length extending between the two Briggs plants. There was no disturbance.

Three strike leaders from the Briggs plant were sent to Chicago Sunday to confer with Clarence Darrow. They returned today, quoting Mr. Darrow as urging them to lay their grievances before state and federal labor authorities. They added that he later would be glad to act on an advisory board. A special undercover agent from the department of labor in Washington said today the Briggs strike apparently was started by the workers.

KIN ADVERTISE FOR RELEASE OF KIDNAP VICTIM

by Feb. 1 after he was convicted in Glenwood Springs, Colo., where he made his home after leaving Chicago, on a charge of assault to murder.

He was given his choice to leave Colorado or serve a prison sentence. Alterie was tried in Chicago last June on a charge of kidnaping Edward Dobkin, a bookmaker, for $8,000 ransom, and acquitted. A charge of conspiracy to kidnap is still pending against him in Chicago. Alterie had operated a dude ranch at Glenwood Springs.

Pursue Kansas City Clew.

Police also investigated the possibility that Boettcher was under surveillance at Kansas City last week while he was visiting his mother there. The kidnapers may have followed him from Missouri, Chief Clark said. Kansas City police were asked to trace Boettcher's movements during his recent visit.

Police are also seeking the identity of a man who passed the Boettcher home as the kidnapers accosted their victim. The unidentified man, police said, told a couple seated in a nearby automobile that a holdup was in progress and asked them to notify the police. Instead, the man and woman drove about until they found a special policeman. When they returned with him police had been notified.

Boettcher is the president of Boettcher-Newton, investment brokers here. He is a graduate of Yale. His family played a part in Colorado finance for more than sixty years. Charles Boettcher I., who is now 78 years old, came here as a boy from Germany and saw the possibility of the state as a sugar beet region and cement manufacturing center. The broker was married seven years ago to Miss Anna Lou Piggott of Helena, Mont.

Senators May Decide Today Whether to Debate Dry Repeal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Wets and drys will make the senate their field of battle tomorrow. They will debate for and against immediate consideration of the resolution for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. That subject has awaited action since being reported out by the senate judiciary committee, more than a month ago.

The motion to take up the repeal resolution was made just before adjournment tonight by Senator John J. Blaine Wisconsin radical, one of the wettest of the wets on the Republican side of the aisle.

Argument on the motion is sure to be both warm and prolonged. It will be only a curtain raiser, however, to the discussion which will follow, should the motion prevail and the resolution itself be made the topic of debate.

As a product, distorted by dry pressure and persuasion, the resolution is far from acceptable to many of the wets themselves. The measure is far more like that projected in the recent Republican platform than the straight repeal pledge of the Democratic plank.

It provides for ratification by legislatures rather than by state conventions. It burdens repeal by leaving with the federal government the right to regulate the transportation of liquor into any dry states and by giving congress concurrent power to regulate or prohibit saloons.

Wets are torn between their convictions and their desire to lure with concessions as many votes as possible with senators balancing unsteadily on the dividing line.

Legal beer of an alcoholic content of 3.2 per cent by June 1 was predicted here today by Herbert L. Noll of the New Amsterdam Brewing company. Mr. Noll has been inspecting sites for breweries here and in Baltimore, his company having decided to erect separate plants to serve these neighboring cities.

"The production capacity of the breweries of the country will be greatly behind the demand at the outset," Mr. Noll said. However, we are constructing our plants so that they can be stepped up with relatively small trouble and expense if the demand increases as we think it will."

Mr. Noll said he had little hope of any sort of beer legislation passing the "lame duck" session of congress. He said that he was pinning his faith on the special session which he believed the incoming President would call about the middle of April. At that time both a repeal resolution and a beer bill would be put through in short order, in his opinion.

EXPECT REPORT ON PROBLEMS OF RAILWAYS TODAY

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The long awaited report of the national transportation committee, which the late Calvin Coolidge headed as chairman, and which is now directed by Bernard M. Baruch, will be published tomorrow.

The findings of this committee, whose membership included Alfred E. Smith, Clark Howell, Alexander Legge, and others, are the fruit of four months' work, and are expected to shed light on the outlook of the nation's 20 billion dollar railroad system.

Indications are that the report will deal extensively with those problems of the railroad managements which have resulted from competition by other forms of transportation, such as airplanes and trucks.

COMPLETE TAX BILLS FOR 280 COUNTRY TOWNS

County Treasurer's Aids Work on Holiday.

The courtrooms and most of the offices in the county building were dark and empty yesterday. From one, however, there rose a hum of activity. In a high ceilinged room on the second floor is the tax extension department of County Treasurer McDonough, and there 200 women and girls are working 16 hours a day to send out the 1931 tax bills.

Early yesterday evening this staff had calculated individual tax bills in all the 280 country town tax books and these were in the hands of the 30 collectors from the various townships outside the city limits. This is the first milestone in their task.

Start Individual Bills.

Last night the first books of the 302 city volumes were placed in the hands of calculating machine operators, who compute the tax bill for each real estate owner. As this work is done the actual tax books are placed in machines, which stamp the amount of the total tax bill, the amount of the first installment, and the legal description of the property on the pages in indelible ink.

This operation completed, the bills which are to be sent out follow the books into the machines, where the same information is stamped a second time. The skeleton bill, prepared in advance, bears the name and address of the real estate owner. After the bills are stuffed into envelopes they are mailed out.

Rates Vary in Country.

Because of the many municipalities, each levying a separate tax at a different rate in the country townships, the calculation of rates in these books is considered the most difficult phase of the extension. In Chicago townships the rate is uniform except for a small area in Jefferson and in Rogers Park townships. Thus the work of completing the city bills will proceed quickly.

Residents of Hyde Park and the southern sections of the city may expect to receive their bills by next Friday or Saturday morning, if the schedule laid out by Mrs. Laura Webber, head of the machine extension division, proceeds on time. The last bills within the city, probably to loop property owners, will be sent out by Feb. 24.

With a penalty date set for March 1 for the first half of the real estate bills, this schedule will allow citizens only four days in which to pay.

May Extend Penalty Date.

Because of the short interval county officials have discussed the postponement of the penalty date until March 15. This will not be formally considered for another week or so, County Treasurer McDonough announced yesterday.

Although the penalty date is set by legislative action, it may be postponed as it was for the 1930 taxes by agreement between the county treasurer and County Clerk Sweitzer. Legislative approval of such a move would be sought later.

A small force was at work in the offices of the board of tax appeals yesterday. The first hearings on complaints against the 1931 real estate assessed valuations will begin next Monday. The hearings will be staggered, beginning with country townships to the south. Any changes which the board may make in valuations will be reflected in the second installment of the 1931 bills, which fall due on July 1.

HOLD UP CAR CONDUCTOR.

Two bandits boarded a Damen avenue street car in front of the Marquette police station early yesterday, took $30 from Conductor Charles Ruane and escaped as the car reached Taylor street.

Youth Injured in Amherst Fire

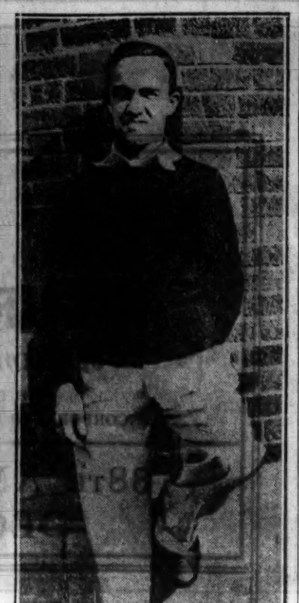
JOHN G. BROOMELL.



DAVID B. TRUMAN.

Injured in Fire

Amherst, Mass., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—John G. Broomell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Broomell of 6233 Winthrop avenue, Chicago, received a deep wound on his forehead when escaping from a fire that swept the Alpha Delta Phi annex at Amherst college here early this morning.

Broomell and two sophomore classmates, Samuel T. Tisdale of Taunton, Mass., and David B. Truman, son of Malcolm G. Truman, president of Marsh & Truman Lumber company of Evanston, Ill., were sleeping on the second story of the frame building when shouts from below awakened them.

They stepped into their study, and driven out by blinding smoke, rushed back into their bedroom and leaped out of the window onto the roof, from which they hung suspended by finger tips, dropping in their pajamas to the snow below in subzero temperature.

JOE GREIN ASKS U. S. AID TO HALT THREAT LETTERS

Sealer Rebels at Being Called "Cuckoo."

City Sealer Joe Grein disclosed yesterday that he has appealed to the federal government for aid in tracking the senders of anonymous letters in which threats were made against his life, and has offered $500 reward for information leading to their arrest.

Grein said that since he took office in 1931 and began to campaign for honest weights and measures in Chicago he has received numerous threatening letters and telephone calls. Lately the letters increased to such an extent that he turned over some of the messages to Potoffice Inspector K. P. Aldrich for investigation.

Threatened with "Ride."

"I got the latest threat at 2:30 o'clock one morning last week," said Mr. Grein. "It was a telephone call that got through to me because the fellow on the other end of the wire said that two of my deputies were in jail in Waukegan. When I got on the phone a voice said: 'This is your last day because you've been marked for a ride.'

"Ordinarily I wouldn't pay any attention to the threats against me, but it was something else again when these unknown cowardly persons began to send postal cards to the aldermen and to other department heads in which they said I was cuckoo. Although they cannot scare me I am going to fight back when they attack my character."

Tests 8 Scales; All Cheat.

Recently the sealer and a force of deputies went through the Maxwell street market. The first eight scales they tested were found to be giving short weight and the owners were summoned to court. But by the time the sealer had finished testing the eight scales word of his arrival had spread and the scales tested thereafter were found to be correct.

During the 22 months that he has been in office the sealer's force has tested approximately 250,000 scales and measures. Of the 1,210 suits started against dishonest dealers 1,168 have been disposed of. The total amount of fines and fees assessed against the merchants taken into court totals $28,000.

RAID 9 PLACES AS HANDBOOKS; ARREST 44 MEN

Nine alleged handbooks on the north side were raided yesterday by two police details. Three of the raids were made by Supervising Capt. Thomas Condon and Detectives George Barnes and John O'Brien. The others were made by Detectives Thomas Lamie and Edward Gleason of the Town hall station.

Forty-four men, including alleged keepers, were arrested. The places raided and principals seized were: 4656 Broadway, Davy Davis; 935 Wilson avenue, Joe and John Williams; 4648 North Racine avenue, Jake Katz; 4538 Sheridan road, Albert Leverne; 1148 Wilson avenue, William Dwyer; 1222 Wilson avenue, Ben Eisenstein; 3443 Sheffield avenue, John Schlitz; 3535 Broadway, Sigmund Sarca, and 946 Belmont avenue, Dan Wagner.

BATTLE TODAY FOR CONTROL OF TAX STRIKE GROUP

Members' Meet Expected to Be Stormy.

The battle for control of the tax striking Association of Real Estate Taxpayers is to be decided in a mass-meeting of the 28,000 members at the Coliseum this afternoon. The warring directors of the association have predicted a stormy meeting.

Victors in the struggle will have charge of the $150,000 in the association's treasury, which has been tied up by the fight. Dissension broke out in the ranks of the association on Feb. 1 when the directors, by a vote of 7 to 6, voted to suspend operations in their office, thus virtually ordering the removal of John M. Pratt, the director employed at a salary of $20,000 a year.

Refuses to Be Ousted.

Pratt refused to be ousted and was supported by James E. Bistor, president of the association. The six directors who supported Pratt called the meeting for this afternoon by obtaining 600 signers to a petition. In the call the Pratt group notified members that they would be asked to amend the by-laws of the association to increase or decrease the number of directors, consider removal of present directors, and determine whether any of the present directors can be charged with incompetence or misconduct.

The Pratt group, it is said, intends to have the members at the massmeeting nullify the action of the majority directors by removing several of them from office or increasing the number of directors so that the present majority will constitute a minority. The majority directors who voted to oust Pratt contend, however, that today's meeting will be illegal because it has not been called by a majority vote of the board.

Expect Move to Disband.

A movement to disband the organization because of court reversals of test tax cases brought by the organization is expected from a group of members, who have expressed themselves as being convinced that the strike of the organization is a lost cause. The United States Supreme court recently refused to review the Cisar case, which attacked taxes on the same ground as that employed in the association's case—the alleged failure to assess personal property in proportion with real estate.

PREMIER IRISH DUKE PAYS DEBTS SINCE MARRIAGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The duke of Leinster, first in the peerage of Ireland, is paying off his debts since his marriage in December to the American heiress, the former Mrs. Raffaele Van Neck. The judgment summons brought in behalf of a creditor who claimed $10,000 of an original loan of $15,000 was dismissed by Justice Clauson at the third hearing today.

The attorney for the judgment creditor asked the court to allow withdrawal of the summons since active negotiations are under way for payment of the debt. The duke was not represented at the hearing.

Last December the duke's attorneys begged delay of judgment pending the arrival of "certain monies from America." That was four days after the duke's marriage to the divorced wife of Capt. Clare Van Neck, a daughter of Mrs. J. H. Patterson of New York and Connecticut.

SUPREME COURT OF U.S. REFUSES REHEARING OF SHULER RADIO CASE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The fight which the Trinity Methodist church, South, and the Rev. Robert P. Shuler have been making to force the federal radio commission to renew the license of broadcasting station KGEF, at Los Angeles, ended in defeat today. The Supreme court refused to reconsider its recent action declining to review the case.

The station, owned by that church, was used by Shuler to broadcast addresses which aroused resentment because of attacks on the Roman Catholic church and persons prominent in official and social life. Shuler was defeated in the recent election as a candidate for the United States senate.

The radio commission granted hearings and, after protracted consideration, refused to renew the license. Both Shuler and his church challenged the authority of the commission, contending its action was an invalid restraint on the constitutional right of freedom of speech. They insisted the commission had discriminated against the station and claimed for it the same freedom of comment and criticism which, they asserted, had been extended to the press.

When the District of Columbia Court of Appeals sustained the commission the church asked the Supreme court to review the case, but the highest court refused. The church then asked it to reconsider its action, but today the highest court declined to do so, closing the case.

Gale Blows Newfoundland Church Into the Ocean

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 13.—A heavy southwest gale which buffeted the west coast yesterday destroyed the Roman Catholic church at Highlands, blowing much of it into the sea. Houses and barns at Robinson's were unroofed, and at Bonne bay the highest tide in 40 years accompanied the wind, demolishing many wharves, small stores, and fishing boats.

"SOAK THE RICH" IS BOOMERANG TO CHURCH RADICALS

Find Policy Reduces Gifts to Their Causes.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Radical churchmen who have encouraged politicians supporting a "soak the rich" tax policy now are finding such taxation a boomerang. This was indicated in discussion of a resolution favoring exemption of donation from taxation as income at the closing session of the nine day convention of the International Council of Religious Education in Hotel La Salle yesterday. The clamorers for a "soak the rich" policy, it was pointed out, have been spurred on by radical leaders in many Protestant denominations.

Tell of Decrease in Gifts.

Such a policy is depriving religious, educational, and charitable causes and institutions of large sums of money on which they have depended, some of the speakers said. Consequently, they added, these causes are suffering because the government insists on taking 50 per cent of the income of wealthy persons with incomes in the higher brackets.

Russell Colgate of New York, president of the religious education council, speaking on the effects of the "soaking" policy, declared that the donations from wealthy men, some of whom have been giving as much as half of their incomes to religious or educational objects are no longer forthcoming. Mr. Colgate also explained that under the present law tax free donations are limited to 15 per cent of total incomes. He asked support for his resolution calling on congress to exempt all donations from taxation. The resolution was adopted.

New Bible Version Delayed.

A report from the group of 15 biblical scholars who have been engaged since 1919 in the revision of the American standard version of the Bible was presented to the council yesterday. It was stated that financial stringency is impeding the work and that at least 10 years will be required to complete the work.

Dr. F. C. Eiselen, head of the Methodist board of education, and Prof. Edgar J. Goodspeed of the University of Chicago are the two Chicago members of the revision committee. An advisory board representing the 42 denominations in the council was appointed yesterday to assist the scholars in their work of revision.

PRINCESS SPURNS RIGHT TO THRONE FOR ILLICIT LOVE

Reveal Tale of Intrigues in Monte Carlo.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, Feb. 13.—"Princess renounces throne for love of Italian doctor."

These were the headlines you read recently over dispatches from Monaco telling how the hereditary Princess Charlotte had petitioned her father, Prince Louis II., for permission to divorce her noble consort, Count Pierre de Polignac, abandon her eventual rights to succession in the tiny gambling principality and live the life of an obscure monegasque subject with the man of her choice.

It sounds glamorous, romantic, and simple. A sort of Cinderella story turned backward. The romance is authentic, but the tale is much less simple than the versions that have been published heretofore. From a highly placed source THE TRIBUNE is able to reveal the real story.

Didn't Renounce Rights.

Princess Charlotte did not exactly renounce her rights to the throne; she was virtually removed by diplomatic intervention. Her official renunciation was the culmination of two years of secret intrigue, in which the rival ambitions of two great powers, the political dissensions of a comic opera principality, a woman's ardent heart, and a man's jealousy were all inextricably mixed.

Also the man of Princess Charlotte's choice is not the humble Italian physician with whom she had eloped from the royal palace a couple of years ago, but an elegant Italian nobleman who usurped the place in the princess' heart formerly occupied by his compatriot.

And, like everything else in this principality, a consideration of hard cash is at the bottom of it. The man who unleashed all these forces, including the princess' pent up emotions, was neither a lover, a politician, nor a diplomat, but a big business man who jokingly refers to himself as a gambler.

How the Story Began.

To follow this drama of amorous and political intrigue it is necessary to go back to a time before Princess Charlotte was born.

Early in the nineties her father, Prince Louis, then an officer in a French regiment in Algeria, met and fell in love with Juliette Louvet, a French woman of modest extraction. In fact, she is said to have been a scrubwoman. Of this love Charlotte was born. At the age of 10 Prince Louis took her away from her mother, kidnaping her in an automobile. From her obscure infancy she rose to undreamed of luxury. Albert I., then reigning prince of Monaco, legitimized her in 1919, gave her the title of duchess of Valentinois, and then made her hereditary princess of Monaco.

She was given the straight laced and formal education of a princess. But it failed to restrain the ardent southern blood that ran in her veins. As suited a princess, she was given a husband chosen by her grandfather. This husband was Count Pierre de Polignac, a tall blond young French aristocrat of 25.

Falls Out with Mate.

The count had had an "English" education. He kept his feelings well in leash. The princess frequently burst into fiery fits of affection or anger. From admiring his restraint she came to dislike it.

A man who needed an inside line to the court decided to make use of the situation for his personal purpose. He was René Léon, manager of the internationally famous gambling casino. He wanted Prince Louis to increase the casino capital. He got an introduction to Charlotte for a friend of his, Dr. Pietro Dalmazzo. Lonely and unhappy, she soon discovered in the clever Italian surgeon the temperamental qualities her husband lacked.

She asked for a separation from Count Pierre. Her father tried to dissuade her. The Bishop of Monaco attempted to bring about a reconciliation. It was in vain.

Poincare Grants Separation.

The matter could not be settled in an ordinary court, of course. Former President Poincare of France was asked to arbitrate. He granted her a separation from her husband and gave the latter the guardianship of the two children. They were to spend only two months of each year in the palace of their adoring grandfather.

Prince Pierre—he had that title as well as his own of count—left for Paris, and Charlotte was free to expend her ardent love on Dalmazzo. With him she traveled in Italy and Switzerland. Prince Louis, who had finally welcomed the doctor to the palace, often accompanied them.

Léon, the gambling magnate, was exultant. He was now in a position to get what he wanted from Prince Louis. He increased the princess' allowance from the casino's receipts.

Charlotte wanted to marry Dalmazzo and took steps with the Holy See to dissolve her marriage with Polignac. But before the thing was consummated she began to be disillusioned also with her second love.

Meets Another Boy Friend.

About this time Charlotte met the Marquis Strozzi, another high tempered and handsome Italian. Their affair grew to warm proportions. But Dalmazzo would not give up his princess. He followed her and her new love to a villa near Nice. There was a violent scene and he retreated to Monaco. He used so little restraint there that the principality police decided to throw him out. But he remained, due, it is said, to the intervention of the Italian government.

Princess Charlotte was happy. She spent the summer of 1932 in Scotland with the marquis. In the winter she returned to her father's palace in Monaco and the marquis was invited to come also.

Then, shortly before Christmas, came a discreet intimation from the French government that France would not care to see Princess Charlotte succeed to the throne. Prince Louis tried to persuade her to give up her love for the marquis. But she stood firm. Love meant more to her than the throne.

Asks to Be Relieved.

On Jan. 9 she wrote to her father asking to be relieved from the succession and requesting his approval of the dissolution of her marriage to Polignac.

"Having given to my family and to the country the two children who are the hope of the dynasty," she wrote, "I believe I have accomplished my duty."

The letter grieved the prince, for he loves his daughter, but he accepted her abdication. He knows Charlotte's defection will not improve matters in his little realm. The population has long been discontented, demanding a new and more liberal constitution. Prince Louis is 60, and the problem of the succession has not yet been finally solved. If Prince Renier, now 10, is called to rule before coming of age, the Frenchman Polignac would naturally be a member of the regency. This would complicate matters in the Monaco palace, where Charlotte still likes to come frequently and stay with her father. So the final decision about the regency has not yet been taken.

SMOKE IS NOT IN NUISANCE CLASS; INJURES BRAIN

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP)—After an 11 year study of city smoke and its effects on humans, H. B. Meller of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research announces that smoke may work injury to the brain.

He finds that "there is a gradual process of absorption by the human system of the air borne products of combustion."

Taking smoke out of the "nuisance" class and labeling it with skull and crossbones, Meller states:

"It may not be possible to recognize definitely any acute mental disorder or specific disability, yet the process of slow smoke poisoning may work insidiously upon vital tissues, making it impossible for the brain to function at maximal efficiency."

Mellon institute investigators say they have found that impurities contained in air cause irritation to sensitive membrances of the eyes, nose, throat, and lung, increasing susceptibility to disease, of which the average person is not aware.

HAWAII QUASHES RAPE CHARGES IN MASSIE CASE

Report Discredit's Story of Officer's Wife.

tion to end the case, comprised 279 pages.

It said that the youths accused by Mrs. Massie could not have committed the crime at the time and place as testified by her.

The report quoted at length from Mrs. Massie's testimony and pointed out discrepancies. It also stressed her inability to describe her alleged assailants until after the men she had accused were brought before her.

"No Evidence of Rape."

The report further said that a medical examination showed no evidence of rape, and that, except for one stocking, her clothing was not torn.

"The absence of such signs cannot be taken as conclusive proof," the document continued, "but we have found nothing in the record of this case nor have we through our own efforts been able to find what in our estimation would be sufficient corroboration of statements made by Mrs. Massie to establish the occurrence of rape upon her.

"There is a preponderance of evidence that Mrs. Massie did in some manner suffer many bruises about her head and body but definite proof of actual rape has not in our opinion been found.

Find Garments Untorn.

"Careful examination of the clothing worn by Mrs. Massie on the night of the alleged assault failed to show any evidence of attack such as she described, the garments being in perfect condition without rips or tears except in one stocking. It seems improbable that an attack such as she described would not show some evidence on clothing of such flimsy material, and if the clothing had been turned up above the hips there would certainly have been indications caused by the character of the ground.

"A complete analysis of the case makes it impossible to escape the conviction that the kidnaping and assault was not conducted by those accused with attendant circumstances as alleged by Mrs. Massie.

"It is doubtful at this date if direct investigation of this alleged assault will disclose the identity of those who physically assaulted Mrs. Massie.

Hints at Theory.

"A theory as to the probable manner in which this occurred may be stated, but without definite proof in support therefore it obviously is unwise to state theories.

"We can only assume the reason Mrs. Massie did not give to authorities immediately after the alleged offense the same details and information she was able to furnish by her testimony at the trial is because she did not possess it at the time she was questioned by those she came in contact with immediately after the alleged offense.

"No more satisfactory is Mrs. Massie's account of the time she left Ala Wai inn. That she was last seen by certain associates at 11:30 p. m. proves nothing as to the time she left the inn."

Prosecutor Kelley then summarized the findings and addressed the court in this manner:

"The evidence adduced at the criminal assault trial was such that it is not surprising that a verdict of conviction was not obtained, and in view of the fact that the subsequent investigations have uncovered no new evidence, there is certainly no more likelihood that a conviction can be obtained at another trial."

Mrs. Massie "Not Surprised."

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Mrs. Thomas H. Massie today expressed no surprise at the quashing of charges against the four men accused of having attacked her in Hawaii. She said that she had expected this action for some time.

Mrs. Massie and her husband are living in East Lansdowne, near here. The naval officer is attached to the battleship New Mexico, which is being modernized at the Philadelphia navy yard.

JAPANESE TAKE INITIAL STEP TO QUIT THE LEAGUE

Delegates Are Ordered to Leave Geneva.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 13.—Count Yasuya Uchida, Japanese foreign minister, tonight cabled Yosuke Matsuoka, Japan's chief delegate at Geneva, instructing the Japanese delegation to withdraw from discussions of the Manchurian question the moment the league applies paragraph 4 of article 15 of the covenant and to proceed to Paris to await further instructions.

[Paragraph 4 of Article 15 empowers the league to publish facts and recommendations after disputing powers have failed to reach a peaceful solution. The league committee of nineteen has been drawing up such a report.]

It is understood that the Japanese disarmament delegation also will proceed to Paris with Matsuoka.

May Quit Altogether.

With the application of paragraph 4 Japan will await the league's recommendations and on receipt of this will formally withdraw not merely from the Manchurian discussions, but from the league as well, observers agree. Withdrawal now appears inevitable, the question being one merely of time.

Baron Kijuro Shidehara, former foreign minister, who has been in retirement and practically forgotten, called on the elder statesman, Prince Kimmochi Saionji, at Okitsu today. The visit gave rise to various conjectures, especially as the two remained closeted for more than two hours. Interviewed at the train after the visit, Shidehara said he had merely expressed his regret to Prince Saionji because he had been caused considerable trouble during the recent cabinet crisis.

[It is Japanese custom to consult the elder statesman, or Genro, prior to any important cabinet change or on any question vital to the empire. Prince Saionji is the only surviving Genro. Baron Shidehara was an important figure in the early days of the Manchurian conflict, but became ill of cerebral anemia in February, 1932, and has had no active part in the government since then.]

China Decides to Fight.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PEIPING, Feb. 13.—"Any attack on Jehol would be identical to attacking Nanking and will be met with the nation's entire force."

This declaration was made today by T. V. Soong, Chinese finance minister, following conferences with Chang Hsueh-liang, Chinese military commander, Ambassador Johnson of the United States, Sir Miles Lampson, British minister, and other foreign diplomatic representatives.

"I came to Peiping especially because of the Jehol situation, Jehol being an integral part of China," Soong continued. "The Japanese have already seized northeastern China, but unquestionably any further advance will be resisted. Japan has not declared war against China, but has to all intents and purposes carried warfare into China. I think it is mere legalistic hairsplitting even to consider whether this undeclared war may not be regarded as warfare.

May Withdraw Minister.

"We take the Jehol situation very seriously. Speaking only for myself, it really seems useless to maintain a Chinese minister at Tokio if the Japanese make a drive into Jehol, since it will be evident that henceforth all diplomatic efforts will be unavailing."

Soon said Nanking is stanchly supporting Peiping. Marshal Chang is regarded as the Chinese government's servant and takes all actions under Nanking's orders.

"The Jehol question is a national issue," Soong said. "I emphasize that there is the fullest coöperation between the central government and the northern generals."

Soong, who will remain in Peiping for several days, has established a busy and extensive headquarters in the old foreign office building.

There are numerous indications that Soong is at the helm of affairs while the situation which he regards as of the utmost international gravity develops.

CALLS MEDICAL MEN TO PREVENT MENTAL DISEASE

Secretary Wilbur Heard at Congress Here.

Responsibility of the medical profession for the prevention of mental diseases was stressed by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, in an address at the opening session of the 39th annual congress on medical education and licensure at the Palmer house yesterday.

The main topic of the first day's sessions was the recognition of the evolution of medical practice into special fields, and the problem of how to protect the public against self-styled specialists who have no adequate training. This again was held to be the job of the medical profession, with the aid of state boards. That this age of specialists is only a transition period that will merge into a period of better prepared general practitioners was the suggestion of Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of Northwestern university medical school.

Hospital Mechanism Shocked.

"The nation-wide hospital mechanism has been badly shocked by the depression," said Dr. Wilbur, who presided at the meetings. "New methods will be required so that hospitals may not only continue as educational institutions and as homes for research, but also as places where the highest possible medical skill can be universally available.

"In the field of mental diseases we face the necessity of accepting the care of mental cases as a responsibility of the whole profession. Better training of every medical student in this field is required. For decades we have gone on viewing mental disease largely from its fully established mental states and terminal stages, rather than from the standpoint of prevention and early recognition. As a profession we must meet the problem of mental hygiene and replace the policemen and the courts in the initial handling of those with disordered minds."

Already Busy on Mental Ailments.

The council on medical education and its staff have been engaged on this problem during the year, he reported, and it has also prepared and published lists of physicians specializing in radiology and pathology.

"We are prepared to extend this to other fields," he said, "to the end that members of the profession and others may be able readily to distinguish those who have received training in various branches from those who are merely self-constituted specialists."

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

PAIR ROBS FOUR CHAIN STORES IN 20 MINUTES

Two bandits held up four Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company stores on the north side within twenty minutes last night. They appeared first at 718 North Clark street and got $60 from R. R. Graves, 842 Aldine avenue, the manager. They next stole $30 from Frank Fry, 2631 North Harding avenue, manager of the store at 155 West North avenue. Five minutes later the robbers visited 316 West North avenue, getting $23 from the manager, Joseph Dolesheck, 3238 Parnell avenue, and shortly afterward they added $16 to their loot in a holdup at 744 West North avenue, menacing the manager there, Walter Gabel, 2635 Magnolia avenue.

Killing of Robber Is Held Justifiable Homicide

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of justifiable homicide at the inquest into the death of Walter Barry, 25 years old, who was killed Sunday by Policeman Arthur Novotny of the Lawndale station. Barry was attempting to rob the cashier of the Douglas theater, 3236 West 22d street. Barry pointed his gun at Novotny and pulled the trigger but it missed fire, the policeman testified at the inquest. The dead bandit came here recently from Winnipeg.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TO DRIVE DOGS TO WASHINGTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Some one in Franklin D. Roosevelt's family has to take Mrs. Roosevelt's roadster and the dogs to the White House, so Mrs. Roosevelt is going to do the job herself. She will set out early Friday morning, the day before the inauguration, to drive to Washington alone. Her only escorts will be Meggie, a Scottish terrier, and Major, a police dog.

"Some one has to take the dogs and the car to Washington," Mrs. Roosevelt explained today, "and I shall enjoy doing it myself. I love to drive.

"I haven't quite made up my mind when I shall start, but probably it will be very early in the morning, March 3. I like to drive early in the morning. I have to be in Washington by lunch time, and it's a seven hour drive, so I'll have to start fairly early."

Mrs. Roosevelt admits that her real reason probably is that she wants to get away by herself for a few hours.

"Those first few weeks in Washington are going to be strenuous. I shall have to make quite a few readjustments in my way of living and doing things. It isn't always going to be easy. With that in prospect I shall need to get away for a little while—to be quiet and think things over."

Meggie, Mrs. Roosevelt's dog, will ride on the seat beside her. Major, presented to Mr. Roosevelt by a troop of the New York state police while he was governor, will ride in the rumble seat of the roadster.

Mrs. Roosevelt is making only one more speech of any consequence—a speech on the program of the farm and home week at Cornell university at Ithaca this Thursday. One weekend before the inauguration she plans to visit her sons, Franklin Jr. and John at the Groton school in Massachusetts.

She is hoping that a book on which she is working can be finished between now and March 4.

FLEET TO RIDE ECONOMY WAVE; BLOW TO YARDS

Foes and Friends of Pork Line Up.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Congressional supporters of the pork barrel navy yards, along the Atlantic seaboard, hurriedly lined up today. They will combat the latest drive to lighten the burden on the federal treasury by curtailing or closing down surplus naval properties at Boston, Charleston, Portsmouth and elsewhere.

The current crisis for these yards developed largely from the 5 per cent appropriations cut proposed in the Bratton amendment to the postoffice-treasury supply bill. Another cause was the navy department idea of maintaining the American fleet in the Pacific for an indefinite period.

Congressional approval of that cut, opposed by the cabinet lobby, would present the alternatives, according to naval officials, of crippling the fleet through the decommissioning of ships, or reducing the navy's huge shore establishment. The total cut now faced by the navy department is $29,000,000, with $15,000,000 of that due to the Bratton amendment.

Navy Yards Can Take Cut.

Although the navy department on two recent occasions asserted the $29,000,000 cut would cripple defense, through reducing personnel and placing combat ships out of commission, investigation today revealed the blow could be considerably softened through a radical reduction of civilian personnel and a determined clean up of the east coast navy yards. All previous efforts to shut down pork barrel establishments have been frustrated by congressmen representing the districts where they are located.

The navy's first efforts indicated between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 could be saved through closing Charleston, Boston, and Portsmouth navy yards, abandoning the Newport naval training station and closing up several other smaller establishments. An indication of the possible savings through trimming shore activities is disclosed by a study of naval expenditures which show that for the last ten years more money has been spent ashore than afloat.

For the next fiscal year the naval budget calls for the payment of $83,000,000 in wages alone to civilians compared to $98,000,000 for the pay and subsistence for 92,533 enlisted men, officers, and nurses.

The huge shore establishment cost 650 millions and has an estimated value of $400,000,000. On its maintenance more than a billion and a half has been expended.

Although only three yards—those at Philadelphia, New York, and Norfolk—are listed as needed on the east coast by most naval officers, the navy has continued to maintain seven. It also has clung to scores of smaller establishments.

Elimination of all but three would make possible reductions in enlisted as well as civilian personnel without affecting the forces afloat.

In recent months the east coast cities have been embarrassed in their efforts to retain their yards by the fact that all the combat ships were stationed on the west coast. Indications now are that the fleet may be kept in the Pacific for years.

Vinson Tells Position.

Chairman Carl A. Vinson [Dem., Ga.] of the house naval affairs committee led the congressional fight today to take up at least a part of the proposed naval cuts by curtailing activities at surplus navy yards. Mr. Vinson announced he would base his major fight against the Bratton amendment in an attempt to kill it so far as the navy is concerned. That failing, he said he would fight to have the yards at Boston, Charleston, and Portsmouth closed down at once and their work turned over to other yards.

While in some quarters there was a tendency to believe that Mrs. Vinson's announcement was simply a threat, he asserted he would go through with his fight to curtail shore activities. Vinson asserted, however, that if the full 29 million dollar cut was applied to the navy the United States would be reduced to a third rate naval power rating and the army would drop into a still lower class. He added that the cuts would make reductions in both enlisted and civilian naval personnel necessary and force the decommissioning of several additional ships.

For Ten Year Program.

Chairman Vinson reiterated a previous disclosure that he planned to introduce a ten year 560 million dollar warship authorization bill at the beginning of the new congress.

"We must have replacements for the fleet before 1936, or our whole navy will be obsolescent," he asserted. "I propose to spend $56,000,000 annually on new war ships. That is cheap insurance for a country like ours. If necessary, we must cut the shore establishment to get the money to keep the fleet strong afloat."

On the senate side, no immediate support developed for Vinson's plan of forcing the shore station establishments to bear a part of the cuts.

Senator Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.] led the fight to restore the navy's five per cent cut provided by the Bratton amendment. He asserted that the slash, if enacted, would "make it absolutely impossible" for the United States to defend itself in war.

LINCOLN'S 'BOYS' PAY TRIBUTE TO DEPARTED CHIEF

30 G. A. R. Vets Salute Old Battle Flags.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Venerable and venerated as the men who bore them into battle seventy years ago to preserve the Union, the massed banners of the old Board of Trade batteries confronted a double line of "Abe Lincoln's boys" in a poignant ceremony yesterday. Vigorous, snappily uniformed members of the Board of Trade post band of the American Legion raised the flags as the quavering hands in the lines opposite came to salute.

The survivors of the G. A. R. were celebrating the birthday of Lincoln, their former commander-in-chief. There were thirty of them on hand, filling the first two rows of chairs facing the rostrum where President William P. Wright officiated.

Younger Generation Helps.

Beyond the packed Memorial hall in the public library, under the lofty dome of the civil war museum, the world war generation of defenders of the flag helped them to carry on.

Under the rhythmic baton of Armin Hand, conductor, the traditional tunes of Lincoln's day waked every martial echo as the massed band performed for the overflow crowd around them and the capacity audience inside the double doors. From "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again," to the majestic measures of "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory of the Coming of the Lord," and then into the stirring music of "Yankee Doodle," winding up with a crash of drum and cymbals accenting the fortissimo passages. It was a heart warming, spine tingling performance and the crowd demonstrated enthusiastic appreciation.

These troubled times make Lincoln and his problems easier for the average man to understand, Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago chapel, told those present.

Time Aids Understanding.

"The difference between our ability to understand Lincoln and that of those who saw him is that we cannot know what it cost him to go through the crises of his life," he said. "We were not with him when the outcome was uncertain, nor on long nights when he sat alone with a gray shawl around his neck, wondering if good news from the front ever would come. Today we can understand that sort of national situation which confronted Lincoln and out of which he emerged, some time later, a hero."

Three hundred Boy Scouts and Sea Scouts assembled yesterday morning in front of the Lincoln monument at North avenue and Dearborn street, to carry out their custom of placing a wreath in honor of the Emancipator's 124th anniversary. Harry F. Vail, scoutmaster of Troop 871, commanded the gathering. Henry Frentz Jr., Stanley Barr, and Philip Kaiser, one a Sea Scout and the other two Boy Scouts, represented their comrades in placing the wreath.

Dr. E. W. Edlund, a dentist at 101 South 5th avenue, Maywood, yesterday made public a threatening letter received by Lincoln during his lifetime. The letter was obtained by Dr. Edlund a quarter of a century ago in payment of a $12 debt. Until he consulted officials of the Chicago Historical society last week he had not realized its full value. There is some basis for believing it may have been penned by John Wilkes Booth, Lincoln's assassin.

NO SURE method of preventing baldness or re-growing hair was known thirty years ago. Then—men experimented with cure-all remedies which usually did more harm than good. Now—a few old-fashioned men still use their scalps as experimental laboratories for patent remedies and barber-shop treatments. But modern-minded men have learned that baldness can be avoided and hair can be regrown, when proper specialized treatment is administered to the scalp.

Thinking men realize that the science of hair culture has advanced in pace with other scientific discoveries. They know that Thomas treatment offers the most precise, reliable method known to modern science, of overcoming the various types of dandruff, stopping abnormal hair-fall, and re-growing hair on thin or bald spots. $1 does the work of $3

Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs—it goes 3 times as far—gives you 3 times as much for your money and gives you extra protection against sore throat colds. In fighting stubborn colds, remember there really are only two leading kinds of mouth antiseptics on the market. In one group is the mouth antiseptic that must be used full strength to be effective. In the other group is Pepsodent Antiseptic, utterly safe when used full strength, yet powerful enough to be diluted with two parts of water and still kill germs in less than 10 seconds!

Don't fool yourself

It is bad enough to pay the extra cost of using antiseptics that must be used full strength . . . it's worse to dilute them and fail to kill the germs . . . so choose the antiseptic that kills the germs even when it is diluted. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be safe.

WOMAN SUED BY HORNER OFFERS TO MARRY HIM

Insists Gems He Gave Her Were Merely 'Gifts.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 13.—The second act of the tragi-comedy of Sydney Horner, brother of Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, and the beautiful red haired Mrs. Gisela (Gissy) Bakonyi, wife of a bankrupt Hungarian business man, ended today with the possibility of a happy finale in the third act in Paris, where Horner lives in the next few weeks.

Horner charged Mrs. Bakonyi with fraud in obtaining money and jewels from him on the understanding that she would divorce her husband and marry him. Horner's Parisian lawyer Dr. Paul Auer, asked the Budapest court to order Mrs. Bakonyi to return to Horner $10,000 cash and jewels worth $5,000, but the court ruled on Jan. 6 that further investigation was necessary.

Offers to Marry Horner.

Today Mrs. Bakonyi told the investigating judge:

"Mr. Horner did not hand over money and jewels on condition that I marry him. On the contrary, they were gifts."

The judge asked if she is willing to marry Horner, and Mrs. Bakonyi replied, "Absolutely, yes."

The court decided that the police should inform Paris authorities of Mrs. Bakonyi's testimony and await Paris developments. After the hearing Mrs. Bakonyi returned to the home where she is living with her husband.

"I believe now that Mr. Horner does not want to marry me," she said. "Though I am living with my husband now, we are not living as man and wife, merely in Platonic friendship. Further development now rests with Mr. Horner."

Once a Noted Dancer.

Mrs. Bakonyi, who is 32, was a dancer, Gisela Morvay, and with her sister was widely acclaimed in tours of Europe. She became acquainted with Horner while at the Baden health resort, near Vienna, in 1926. Their friendship continued at other cities, notably Paris. Mrs. Bakonyi's husband, once prosperous, failed in 1931.

Renewing her acquaintance with Horner in Paris that year, Mrs. Bakonyi then ostensibly went back to Budapest to get a divorce. Horner's investigation found her living with Bakonyi again after a divorce action had been started and dropped. Horner filed a civil suit, but it was dismissed, and then the fraud charge was instituted. Bakonyi then is said to have offered to give his wife a divorce if Horner would pay him $1,300. Horner alleges that the money and jewels he gave Mrs. Bakonyi amounted to much more than $15,000.

BOARD ORDERS MORTON SCHOOL EXPENSES CUT

Abolishes Jobs, Votes Credit Rating Reform.

On the recommendation of Paul C. Shelley, recently appointed acting superintendent, the board of education of the J. Sterling Morton High school in Cicero, last night authorized sharp cuts in operating expense of the institution. The reductions, it was said, were necessary if the board is to keep within the budget assigned.

Among the economies approved were reduction of $3,200 a month in plant operation; dismissal of twenty of the forty office clerks, and abolition of the office of teacher-clerk. The teacher-clerks, who have performed the duties of substitute teachers, will be dismissed unless they can qualify as regular teachers.

The board also voted to change the system of student credit ratings to conform to the requirements of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary schools, which had insisted on this reform, as well as on the financial retrenchments.

Mr. Shelley expects to save on the plant operation by cutting down the personnel engaged in janitor work and other similar labor. There are about fifteen teacher-clerks. Thirteen were dismissed recently by the acting superintendent without board authorization and were reinstated by the board's order. Permission to discharge those not able to qualify as teachers was regarded as a concession to Mr. Shelley's plea, following the demands made by the North Central association which has threatened the school's status as an accredited institution.

The superintendent said that as soon as the board is able to pay its employes in cash instead of tax warrants he would recommend salary cuts, but would not approve while only tax warrants are available as pay.

The board also decided last night to allow no more meetings in the school auditorium at nights unless a fee of $200 is paid. Under this rule the parent-teacher association of the school will not be able to hold a proposed massmeeting tonight. The trustees said the expense for heating and lighting equaled the $200 fee.

The recent action of the Chicago Suburban league in barring Morton teams form their athletic schedules was sharply criticized yesterday by Mr. Shelley.

"We are going to ask for a hearing," he said. "There was none before our ousting. Four of the six schools in the league voted to toss us out, but the students only did what their principals told them to do. The real leader and sponsor of the ouster ruling was M. R. McDaniel, principal of the Oak Park High school."

TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE IN 2 YEARS—GEDDES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Trans-Atlantic air service within the next two years was predicted by Sir Eric Geddes, chairman of Imperial Airways, on his return to London today from an inspection tour of lines of the South African route.

"There is no reason why every portion of the British empire should not be linked by air within the next two or three years. I hazard the prophecy that in the next two years we will have regular mail services across the Atlantic linking up Canada, and so on across the Pacific to other parts of the British dominions."

Geddes declared that increased traffic on the South African route has compelled reequipment of the entire service with bigger and faster machines. He hopes eventually to reduce the present nine day schedule from London to Cape Town to seven days by means of faster planes and more frequent departures. The sea route requires seventeen days.

VIBRATION JARS TRUCK INTO GEAR; DRIVER KILLED

Andrew P. Kellman, 51 years old, manager of the Reliable Ice and Coal company of Whiting, was crushed to death yesterday when the truck he was using to deliver a load of coal to a Hammond home pinned him against a wall. Kellman had left the engine running while he removed a basement window to unload the coal. Vibration from the motor is believed to have jarred the gears into reverse.

There were no automobile fatalities in Cook county yesterday and the toll for 1933 remained at 99.

HOOVER ASKS U.S. UNITY TO AVERT ECONOMIC WAR

G. O. P. Told Stabilizing of Currencies Is Vital.

stanchly to the gold standard. In the present setting of depreciated currencies and in the light of differences in costs of production our tariffs are below those of most countries; we have held free from quota preferences, discriminations among nations. We have thereby maintained one Gibraltar of stability in the world and contributed to check the movement to chaos.

"We are ourselves now confronted with an unnatural movement of goods from the lowered costs and standards of countries of depreciated currencies, which daily increase our unemployment and our difficulties. We are confronted with discriminatory actions and barriers stifling our agricultural and other markets. We will be ourselves forced to defensive action to protect ourselves unless this mad race is stopped. We must not be the major victim of it all.

Must Break Vicious Circle.

"In all this competition of degeneration, these beginnings of economic war between scores of nations, we see a gradual shrinkage in demand for international commodities throughout the world, and continuing fall of prices in terms of gold. From falling prices and unemployment we have at once the inability of debtors to meet their obligations to their creditors, the dispossession of people from their farms and homes and business.

"If the world is to secure economic peace, if it is to turn in the tide of degeneration, if it is to restore the functioning of the production and distribution system of the world, it must start somewhere to break these vicious fiscal and financial circles.

"I am convinced that the first point of attack is to secure assured greater stability in the currencies of the important commercial nations. Without such stability the continued results of uncertainty, the destruction of confidence by currency fluctuations, exchange controls, and artificial import restrictions cannot be overcome, but will continue to increase. With effective stability of currencies these dangers can be at once relaxed. I am not unaware that currency instability is both a cause and an effect in the vicious cycle—but we must start somewhere."

Where Situation Lies.

After elaborating on the difficulties faced by nations off the gold standard, the President continued:

"Broadly the solution lies in the reestablishment of confidence. That confidence cannot be reëstablished by the abandonment of gold as a standard in the world. So far as the human race has yet developed and established its methods and systems of stable exchange, that solution can only be found now and found quickly through the reëstablishment of gold standards among important nations. The huge gold reserves of the world can be made to function in relation to currencies, standards of value, and exchange.

"And I say with emphasis that I am not proposing this as a favor to the United States. It is the need of the whole world. The United States is so situated that it can protect itself better than almost any country on earth.

"Nor is it necessary from an international point of view that those nations which have been forced off the gold standard shall be again restored to former gold values. It will suffice if it only is fixed. From this source are the principal hopes for restoring world confidence and reversing the growing barriers to the movement of goods, and making possible the security in trade which will again revive a demand for such goods."

Warns of Propaganda.

President Hoover stressed the danger of inflation and then warned of propaganda. He said:

"The question naturally arises whether other nations will coöperate to restore world confidence, stability, and economic peace. In this connection I trust the American people will not be misled or influenced by the ceaseless stream of foreign propaganda that cancellation of war debts would give this international relief and remedy. That is not true. These debts are but a segment of the problem. Their world trade importance is being exaggerated.

"In this respect, I stated some months ago, the American people can well contend that most of the debtor countries have the capacity to raise these annual amounts from their taxpayers, as witness the fact that in most cases the payments to us amount to less than one-third of the military expenditures of each country. But at the same time we can well realize that in some instances the transfer of these sums may gravely disturb their currency or international exchanges.

"But if we are asked for sacrifices because of such injury we should have assurances of coöperation that will positively result in monetary stability and the restoration of world prosperity. If we are asked for sacrifices because of incapacity to pay we should have tangible compensations in restoration of our proportion of their agricultural and other imports.

"The world should have relief from the sore burden of armaments. If they are unwilling to meet us in these fields, this nation, whether you or I like it or not, will be driven by our own internal forces more and more to its own self-containment and isolation, as harmful to the world and as little satisfactory to us as this course may be."

In closing President Hoover said:

"The problem before the world is to restore confidence and hope by the release of the strong, natural forces of recovery which are inherent in this civilization. Civilization is the history of surmounted difficulties.

"We of this world today are of the same strain as our fathers who builded this civilization. They passed through most terrible conflicts. They met many great depressions.

"They created a state of human well being in normal times such as the world has never seen. The next forward step is as great as any in history. It is that we perpetuate the welfare of mankind through the immense objectives of world recovery and world peace."

Lindy Case Captive

[Associated Press Photo.]

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Winning a fight for reduction in the amount of bail demanded, three young defendants charged with attempting to extort $50,000 from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh by threats to kidnap his second son had their hearing before a United States commissioner postponed today until Saturday.

The delay in the hearing, however, was made at request of government counsel on the plea that more time be given for study of handwriting samples taken to Washington.

Even with the lowered bonds, defense counsel said they were not hopeful of obtaining release of Joe Bryant, 19, for whom $5,000 bond is asked, or Norman Harvey, for whom $7,500 is demanded. A $5,000 surety previously posted for Eisle Harvey, Norman's wife, was renewed and she remained at liberty.

United States authorities vigorously objected to lowering the bonds below $10,000, especially for Harvey. Both previously had been held in jail on failure to raise $25,000 bonds set for each. The defense did not object to the continuance.

DUNS HOOVER FOR $30,000 DUE HIM BY U.S.; ARRESTED

Secret Service Men Rush Him from Hotel.

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—After President Hoover had completed his address in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria tonight and retired for a brief rest to his suite on the fourteenth floor of the hotel, a conservatively dressed young man got out of the elevator and approached his door.

The corridor was lined with secret service men and detectives. The intruder was halted and asked where he was going. He replied that he wanted to see the President in order to collect a debt. Thereupon, he was rather roughly hustled back into the elevator and taken to the police station for questioning.

Says U. S. Owes Him $30,382.

There he said that he was Joseph Schoenbach, 30, an electrical contractor of Brooklyn. He said that the United States government had owed him $30,382.09 ever since 1931 for some work he did in connection with the installation of a flood lighting system on the Statue of Liberty. He displayed papers which satisfied the police of his good faith and he was permitted to leave.

Schoenbach told reporters that he had been referred from one department to another in Washington when he sought payment and that he had been told at the treasury that he would have to be patient and eventually he would get his money. But Schoenbach, who explained that he needs the money badly at the present time, did not want to wait.

Gets Promises, No Money.

He interested Representative Sol Bloom of New York in his case and tonight exhibited a facsimile of a letter from the controller general to Mr. Bloom reporting that "payment has been allowed by certificate of settlement and forwarded to the secretary of the treasury for payment." Nevertheless, he was unable to get his money, he said.

Tonight he determined to make a personal plea to President Hoover. He said that he had managed to make his way into the ballroom of the Waldorf and as dinner was breaking up had spoken to the President, who, he said, listened with a friendly air to his story and then replied:

"Remind me about that later."

TRIES 4 HOLDUPS, SHOOTS A VICTIM, LOOT IS NOTHING

A robber who attempted four holdups, in one of which an intended victim was shot, was captured early today by West North avenue police as he was putting a gun to his last victims. He gave his name as Charles Zak, 23 years old, of Berwyn.

Police said that Zak halted Arnold J. Podsade, 24 years old, of 2136 Le Moyne street, at Hoyne and Potomac avenues, but got nothing. A short time later Zak allegedly accosted Peter Lyskawinski, 2129 Potomac avenue, a block away. Lyskawinski resisted and was shot in the thigh during the struggle. Neither attempt netted Zak a cent. Lyskawinski was taken to St. Mary's hospital.

Zak continued on, police said, stopping Chester Zimmerman, 1915 Division street, who also yielded nothing. Then Zak, according to detectives, proceeded until he met Mr. and Mrs. John Grabowski, 1040 Newton street, in front of 1354 North Lincoln street.

He was holding them up when Policemen Bert Kranz and Edward Trunk, notified by radio, arrived. They disarmed Zak and took him to the station. All victims identified him.

Ex-Minister Sues Church Which Fired Him Over Debt

CALGARY, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Civil action against the American Lutheran church in Alberta and Saskatchewan was started today by John Oberhamer of Medicine Hat, Alta., who asks damages of $40,000 for what he describes as "unjust and malicious expulsion from the ministry of the church." Expulsion was caused through nonpayment of a debt owed by Oberhamer, but the minister declares dismissal can not be made on such a charge.

Mayor Asks Cut for Self; Council Boosts Its Pay

Mayor Peter Petersen of Waukegan proposed to the city council last night that his $3,700 annual salary and the $2,700 salaries of the city clerk and the city treasurer be reduced 15 per cent. The aldermen not only turned down this proposal, but they voted to raise their own pay from $3 each per meeting to $5.

CHARGES COURT REMOVED PART OF TRIAL RECORD

Attorney William F. Waugh yesterday asked the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to command Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell of Indianapolis, to reinstate parts of the record of the trial of James F. Huteson, Indianapolis real estate dealer, which are alleged to be missing. Huteson was sentenced to seven years in Leavenworth and fined $4,000 for using the mails to defraud in the sale of Indianapolis subdivision lots.

The petition of Attorney Waugh charged that Judge Baltzell "made improper and prejudicial remarks in the presence of the jury" during the trial of Huteson. These remarks, the petition said, have been removed from the bill of exceptions, or altered so that "in its present form the bill of exceptions does not fairly present for review the questions involved in the case." The motion was set for hearing on Feb. 23. Huteson is at liberty in bond pending the outcome of his appeal.

FRENCH DEPUTIES VOTE TO SPREAD BURDEN OF TAXES

Also Aim at Reduction of Government Pay Rolls.

BY EDWARD TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 13.—After a session lasting since 9 o'clock yesterday morning, with only an hour's recess for lunch today, the French chamber of deputies tonight voted confidence in the government, 359 to 235. By the vote the chamber approved the government's financial project to balance the budget. The project provides for economies and new taxes totaling $210,480,000. The measure now goes to the senate, where a bitter battle is expected.

Chief milestones of the 37 hour session were acceptance of an 18 per cent cut in military appropriations and a surtax of from 2 to 10 per cent on public and private salaries which have not been reduced in the last two years. This latter is aimed at cutting government pay rolls. The vote on the tax was 312 for and 280 against.

Increase Number of Taxpayers.

The new bill is expected to add quite a large number of taxpayers to the present meager list in France.

The tax burden now falls on a remarkably small percentage of the population, figures just issued on 1931 collections show, and the weight of taxes imposed on the biggest industries is so great that in many cases it far exceeds their gross profits for the year.

Almost half of the taxable persons in France—heads of families, etc.—are exempt, while only a few hundred thousand of the farm population are even inscribed on the tax books.

8,000,000 Adults Exempt.

There are 10,000,000 taxpayers inscribed on the books and 8,000,000 eligible adults are exempt. Of those actually paying taxes, 2,571,750 paid a total of $91,000,000.

Out of this total 196,870 taxpayers, or 7.6 per cent of those making payments, accounted for 88 per cent of the revenue received, paying 2,015,249,800 francs. (A franc is worth 3.9 cents.) This 7.6 per cent includes all persons who declared an income of 50,000 francs—$2,000—in 1931.

Carrying the figures still further, only 58,842 out of 2,571,750 taxpayers declared an income of $4,000. This 2.3 per cent of the taxpayers accounted for 1,744,641,800 francs, or 76 per cent of the total.

Taxes on Wages.

The above figures include taxes on all incomes. In 1931, 1,980,545 persons paid taxes on wages and salaries, accounting for 955,495,800 francs of the government's income, but of this sum 3 per cent—60,214 persons—declaring annual salaries higher than $2,000 paid 379,230,000 francs, or 40 per cent of the total for this division.

Individuals paying taxes on industrial and commercial profits in 1931 numbered 803,248, and these paid 3,485,116,700 francs to the government —approximately 140,000,000 — and of these 56,154, or 7 per cent, paid 68 per cent of the total government revenue from this source.

Revenue figures from incomes of persons engaged in liberal professions showed that in 1931 there were only 61,748 in this category taxable, and of these only 9,296 paid taxes in incomes exceeding $2,000.

Farmers Grant Low Yield.

Statistics on taxes from farmers are particularly eloquent. There were only 319,015 farmers inscribed on the tax books in 1931, the minimum for this category being $100 a year. Of these only 247,030 earned more than $320, while only 1,105 farmers in all France paid taxes on incomes of $2,000 or more. Revenue from farmers amounted to one-thirteenth of that from wage earners and 47 times less than industrial and commercial incomes.

The enormous tax burden placed on France's biggest industries is shown by figures for seven of them. Kulmann, the biggest chemical and dye firm in Europe, declared 25,370,000 francs in gross profits for 1931, while it had to pay the government 30,000,000 francs in taxes. The chemical firm of Pechiney paid 36,840,000 francs in taxes, a burden of 10,000,000 francs in excess of its gross revenue.

Others Hit Hard.

A third large chemical industry, Anzin, earned 26,700,000 gross in 1931 and paid 25,367,000 of it in taxes. The steel firm of Lens showed gross profits of 28,260,000 francs and paid 24,817,000 francs to the government.

In the case of the Sarre et Moselle Mining company, the gross profit amounted to only about 60 per cent of the 1931 tax bill, the latter being 24,656,000 francs against profits of 15,500,000 francs. The Mines de la Loire fared much worse, earning 1,975,000 francs and paying 5,086,000 francs in taxes.

FOUR OFFICIALS OF CLOSED BANK ARE INDICTED

Jacksonville, Ill., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Indictments charging larceny by bailee and embezzlement were returned by the grand jury here today against four former officials of the closed Ayers National bank. It was reported the grand jury investigation heard charges that the bank officers misused funds of the Illinois college and the city of Jacksonville.

The bank, controlled by former State Auditor Andrew Russell and M. F. Dunlap, had deposits of $8,000,000 and was one of the largest financial institutions in central Illinois. The officials indicted today are M. F. Dunlap, president; W. G. Goebel, cashier; Harry C. Clement, vice president; and Edward M. Dunlap, vice president. The bank was closed last Nov. 22.

Jeopardized by Crash.

The financial condition of the Illinois college, which is 100 years old, was seriously jeopardized by the bank crash. The investigation revealed that $295,000 of a $500,000 lifetime endowment fund had been pledged for loans by bank officials. The funds were in possession of Mr. Goebel, treasurer of the college.

The city of Jacksonville had $148,000 on deposit in the bank. It was charged that Mr. Clement, who was city treasurer as well as vice president of the bank, turned this sum over to M. F. Dunlap without the authority of the mayor.

Other funds on deposit in the bank included $32,000 belonging to the Illinois Knights of Pythias and a smaller sum belonging to the William Jennings Bryan Memorial association. Mr. Bryan was a graduate of Illinois college.

Bonds Are Set at $25,000.

Bonds for M. F. Dunlap and Goebel were set at $25,000 each. They are accused of larceny by bailee and embezzlement. Clement is charged with withholding funds and embezzlement. Edward Dunlap is accused of withholding funds. Another indictment charged M. F. Dunlap with aiding in concealing stolen goods and withholding funds.

It was also revealed by the investigation that a $100,000 fund belonging to the six school districts of Jacksonville township, of which Edward Dunlap was treasurer, had been misused.

SOVIET OIL WELL RUNNING WILD; 80,000 BRLS. A DAY

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Feb. 13.—What is believed to be nearly the world's record oil gusher is now spouting in the new field of Nehtedaga, near Ashkubad, on the soviet-Persian frontier southeast of the Caspian sea, at a rate of 80,000 barrels a day. The gusher was brought in two weeks ago, when it hurled a torrent of 60,000 barrels daily to a height of seventy-five yards. Efforts to cap it were ineffective and the flow increased, overwhelming the local storage facilities and causing grave danger of fire. Tank cars, technicians, and special equipment are being rushed from adjoining fields.

"34 days without a Run—"

I WAS "UNLUCKY" with stockings. Always getting runs. Especially when I had a date. Embarrassing? Yes, and mighty expensive! Runs kept me poor. Then . . .

"IT'S NOT LUCK," a friend said. "Rubbing stockings with cake soap often causes runs. It destroys the elasticity of the silk so it breaks, instead of giving. Listen—

"YOU CAN cut runs 75% by washing stockings the Lux way. It saves elasticity." Now I use only Lux for stockings. And this pair has worn 34 days without a run or a hole!

The LUX Way to Save Elasticity

Wash this 2-minute way:
1. One teaspoon of Lux for each pair.
2. Add lukewarm water, squeeze suds through, rinse twice.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens threads, fades color. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

This year you will investigate before you place your automobile insurance

In the old days we took our insurance purchases lightly. This year it is different. We want to know all about the policy we are taking out—and we insist upon getting detailed financial statements.

Because of this trend, we know that you will take the time to read and to study the auditor's report of the finances of the Inter-Insurance Exchange of the Chicago Motor Club. This remarkable statement proves that when you place your insurance with the "exchange" you have provided yourself with protection in an organization of financial stability.

WILLIAM C. KIRBY & CO.
Certified Public Accountants
Advisory Board.
Inter-Insurance Exchange of the Chicago Motor Club.

Pursuant to your instructions we have audited the accounts of the Inter-Insurance Exchange of the Chicago Motor Club for the year ended December 31, 1932, and have prepared the attached Balance Sheet as at the date above stated.

The securities on hand have been valued at their respective market values as at the date of the Balance Sheet and the liability in respect to Unearned Premiums on policies in force has been verified by us.

The Reserve for Claims in litigation and in process of liquidation is, in our opinion, greater than the ultimate liability that will eventually be paid in respect thereto.

The Operations for the year ended December 31, 1932, disclose a net profit, after providing for all known contingencies, of $596,425.32 and the Net Worth of $2,227,290.20 represents a margin of security which guarantees adequate protection to Policyholders.

We hereby certify, subject to the foregoing comments, that the attached Balance Sheet conservatively reflects the financial condition of the Inter-Insurance Exchange of the Chicago Motor Club as at December 31, 1932, together with the earnings for the year ended thereon.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM C. KIRBY & COMPANY,
Certified Public Accountants.

We call your attention to several items in the certified public accountant's report. You will note that securities are listed according to their market value as of December 31, 1932. Secondly, you will see that we have provided a larger reserve for claims than even prudence would dictate; we have made assurance doubly sure. Finally, and most important, you will observe that the "exchange" shows a net profit of $596,425.32 and, to quote the auditors, "the net worth of $2,227,290.20 represents a margin of security which guarantees adequate protection to policyholders."

When you insure your car with the "exchange" you are buying protection from a financially sound institution and, among other features, you are reaping the benefit of the "valued form policy." Would you like to know what this feature means to you in dollars and cents? Would you like to know how you can procure maximum protection at minimum expense? Would you like to know something of the record of the "exchange" for paying claims satisfactorily and quickly? The experience of friends and neighbors of yours will prove interesting.

KIDNAPING.

The wave of emotion which swept over the nation because of the Lindbergh tragedy did not sweep away the crime of kidnaping. It subsided inevitably after producing a few new laws. The business enterprise they were intended to discourage, if not abolish, seems about as active as before. The latest stroke, at the moment of this writing, is the kidnaping of a young man, said to be wealthy, in Denver. The news reports crime after crime of this kind, to say nothing of the related crime of extortion. In spite of the indignation and horror raised by the Lindbergh kidnaping there has been little if any letup.

The reason is that the law has not made itself felt. No one was punished for the Lindbergh murder. Few kidnapers have been caught and conspicuously treated to an adequate punishment, which would be prompt execution. Until there is fear of swift and reasonably certain justice, kidnaping will not be checked.

Yet kidnaping is a crime which efficient police service would quickly discourage. It is not a crime of impulsive passion. It requires planning and concerted action. It involves knowledge by more than one and the danger of observation by perhaps many. It requires the transportation and hiding of a living person, a very difficult and hazardous thing in a settled region, where means of communication and publicity are plentiful. The Lindbergh case does not teach the improbability or difficulty of discovery. It teaches the incompetence or worse of the agencies of discovery. A successful kidnaping implies incompetence and worse. It implies complicity with lawlessness in general if not in the particular case. It is more likely to involve the latter. Kidnaping, like bombing, is a collective affair, and efficient, loyal police service, with prompt and severe action by the courts, will suppress it.

Are the police and the courts in Denver members of the kidnaping ring?

AGE IN COMMAND.

The death of Field Marshal Sir William Robertson at seventy-two may be taken as occasion for some serious meditation by the makers of military policies and programs. Robertson was an able man, who worked his way up from the bottom to the top of the military hierarchy against heavy odds of social and official caste. But he arrived at high responsibility too late for the highest efficiency of which he was capable. He was 54 in 1914 and 58 when chief of the general imperial staff in 1918. By that time quick adjustability to novel and changing conditions was not easy. The vividness of perception and the nervous vigor required to make quick and sweeping readjustments do not belong to the late fifties in any normal man. Custom and dogmatic formulas are almost certain to be too strong to resist. At best they retard decision when instant and daring decision is essential.

A British military writer has recently asked why so many of their old generals stick on like limpets and he asserts that in this situation the future of Britain is at stake.

His thesis is a sound one—namely: that war is a young man's game, that it calls for great physical endurance even in generals who live in comfortable quarters far away from the battle front. He says that during the long stalemate on the western front elderly generals living in their chateaux were able to hang on, although they were not strong enough to go in person to the front and planned or approved operations without knowing enough about combat conditions. The case of the offensive at Paschaendaele is cited as a tragic example and we recall that Liddell-Hart or perhaps another critic of generalship in the late war told how a member of the high staff which had ordered the Paschaendaele advance burst into tears when, after the bloody failure, he visited the front and saw for himself the physical conditions which had foredoomed the assault.

Of two chief commanders of the British expeditionary force in August, 1914, Grierson died suddenly on a train on the way to the front. A successor was hastily appointed, which resulted in unfortunate friction at a moment when harmony was of greatest importance. The chief of staff collapsed during the retreat.

Surveying the present situation, the writer says that, unsatisfactory as the situation was in 1914, it is worse today. The eight generals and one field marshal holding high positions average 63. In 1914 it was 58. Including the 20 lieutenant generals the average age is about 60. In 1914 it was 57. Out of 12 generals or lieutenant generals to whom active command was intrusted at the beginning of hostilities, 9 broke down or were relieved.

At present the commanders of the five expeditionary force divisions average 57 and the youngest is 10 years older than the youngest in 1914. (Twenty major generals in our army average 56.) Yet the army is being mechanized and "prepared for swift moving warfare where generals would not be able to nurse their strength under the conditions of 'chateau' command."

The most impressive part of the article is its comparison of the ages of great commanders with that of the present time. Napoleon was 26 when he won his classic Italian campaign. Xenophon was under 30 when he led the "immortals" in their great retreat. Alexander was 25 at the peak of his military career. Hannibal was 30 when he invaded Italy, and at 46, a worn man, he was beaten by Scipio, 35. Gustavus Adolphus was in his early 30s when he organized and commanded what is called the first modern army. The great Condé was only 22 at his victory of Rocroi. Wellington was under forty when he saved Portugal from the French, and Frederick the Great just over forty when he won his greatest victories. Turning to America, this writer cites "Stonewall" Jackson, 38 at the time of his brilliant Shenandoah valley campaign, and he says that while many of our generals were older men they fell by the wayside under service conditions and by the end of the war the best corps commanders were in their early thirties. So were most of Napoleon's marshals.

Of course there are exceptions. Joffre was 62 in 1914 and Foch 63. Hindenburg was 67. But Grant was only 41 when he took Vicksburg and Sherman 43 in that great year of '63. Lee was 59.

There can be no doubt that war puts such a strain on the physique and morale of commanders that only young, sound and vigorous men should be put in command. But this is not enough. In time of peace, when youthful minds and energies are needed if progress and sound preparedness are to be assured, age should not be permitted to hold to the higher responsibilities, blocking the advancement of younger men. The army and navy are bureaucracies, with the defects of bureaucracies, their devotion to routine, their inhospitality to experiment, their dislike of change. It is youth that has the creative ideas as well as the vigor to apply them. Older men live largely in the past, and there is a tremendous amount of unnecessary sacrifice and victory imperiled through the necessity of getting rid of commanders unable to recognize or adjust their ideas and methods to new conditions. The late war, and probably every war, teaches this lesson in blood. But governments have not learned it.

NEW POWER FOR THE PRESIDENT.

Probably the last thing an American congress could be expected to consider, much less to do, would be to surrender the authority to maintain the departments of government. Nevertheless, astonishing as it may be, the Washington reports are that there is more than a fair chance that Mr. Roosevelt will be given powers of eminent domain which he will be free to use to cut down federal government structure.

It may be that the lame duck congress, from which so many members will depart next month to return to private life, is more in a mood to make this surrender than will be found the case when the new congress moves in. The new body will have many members fresh, as they used to say, from the people. Many of them gave numerous pledges to the least reasonable demands and least desirable wishes of their constituents. The old members who go out made their statement of intention, which, coupled with the record of their party or their personal record, was stamped with the disapproval of their voters. They were defeated on what had been done. The new members were elected on what they promised to do and on the expectations the voters have of getting benefits from a change.

It must be remembered, however, that the victorious party pledged itself in convention to a reduction of federal expenditures, criticizing the Republican administration for not having done what the new administration is thus pledged to accomplish. Therefore whatever indiscreet promises individual newcomers may have made to their constituents, the party pledge binding on the new administration is for an economy not heretofore undertaken by the federal government.

Mr. Roosevelt, when he is inaugurated as President, has this pledge, among others, to redeem. It has been pointed out as obvious that it is a one man job. Inasmuch as the obligation is to eliminate the costly, dictatorial, usurpatory powers of a government grown beyond the ability of the citizen to pay for it, or to stand the consequences of what it does, a centralization of authority looking toward a diminution of evil cannot be regarded as an unwise experiment in democratic representative government.

If the country were asked to permit the executive to take the place of the legislature in creating new forms of government, in establishing new bureaus and departments, in using federal funds without legislative authorization, in other words, to create government, the unwisdom, the positive danger of it, would be apparent to every one. But such is not the case. What is proposed is that the surest means of reducing an evil be adopted as the only one which has much chance of success. If it is true that either the present or the next congress is in a mood to take such a step, this may be regarded as the brightest prospect the country has yet seen in its difficulties. It can be assumed that a decision cannot be made by the members of congress. There the exposure to influence is too wide open. Responsibility cannot be fastened upon any one individual, and consequently all of these individuals collectively can escape it. Each one can pass the buck. All can disclaim responsibility. The expected consequence must be failure. The entrenched bureaucracy will protect itself. The appropriations will not be cut. The activities of government will not be reduced. The federal dictatorship will not be overthrown.

Now, Mr. Roosevelt, if granted the power to make good the pledges of his party to relieve his country of its intolerable federal government and the taxpayer of the burden he can no longer carry, the business man of an interference against which he can no longer work, may find the undertaking a terrific one. Nevertheless, if he has the strength of will and the determination of purpose to do it, he will earn himself a place among the great American Presidents. It will be the chance of a lifetime for an American President to do a patriotic deed. We believe that the people of the country would applaud such a bit of statesmanship and give it their sincere and profound approval. We believe that the people would have a feeling of gratitude for the man bold enough to save them from consequences from which they see no other escape.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Ret. Ed.

"OH, IF LINCOLN were only here today!" was the theme of most of the Lincoln speeches on his birthday last Sunday. And next week comes George Washington's birthday and the addresses will contain many fervent wishes that George Washington was only leading the nation again. And the same thing happens when Tom Jefferson's birthday rolls around. But when they were here in the flesh and at the head of the government they had to dodge about as many brickbats as do our present day statesmen. The ideal arrangement would be for a great man to stay dead a hundred years and then come back. By that time we would have learned to appreciate him and we would meet him with a tumultuous outburst of joy. He ought to beat it back to the grave, though, that night. By the next morning we'd commence to say his spelling was bad and that he had no comprehension of present conditions.

OLD HOUSE ON THE SEA.

All a housewifely finger finds pursuing dust
Upon high shelves
Is brine;
And in the round hard pincushions
(Red covered over with a net of white)
The needles stick with rust:
And hinges whine;
And in among the walls
Storms long spent
Make their sad moan at night.

But in the morning
Canvas shoes set out on sills
Whiten and dry,
And through the upflung windows press
Green sea, blue sky,
And children bang doors, run through the hall,
Charge the steep stair:
"See our shells, mother!" they cry—
Feet brown and bare,
Sand in their yellow hair.

HA! HA! IT'S TRUE THEN! It's true. "But the sunshine aye shall light the sky, as round and round we run; and the Truth shall ever come uppermost; and Justice shall be done." Feeding a person spinach has been set down as "extreme cruelty" and Jow Brady, out in Sacramento, has accordingly filed suit for divorce. Certainly spinach is extreme cruelty. The Apaches used to scalp their victims and tie 'em to trees and throw tomahawks at their ears and make 'em run the gantlet. But even the Apaches wouldn't make their captives eat spinach for thirty days. All right! Remember this, you spinach cookers—you may get away with it for a long time, BUT Justice shall be done!

STILL CANDOR compels us to record that the dietary value of spinach has been demonstrated to a certain extent. A boy out in Los Angeles who had swallowed an open pocketknife and whose life was despaired of was given copious quantities of spinach, coarse vegetables and shredded cotton until the knife was safely removed. Which removes our prejudice against spinach. We will eat liberally of it whenever we have swallowed an open jackknife.

THE STUDENTS at the state university of Indiana and other colleges down that way are protesting shrilly to the legislature against the bill now pending making hitch hiking a felony. The collegians say they hitch hike back and forth to their homes over the week-ends. All right, let it be understood then that the kind hearted autoist who gives the merry students free rides drive right into the football grounds of the state university at any big game without paying at the gate. Will he see the football game? He will see only the inside of somebody's jail. Why, why, we ask again, is the sucker who drives a car expected to be an eleemosynary institution? We'll bite first; why IS the sucker who drives a car expected to be an eleemosynary institution?

THE DANCERS.

Stamping and stepping in copper,
in blue and in green, beating together the flat and the brassy cymbals, unchanging of face and constantly changing in pattern, ten wrists to the right,
ten wrists to the left,
and ten faces,
they are the dancers who swing the bright folds of their skirts, virgin in body, these dancers, who step there in patterns of blue and of green and of copper to beating of cymbals.

Virgin in body, they, swinging their bright satin skirts, but never in soul
who,
knowing the pace and the turning, weave and then unweave designs and all intricate patterns, stepping deliberately to the flat crashing of cymbals.

"THE ABILITY TO PERFORM public service," says Mr. Farley, "is the only test for jobs in the Roosevelt régime." And now, Mr. Farley, will you please put that bromide right back in our cannery where you got it? The Republicans have made us enough trouble stealing that thing every chance they got and we thought we had it locked away so that it wouldn't be taken any more. Put it back at once, Mr. Farley, and we hope this time to seal it up and hide it so that it cannot be taken out again.

OH, TAXES, of all degrees and kinds, wilt thou be my Valentine? You take everything I make, this is my only chance for a break. R. H. L.

GIVING BABY A START.

NEARLY twenty years ago Dr. Truby King told America that New Zealand had a baby death rate as low as 50. This gave us a mark to shoot at. Having delivered his message he went on to Great Britain to stir that nation up on the same subject. In the intervening years we have reached the New Zealand standard of that period. Meanwhile the momentum of the South Pacific islanders has carried them to a still better level.

So far as the latter half of the first year of life is concerned we can leave our undertaking to the force of the momentum under which it now is. The education of parents and the improved customs of and habits of the people would continue the gain in standards of health of babies over six months old even were all governmental agencies to take their hands off.

The great problem remaining is the baby and mother in childbirth and for several months before and one month after that event. For several years Dr. S. Maurer and other men working in this field have advocated some changes in the diet of pregnant women as a measure for protecting the health of parturient women and babies a month old and less. The Illinois health department ventured a short distance in this field two years ago.

Drs. M. I. Balfour and S. K. Talpade, on the basis of practical clinical work in India, support the point of view. Anything that can dent the infant welfare problem in India should be equal to putting America and New Zealand on Easy street. They have been feeding wheat germ to mothers during the last half of pregnancy and during lactation and giving it to bottle fed babies with their milk.

Wheat germ is rich in proteins and a part of the contention is that we have not been feeding pregnant women enough meat, milk, and other proteins. It is also rich in those vitamins that have to do with bearing virile children. These vitamins help newly born babies to get a hold on life. Babies that do not get them have a tendency to fade out on slight provocation or none that can be determined. They do not act as though they had come to stay.

Another suggestion, made by Dr. A. L. Mudaiar, also of India, is that one way to prevent puerperal sepsis is to give women who are soon to become mothers more fish liver oils and more foods rich in vitamins D and A. They need foods of this type just before and just after bringing children into the world. A sufficiency of such, either as food or as medicine, increases their resistance to the bacteria which cause childbed fever. Within limits such sources of vitamins help an infected woman to whip the bacteria that assail her.

SHE NEEDS NEGLECT.

Mrs. M. E. G. writes: My 3 year old daughter is a very nervous child and a poor sleeper, but still she is well. After a very busy day she usually gets cross about 5 p. m. and, if corrected, loses her temper and holds her breath. When she comes to she seems exhausted. There is no sign of epilepsy.

REPLY.

Probably your child is quite normal physically but is now suffering from the effects of faulty training. The parents may be nervous, and she may have inherited her instability. However, it is probable that association with nervous parents and faulty training are the two principal factors.

You can break her of her breath holding tantrums by throwing cold water in her face when she indulges. This treatment should have been started early, but it is not too late for a cure. Could you put her in an institution where there are many children, or in the home of some relative where there are several children of about her age? A good dose of children is the best medicine for her. She needs neglect. A good dose of that ranks with cold water and a large family as a cure.

NECK DEVELOPER.

L. writes: I am 29 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, weigh 155 pounds, and married. I am developed enough through the hips and the abdomen. What exercises could I use to develop chest and neck muscles?

REPLY.

Carrying weights on the head stands at the top of the list. Rowing, swimming, wrestling, gymnasium work on the bars. Lie on the back and raise the body from the floor.

MAY NEED OPERATION.

J. B. writes: I have two slight puffs on my head above the nose that appear to be wens. How can I get rid of them?

REPLY.

If they are wens they can be removed by operation, but not otherwise.

WINTER ITCH.

A. M. B. writes: I am hastening to give a cure for the winter itch, which I read in your column a year ago. I tried it and it proved a cure. The formula is two-thirds lime water and one-third glycerin. Mine cost 15 cents and relief came in the first application.

OWNER MUST REMOVE.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—[Friend of the People.]—Directly in front of our home and between the street and the sidewalk there is a tall poplar tree which is endangering our sewer and water pipes. We would like to cut down the tree, but there is a live street wire running close to the trunk of the tree. The tree, if cut down, will be replaced with a more suitable one. J. M.

I beg to advise that our inspector reports that this is a live tree, causing sewer trouble. Since it is alive it can be removed only at the expense of the owner and we have issued him a permit accordingly.

WALTER WRIGHT,
Supt. Parks, Recreation, and Aviation.

PERSONAL INJURY.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have an aunt in Milwaukee who, while employed in a shoe factory, cut her finger and contracted blood poisoning, disabling her for four months. She returned to work and worked a week and a half, when she was laid off. Since then the poison has returned and she has been unable to work since. At the time she received $12 a week. She is 52 years old. 1. How much does the compensation law of Wisconsin allow a party so injured? 2. What action could be taken in a case like this? 3. What length of time does the law allow in which to take some sort of action? 4. Can a lawyer from Chicago take a case in Wisconsin? D. J. S.

1. Depends on whether the injury is deemed permanent and on the extent to which the claimant is disabled.
2. Employ an attorney.
3. Section 102.12 of the Wisconsin statutes requires that the employé give notice within thirty days after he knows the nature of his disability, and that he apply to the commission within two years.
4. Yes.

INSURANCE BENEFICIARY.

Aledo, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a person makes out insurance in favor of a friend, naming that friend as a relation when actually no relationship exists, can such a policy be contested or would such a person receive the benefit? 2. If the above could be contested, then please advise the proper manner to make out an insurance so that a friend who is not a relative will receive the benefit. L. D.

1. If the identity of the person is sufficiently made clear and if it does not appear that the testator intended the gift to be conditional upon the existence of the relationship then the gift should stand.
2. Describe the beneficiary correctly. If the insurance is of the character that requires a relationship then do not try to give it to a person who is not related.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 14, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—At today's cabinet meeting President Wilson and his advisers decided that practical steps to protect American ships against German submarine attacks must be taken immediately. What these measures will be was not definitely determined, but it is evident that the administration favors arming American liners and merchantmen to meet U-boat attacks. The activity at the Brooklyn navy yard, where all the surplus naval guns are being gathered from interior points, also leads to this belief. Admiral Usher is reported to have sent inspectors to measure American ships in New York harbor for armament. The final decision in this matter lies with the President and it is understood the developments in the U-boat zone will govern his course of action. In fact, today's deliberations were construed as a preliminary step in meeting the "overt act" by the kaiser's sea forces that may widen the gulf between Berlin and Washington toward an actual state of war. The cabinet decided that the President should take whatever steps he deems necessary, and that if additional authority be required the executive should lay the matter before congress.

LONDON.—The White Star liner Afric, 12,000 tons, was sunk by a German submarine. Five persons were killed and seventeen of the crew are missing. The pilot and 144 of the crew have been landed. Lloyd's, in reporting the loss of the biggest submarine victim since the new submarine war began on Feb. 1, does not state the location of the disaster nor is the fate of the remainder of those on board made known, but it is presumed they have been landed. It is not known if there were any Americans on board or whether the liner was warned before being sent to the bottom. In addition to the Afric, U-boats sank three other vessels yesterday, two British and one Norwegian.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—With the farewells of intimate friends in the diplomatic corps and in private life ringing in his ears, Count Johann H. von Bernstorff, former German ambassador, left Washington on his journey to Berlin. A farewell reception was held by Count and Countess Bernstorff and members of the German embassy staff in the room at Union station occupied by the President when he makes journeys by train. This reception was confined to close friends and fellow diplomats. In an interview to newspaper men Count von Bernstorff said: "I hope that war may be averted and that the old friendly relations between the United States and Germany may soon be restored."

WAR SUMMARY.—London reports continued advances in Mesopotamia and that the Turks have been hemmed in at the Dahrs bend of the Tigris river west of Kut. Constantinople admits a defeat at this point. Berlin reports dense fog has limited fighting on the western front. Paris reports the repulse of Germans in Alsace and destructive fires against the foe between the Oise and the Aisne. London says repeated attacks in the Somme region were repulsed. Berlin says German troops took by storm important enemy positions on the Cerna in Macedonia. Paris reports renewed artillery activities in this sector and successful raids by the British near Doiran.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the army, was furnished with a statement of the existing revolution in Cuba as a first step toward preparations by the war department for possible intervention. Five thousand or more American troops will be dispatched to Cuba if we intervene. The revolt is regarded as serious. The new elections in the province of Santa Clara tomorrow are expected to bring the difficulties to a head.

DETROIT, Mich.—Marjorie Delbridge, the white ward of "Mammy" Camilla Jackson, has been found here. She says she was well treated while away from Chicago. The girl, who was taken away from her black mammy and given into the custody of Mrs. Louis Brock of 6326 Cornell avenue, shortly afterward disappeared. In an interview she said she had been hiding in Detroit and a nearby Canadian town ever since she had been kidnaped in Chicago. Marjorie was found at the bungalow of Mrs. Enoch Taylor, 191 Garfield avenue, in the old east side residential section of Detroit. Mrs. Taylor is a middle aged colored woman, a close friend of Camilla "Mammy" Jackson.

NEW YORK.—Anxiety is being expressed for the White Star liner Adriatic, the largest passenger vessel now in service. The Adriatic sailed from here eleven days ago with a rich cargo of munitions. It should have been at Liverpool Feb. 12. G. W. Udriger, an American, of San Francisco, was among its forty-four passengers.

CONGRESSIONAL IRRESPONSIBILITY.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—I want to compliment THE TRIBUNE on the articles which it published on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week on what is being done in Washington, D. C., to reduce government expense. When 41 of 435 of the governing body meet to pass on such important matters as these appropriation bills, and then shove through the appropriations without the reduction that there should be after all of congress' talk about reducing expenses, it certainly is a most serious indictment of the way our government is run.

If all of the newspapers of the country would do as you are doing, and publish the facts, possibly the folks at home would awaken to a realization that it's time to put the pressure on their representatives at Washington. It hasn't been so long ago that the government was telling the wholesale grocer and the retail grocer how important it was for him to adjust his business to meet changing conditions, and also that it was necessary for him to reduce his expenses within his income. During that time government expense has been steadily increased and its income decreased, and yet what has the government itself done to cut down the expense to meet the corresponding cut in revenue?

It certainly does make one's blood boil to note the strenuous efforts that are being made to raise more taxes to balance the budget and nothing being done to balance the budget by reducing expense, which is absolutely the only sensible and sane thing to do.

I notice that when a certain congressman introduced a resolution to cut the pay of the members of congress he got only one vote for the resolution besides his own. I certainly am in favor of our lawmakers being paid a fair wage, but there are a lot of them in congress who, before they became members, were struggling lawyers tickled to death if they made $1,500 to $2,500 a year, and from some of the nonsensical legislation put through by some of these members the good Lord knows they would be highly paid at $2,500. We of the Illinois Wholesale Grocers' association are certainly disappointed and disgusted at the progress being made in Washington.

HARRY C. GORIN,
President, Illinois Wholesale Grocers' association.

SERVICE IN WASHINGTON.

Appleton, Wis., Feb. 8.—Please accept sincere congratulations from your many readers in this vicinity on your articles by Messrs. Arthur Sears Henning and John Herrick. They are very pat. We look forward to additional enlightenment and hope that it may be possible to include the names of such of our representatives as deem their work important enough to be personally present at the sessions. We voters are going to be in a pretty good position to demand service with this information at our elbow.

GEORGE H. BECKLEY.

ART CRITICISM.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—Permit me to compliment THE TRIBUNE on its excellent and sincere comments on art by Eleanor Jewett. It is a rare privilege to find a newspaper critic who writes what she really thinks without fear and without partiality.

Can't you give the art world more space? I should welcome a daily column.

ELISABETH HASELTINE,
Instructor in Art, University of Chicago.

A REGRETTED OMISSION.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—Why not give a little credit where credit is due? As concerns the recent blizzard and cold wave you mention all outdoor workers with the exception of the mail carrier. My milk delivery was late, my bread also, but my mail was delivered promptly and on time; so why not a little word to the unsung heroes, the mail carriers?

EDWARD WEISMAN.

WELCOMING PARTIES.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—The one thing of prime importance to relieve unemployment and improve the operating rate of industry is to drastically cut federal taxes. Contrary to prelection promises, it must be evident to everybody that no real cut is in contemplation by congress.

Eventually the people themselves in every country run it—when they get mad enough—and a lot of them must have about reached this point. While congress is in session the various gentlemen in Washington apparently don't think it worth while to pay attention to the people who elected them. But when congress adjourns they will be coming back to their various districts and sections to live. How about the people where they reside getting up a little party to welcome them home? The plan of welcome I leave to them. Various plans might be used. If some of these worthy gentlemen knew such a welcome was being planned for them, do you suppose they would be so darn ready to vote appropriations for every useless bureau and department, or would they suddenly show a little more zeal toward cutting taxes, the biggest single job they have?

L. W. HOSKINS.

PEASANTRY.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Philip Kinsley's article quoting Brig. Gen. F. C. Boiles "Plan for Retreat to the Land" in this morning's TRIBUNE might have been entitled "The First Step toward American Peasantry," because that is exactly what it would mean if carried out to any considerable extent.

So long as the American standard of living is maintained it will be utterly impossible for farms of the size Gen. Boiles suggests to produce sufficient income to support more than a niggardly sort of existence. Farming now is done by machines, and the individual farm must be of a size which will support mechanical equipment capable of making production cost economical as well as to produce sufficient volume for gross income. This cannot be done on ten or twenty acre tracts, except where high yield, intensive crops are grown, and there is little market for these.

Individuals taking Gen. Boiles' advice would have to resort to hand methods, and the best they could expect would be mere subsistence. That means peasantry.

Prof. J. B. Kelley of the Kentucky College of Agriculture recently told a convention of farmers at Lexington, Ky., that "if modern farm machinery were wiped out overnight 80 million of our people would have to go back on the soil and begin their daily grind for food."

Certainly there must be some other way out for the unemployed than to ship them to the country to begin a lifetime of poverty with all the attendant ills which would fall on society at large.

H. G. DAVIS.

AGAINST THE SUPERHIGHWAY.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—The residents of western suburbs who are asking for a superhighway into Chicago should be told that the railroads operate plenty of superhighways and are ready to bring them into the city fast and comfortably and with no congestion. The west side has enough viaducts and does not care to have any more, as bridges and viaducts only depreciate the value of surrounding property for miles around.

WALTER PENAR.

A FROZEN NOSE.

Cicero, Ill., Feb. 9.—Thursday afternoon, about 3:25 o'clock, on Roosevelt road and 59th court, a gentleman ran after me and advised me to rub snow on my nose because it was frozen. At the time I was in no condition to realize what it meant to warn me; neither did I fathom the extent of his great kindness. I hope this reaches him, so that he hears of my sincere thanks.

OLD COLONY LIFE RECEIVERS REPLY TO OUSTER SUIT

Explain Protection Given to Policyholders.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Alvin Keys and J. A. O. Preus, receivers for the defunct Old Colony Life Insurance company, filed an answer yesterday to the suit of Attorney George D. Kimball, who is asking the Appellate court to oust them as receivers and set aside the decree of Circuit Judge William V. Brothers awarding the Old Colony reinsurance contract to the Life and Casualty company of Chicago.

Attorney Kimball contends that appointment of the receivers violates the state constitution, and avers that Judge Brothers committed a "glaring and harmful error" in awarding the reinsurance contract to the comparatively small Life and Casualty company, with its assets of $1,910,516, instead of to the large Illinois Bankers Life Insurance company of Monmouth, with its assets of $18,540,723. Attorney Kimball represents a mother and son holding $2,000 of Old Colony insurance.

The Receivers' Answer.

In an answer drawn up by Attorney Burrell J. Cramer, the two receivers admit the difference in size alleged by Attorney Kimball, but assert that despite this difference Life and Casualty possesses superior financial strength. The "glaring and harmful error," they contend, was committed by Attorney Kimball.

Out of the total of $18,540,723 in assets claimed by Illinois Bankers, they assert, only $1,503,077 is available for protection of policyholders, or less than 12 per cent. On this basis, they point out, Illinois Bankers has written $90,000,000 of insurance.

Out of the total of $1,910,516 claimed by Life and Casualty there is, they assert, $1,588,001 available for policyholders' protection, or better than 70 per cent. On this basis of protection, they add, Life and Casualty is carrying only $15,000,000 of insurance, compared to Illinois Bankers' $90,000,000.

Say Attorney Is in Error.

Attorney Kimball erred, they set forth, in crediting among Illinois Bankers' assets for protection of policyholders the sum of $10,104,452 in policy loans. The total of Illinois Bankers' physical assets, including real estate, mortgage and collateral loans, stocks and bonds, they aver, is only $8,124,637.

"Since policy loans are a lien against the reserve for protection of policy holders, they should properly be considered as an offset against the reserve rather than a physical asset," the answer contends.

Attorney Cramer also replies to Mr. Kimball's point that Life and Casualty, in offering $35,000 for the Old Colony business, had employed more than 70 per cent of the $52,000 cash it had on hand. Actually, he says, Life and Casualty will lose no cash whatever in carrying out the transaction.

"Due to the intervention of Mr. Kimball, with its resultant expensive litigation, the reinsurance contract has not been completed and the Life and Casualty company has not yet paid the $35,000," said Mr. Cramer. "During the five months Old Colony has been in receivership, however, policyholders have continued to pay their premiums to a sum now exceeding $48,000. This money is being deposited in a trust fund.

$48,000 in Trust Fund.

"If and when Mr. Kimball's case is settled the $48,000 will be transferred to Life and Casualty for the policies reinsured. Therefore, by a mere bookkeeping entry, Life and Casualty will have gained the difference between the $35,000 cash it offered and the $48,000 in the trust fund, or a sum of $13,000."

Actually, Mr. Cramer said, the Kimball suit has already cost Old Colony policyholders $15,000 in cash, exclusive of the costs of his suit. Life and Casualty, he explained, originally offered $50,000 for the business, but reduced the offer when it became apparent that the Kimball suit would delay consummation of the reinsurance contract. Justification of the action of Life and Casualty in reducing its offer to $35,000 is found, Mr. Cramer said, in the fact that other insurance companies have utilized the interval of suspense by attracting as much of the Old Colony business as possible to themselves, the Brothers decree permitting Old Colony policyholders to reinsure where they chose.

Some of the competing companies even posted their agents in the Old Colony building to steer Old Colony policyholders away from the Life and Casualty reinsurance office to their own offices near by, he said, and kept the agents there until Life and Casualty drove them away.

O'Connor, who escaped while preparations were being made to hang him for murder, has never been found. La Porte, on being recaptured, was sent to Joliet prison for robbery for ten years to life. He was paroled last September. He is 31.

HOUSING BOARD HOLDS HEARING ON BILL TODAY

Four Big Projects Await Action of Assembly.

BY AL CHASE.

Representatives of three groups—architectural, real estate and civic—will appear before the temporary Illinois housing commission at a public hearing today at Hotel La Salle and outline their views on the proposed housing law to enable Illinois corporations to obtain funds from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for the erection of moderate rental homes. This session, called by Alfred K. Stern, chairman of the state housing body, will start at 2 p. m. No further hearings are scheduled, though it is possible that additional sessions may be found necessary.

CLIFTON R. BECHTEL. [Walinger Photo.]

Henry K. Holsman, chairman of a committee of nine, representing the Illinois Society of Architects, the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects and the Architects' club, has been invited to speak for the architects of Chicago at today's session. Clifton R. Bechtel, chairman of the committee on planning and zoning of the Chicago Real Estate board, will discuss the contemplated housing bill from the realty man's viewpoint. Charles A. Snyder, secretary of the West Central association, will speak for a large neighborhood area of Chicago which is understood to be directly in line with new housing projects.

Four Projects Wait for Law.

It was disclosed yesterday for the first time that there are four big housing projects, termed by Coleman Woodbury, executive secretary of the state housing body, as "distinctly more than architectural sketches," which only are waiting for the enactment of a housing law to apply to the R. F. C. for federal financial assistance.

Two of the four projects are big ones, covering about a block and a half each. A third is decidedly more ambitious and would cover nearly three city blocks. This one, however, is the least definite of the quartet. The fourth project contemplates the erection of a large number of two flat buildings.

The emergency relief and construction act of 1932 enacted last year in Washington permits housing corporations, in states which have housing laws, to borrow funds from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. These, the law provides, must be self-liquidating loans.

Early Law Gives New York an Edge.

New York state had the edge of the entire country because it already was provided with the necessary enabling act in the shape of a modern housing law, passed several years ago. One big housing loan has been approved, but the cash hasn't yet been advanced from Washington. Ohio and Texas already have passed housing laws.

Five other states besides Illinois are still struggling to make up their minds about what kind of a housing law to adopt. They are: New Jersey, Michigan, Indiana, Massachusetts, and Alabama.

The two main points for discussion at today's session will be who is to appoint the proposed housing board and the question of rentals. The architectural committee favors decentralized control.

"One COLD after Another"

Is Usually the Same Cold Repeating Itself!

Many persons who "catch one cold after another" during the winter think it's a different cold each time. As a matter of fact, it's often the same cold repeating itself. Uncured in the first place, the cold keeps coming back and all the time weakening your system and exposing you to more serious complications.

A cold requires decisive treatment or it will persist and make trouble for you. Many a serious illness had its start in a "slight" cold.

A COLD Remedy for a Cold

A cold is a specific condition and calls for specific treatment. Preparations good for half a dozen things besides colds can't be equally effective for colds. Many of these preparations actually make a cold more difficult of relief because they are constipating and also make the system acid.

A cold, moreover, calls for internal medication. For a cold is an internal infection. Local or outside applications only allay a few of the symptoms and do not reach the real seat of the trouble.

The Four Effects Necessary

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine knocks a cold and knocks it right because it does the four things necessary.

First of all, it opens the bowels. Second, it kills the cold germs and fever in the system. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

This is the treatment a cold requires and anything less is courting danger.

Effective, but Harmless!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is safe for young and old to take. It contains nothing harmful. Also, it may be taken with impunity whether you stay indoors or go out. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine now comes in two sizes—30c and 50c. Get yourself a package today and be forearmed against colds. Ask for it by the full name and look for the initials L B Q stamped on every tablet. Be suspicious of the dealer who offers you a substitute.

NOTE: During Epidemics a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine every morning and night will do much to fortify your system against infection.

"'MOIST THROAT' STOPPED MY COUGHING SPELLS!"

"I'm certainly glad I learned about 'moist throat'!" writes Miss A. S., of New York City.

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny "bottles" continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these pores clog. Phlegm collects. Dangerous germs find a breeding place. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

To cure your cough you must increase the flow of your throat's natural moisture, loosening the phlegm so it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely "deaden" the nerves but don't get at the root of the trouble!

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of throat moisture and brings quick relief naturally.

If your throat's raw or dry, take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN now. It's safe, even for children. At drug stores, 60¢.

● Think of it! No more tips to check room attendants at our public restaurants. No more dimes slipping away. No more tribute to an irritating custom. We've banned these gratuities . . . for once and for all.

This check room toll-taking has been part and parcel of hotel usage for decades past. It has always annoyed us. We have felt that it was an imposition on our dining room patrons and have continually tried to limit it.

Long ago we posted signs over our check rooms saying, "You are not expected to tip." For some restaurants we built chairs especially constructed to hold hats. In various dining rooms we placed racks for hats and coats. All these things helped, but still a large number felt impelled to pay the hat-toll.

But in Statler Hotels it's over . . . finished. So sigh your sigh of relief. From now on attendants at the check rooms of our public restaurants will not expect . . . and cannot accept . . . a tip.

We know you will approve . . . and applaud . . . this reform and cooperate with us in making it fully effective.

These hotels have always tried to smooth the hotel patron's way. They were the first to bar gratuity-soliciting attendants in washrooms, the first to reduce news stand and cigar stand prices to street store scales. They were the first to introduce most of the features of the modern hotel.

You remember, of course . . . that it was the Statler Hotels that pioneered practically all the conveniences and comforts you demand today . . . a private bath with every room, circulating ice water, a morning newspaper under your door, free radio reception, etc., etc. The list of these Statler innovations is long . . . and is constantly being added to, as our spirit of service marches on.

FATHER REOPENS QUIZ ON KILLING OF SON, WOMAN

Horace Roberts Sr. Cites Shooting of Friend.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Police may be asked to reopen the investigation into the deaths three years ago of Horace Roberts Jr., socially prominent youth, and Miss Ruth Mowdray Wilson, a wealthy girl he hoped to marry, following the statement of Roberts' father today.

Horace Roberts Sr. said he was convinced the deaths of his son and Miss Wilson, shot while in a bedroom of the young woman's home at Moorestown, N. J., in 1929 were connected with the mysterious death of Bradway Brown, a close friend of theirs. Brown, 28, executive of a printing company, was found, shot to death, on Jan. 16 in his home at Palmyra, N. J.

Swears to Roberts' Threat.

Brown had appeared as a witness at the inquest into the deaths of young Roberts and Miss Wilson in 1929. At that time Brown testified that young Roberts had "jokingly" threatened to commit suicide, if Miss Wilson did not marry him. "If she doesn't marry me, she won't marry any one," Brown quoted Roberts as saying. The verdict at the inquest was that Roberts had shot Miss Wilson and then committed suicide.

"I don't see how any one can believe my boy fired four shots into his own head," the elder Roberts said. "I recall that at the time it was believed that there were only three bullets in his head, but the autopsy showed a fourth, deeply imbedded in the skull. Two of the bullets had entered the same hole, I understand."

"To my mind, these things alone show that Horace never fired all of those shots. The gun used was an old fashioned weapon, and the trigger had to be pulled back hard for each shot."

Roberts said that he had several valuable clews, but refused to say what they were. Roberts revealed that his son carried $51,000 in life insurance. Of this amount, Roberts said, $20,000 had been paid. The remaining policies have not been paid, because they carried suicide clauses. If Roberts is found to have been murdered his parents would collect the rest of the insurance.

Wait for Further Light.

"At the time of the tragedy," Roberts said, "we were so broken up that we felt it best to let the matter rest. We thought we would wait a while and sooner or later there would be some real information divulged. Most of the family felt that Horace had nothing to do with the deaths."

The Wilson-Roberts case was a sensation during 1929. The girl's parents returned home at midnight and found the front door locked. The girl's father testified at the inquest that he saw a light in his daughter's bed room, and climbed to the second floor. There, he said, he saw both "the children lying on the bed." Neither was clothed, although Miss Wilson had a coat thrown over her shoulders. Both had bullet wounds that quickly caused their deaths.

K. G. SMITH TAX CASE ON REVIEW BY HIGH COURT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The Supreme court today consented to review the case of the government against Kenneth G. Smith, millionaire toothpaste manufacturer of Chicago, who claims a refund of $59,896 in taxes collected from his father, the late Douglas Smith. As co-executor of the Douglas Smith estate, the Foreman-State Trust and Savings bank is joined with Kenneth G. Smith as respondent in the suit.

Pointing to similar cases involving large sums, the government asks the court to determine the constitutionality of one of the revocable trust sections of the 1924 revenue act when applied retroactively. The Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals held the section of the tax law unconstitutional when made to apply to a revocable trust created by Douglas Smith in 1922 in favor of his wife and children.

The revocable provision was stricken out by Mr. Smith on Oct. 22, 1924. Claiming the authority of the 1924 act, the government exacted $59,896 in taxes on the income from the trust from Jan. 1, 1924, to the date of modification.

BANK PRESIDENT SHOVELS SNOW, FALLS AND DIES

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—De Witt van Buskirk, president of the Mechanics Trust company of Bayonne, N. J., was fatally injured today. He slipped and fell while shoveling snow in the drive next to his home in Bayonne. He suffered a skull fracture and died in less than an hour. He was 75 years old.

Mr. Van Buskirk had been head of the board controlling the port of New York and was an organizer and director of the Central District, Inc., formed to develop Bayonne as a port. He had been president of the Mechanics Trust company of Bayonne since 1905.

Mr. Van Buskirk was the descendant of early settlers. In 1680 the Van Buskirk plantation included an extensive territory on the north side of what is now called Constable Hook, Bayonne. The family cemetery there still is used.

Mr. Van Buskirk was an active Republican and was a Republican elector for President Coolidge.

CUBA RAIDS LAW OFFICE; SEIZES THREE AS REBELS

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Feb. 13.—Police today raided the offices of Rosales & Lavedan, a prominent law firm, counsel for the National City bank of New York, and arrested Drs. Joaquin Martinez Saenz and Emilio Marill, members of the firm, and Ernesto Caracas, the office manager.

The three are accused of being members of the A. B. C. revolutionary organization and, it is alleged, are involved in anti-administration activities. They are being held in Principe fortress "at the disposition of President Machado," which means they can be held indefinitely without trial.

Military supervisors were appointed today to take over control of the towns of Baracoa in Oriente province, and Ciego de Avila and Guaimaro in Camaguey province. Despite the reestablishment of constitutional guarantees outside of Havana on Dec. 1, all Cuba is gradually being brought back under military control by the appointment of military supervisors. Further militarization of Cuba went into effect today when President Machado signed a decree inducting into the national militia all secret, judicial, and ports police, as well as jail and penitentiary officials.

Scotch Plaids Give a Hint of Spring Styles

Gingham Checks Glorified in New Silks.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

While you are waiting either patiently or restlessly for a flock of good wearable, dashing new fashions to arrive, you might improve a lagging hour shopping around for bright new ideas that hint at what you will choose when all the good things are unpacked.

For instance . . . the Scotch plaids, smooth color conglomerations that ought to make even an unwavering dry hustle out to buy Scotch. These vivid Scotch silks are Scotch in a rather unbelieving abandon. The plaids are surprisingly large, nothing skimpy or tight in either area or color, no misty heather shades, but bold, bright and, most of the time, screaming colors borrowed from the free to the spectator Scotch sunsets.

It's a chance of a fashion lifetime to have a daytime dress of big squared plaids, a husky, heartily giddy dress to wear immediately under a dark winter coat.

The most seductive plaids have been transprinted on bolts of new taffeta . . . glorious swishing stuff that will enliven any winter or midseason wardrobe. This typically feminine material fashions some of the most effective dresses, or splashes from neckline, cuff or collar as trimming or contrast on dark colored wool frocks and suits.

If you plunge into plaids try a slim frock with puffed sleeves, the 1933 versions of leg o' mutton sleeves of the nineties, for nothing puffs any sleeve into sartorial prominence better than a lot of taffeta.

If you like your taffetas wrinkled with care try the new crinkled plaids, a material that seems best crinkled for demurish blouses, skin fitting, puffed sleeve evening jackets, or scarfs and collars and cuffs. And if you really want to create a sensation look for the small plaid patterned long sleeved evening jacket that tops a smoke gray chiffon gown with a bit of a train, because this same plaid jacket is made of this wrinkled plaid taffeta, with the back tails of the peplum split to show the gray folds of the plain colored chiffon.

Enchanting blouses of plaid taffeta come in all the color combinations you could possibly use . . . gay green and yellow combinations to startle a black or hunter's green wool suit . . . a wild and ranging orange, citron and sapphire blue combined that would settle alluringly under a beige or almond green jacket . . . some spectacular black and white plaids to wear with red, black and silver gray costumes.

Blouses are intricate affairs right now. What with puffed sleeves, sleeves with an assortment of fat cartridge plaits, and necklines that need diagrams for the customer, so that neck scarfs and flaps and buttoned straps can be used effectively and knowingly, the matter of buying a separate blouse is a serious but intriguing proposition.

Running in close opposition to plaids are the celebrated checks that have a fashion career ahead of them worthy of watching. Gingham checks, glorified in silks, fashion perfect suit blouses; the brown and white, red and white, and navy and white are precise, crisp looking combinations that are hard to withstand.

Lots of these modest little gingham checks flaunt their clean, colorful charm in ascot scarfs, bowknots, plaited cuffs, and surprisingly bright linings for suit jackets and swanky sports coats of the smart three-quarter length.

Wise Women Avoid Mannish Looking Togs

Even Movie Star Looks Funny in Trousers

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

What do you think of this trousered urge of a Marlene Dietrich?

Like it? Nor me, either! Why a girl Nature did a perfectly good turn by originally wants to turn herself into a bad male imitation is just one of those things that a gal like your editor can't absorb.

It would be all right with us if she'd wear the pants around home, but we wish her publicity department would keep the photographers locked up during the session. For no woman, no matter how beautiful, ever over rode a healthy and wholesome distate for a trousered sight of her.

All of which leads up to the tailored urge that the spring styles are showing. Suits that are mannish hats more so. Now, a tailored suit is a grand wardrobe asset. There are occasions when nothing looks trimmer smarter. A tailored hat, naturally would be its best accompaniment. But there are clothes that are woman tailored, smart, chic, young as can be. And there are tailored things that are more than slightly nauseous—on a woman. There are certain types of women who should keep away from the tailored line. Their own architectural construction runs a little too much to the masculine—and their best appeal lies in dress that feminizes. At the risk of being outmoded it were better for this type to eschew the tailored temptation.

However, there is this nice thing about this spring's tailored designs—they come at a time when woman's coiffures are far removed from the boyish cut. Coiffures are extremely feminine at the moment, which promises to take the curse off the mannish hat. And gay neck scarfs are a softening note. And shoes are pretty feminine at the moment. Blouses are nice, too.

But what we want to argue is the folly of any woman, young or middlin', thinking she's creating a pleasing picture of herself in mannish looking clothes. Tailored things, yes, relieved of harsh lines by some distinctly feminine touch or touches—but not mannish!

The woman who has to be most careful about taking up an extremely tailored style is the one whose person lacks the softening lines and tissue of the truly feminine figure.

Puzzling Circles Are New Idea in Quilt Patterns

Tennessee Circles

BY NANCY CABOT.

Since the inauguration of this quilting feature nearly four weeks ago designs originating in many different regions have been published. Today we introduce you to Tennessee.

"Tennessee Circles" is a relatively new idea in quilt patterns. With each block joined to the next the circles grow and grow in number, all interlaced, until the real design is almost lost in the maze. Sometimes it is called "Tennessee Puzzle" for that reason.

For a pattern of the "Tennessee Circles" design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Critic Puts 'Cavalcade' Among Screen Wonders of the Age

Film Gives You History of Three Decades as You Watch English Family; Brilliant Play Gets Perfect Treatment.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

ASSORTED society and literary lights as well as exhibitors, critics and the w. k. masses, turned out for the Chicago première of the marvelous "Cavalcade."

The motion picture industry shall not pass away so long as it can command the brains and hearts to produce such chiemas. "Cavalcade" has everything. Brilliant play by Noel Coward, a producing company that spared neither sense nor expense, perfect production, faultless acting—everything! To say that here is the greatest photoplay ever made would be going pretty far. I have not forgotten "Journey's End," "All Quiet on the Western Front," "Street Scene," "Farewell to Arms"; but "Cavalcade" IS, unquestionably, one of the screen wonders of the age.

"Cavalcade—a procession of persons usually on horseback—" defines the dictionary. Noel Coward's "Cavalcade" is a procession of events and their reactions on the lives of an English family, their servants and friends, during three decades. Through the Boer war he takes them—through the world war—through the surging upheavals of the crazy postwar period. The marvel lies in the fact that in the immensity of his theme, myriad faceted with detail, the touch of homely intimacy is never lost. The spectacle always resolves itself into background for the moving tale of those delightful gentlefolk, the Marryots with whose lives war wreaks such havoc; but which never succeeds in downing the gallantry, beauty and hopefulness of Lady Marryot or her husband, knighted for bravery in the Boer war. Two sons they lose; a serene world goes crumbling all about them, but we leave them in the charming drawing room where, at the start of the picture, we have seen them drinking a toast to the twentieth century—pledging, just as bravely, another one. Says the lovely mother who has sipped the cup of bitterness till her lips have ceased to shrink:

"Let's hope that our nation will once again attain dignity, greatness, peace. . . !"

You have no idea what an exhaustive picture of the times "Cavalcade" gives you! It is as if you were a god—or goddess—on some Olympian mount endowed with superhuman powers of sight and insight. In two brief hours—or less—the history of an epoch is yours. Not only have you been through the wars but you have seen Bleriot crossing the channel . . . the sinking of the Titanic has been brought back to your memory in a scene of simple and terrific effectiveness . . . you have watched the funeral procession of Queen Victoria and grieved with the England who loved her. . . . You've heard recruiting girls sing brave boys into the army, and beheld hordes of smiling lads go marching away. "Tipperary," "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag"—you've heard them chanting and then the cannon . . . then the hospitals. . . .

All through the picture wing Coward's arrows of bitter irony. How he hates war! How he makes you hate it!

I have said the acting was perfect, but special mention MUST be made of Diana Wynyard's great characterization of Lady Marryot. Miss Wynyard is an English actress whose first screen appearance this is. May we never lost sight of her again! Such poise, such strength and sweetness, such beauty as she contributes to her rôle make her portrayal in the nature of a phenomenon. Una O'Connor as Ellen Bridges, a servant, is also worthy of much praise.

You will note that the names of the entire producing cast are printed here. Credit where credit is due—and every mother's son and daughter who had anything to do with this picture deserves acclaim!

See you tomorrow.

Thousands at Tomb of Wagner on 50th Death Anniversary

BAYREUTH, Germany, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Thousands who revere the name of Richard Wagner visited the great composer's tomb today on the fiftieth anniversary of his death and throughout the country his works were performed at memorial concerts.

Richard Strauss came from Vienna to Dresden as guest conductor at a performance of "Tristan and Isolde."

"This is the last time I shall see 'Tristan'," he said afterward, "it affects me too deeply."

In his audience were pilgrims from many countries and they gave Strauss one of the greatest ovations of his life.

"The people are turning away increasingly from cacophony to melody," the Viennese composer said. "I too, have completed a new opera, which I shall call 'Arabella.' Melody flows through it in broad streams. I have worked on it four years and I hope it will be a success."

Sigrid Onegin Has Voice That Makes History

Dark, Velvety Tone Appears to Be Unlimited.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

One of the great voices of its kind, one of the great voices of any kind, the contralto in the throat of Sigrid Onegin sang itself into the enthusiastic acclaim of a large audience at Orchestra hall last night.

Hers is the sort of voice that one reads about in musical history, when coloratura meant not merely the display of a high soprano, but the kind that in any register could come through with any sort of bravura fireworks. Mme. Onegin's is a dark, velvety, glowing tone that seems to have no limits on its range up or down and yet never makes a break in quality, that can sing the most enticing, sustained lyric passage and yet can trill, do rapid runs, perform any known variety of sky rockets, and continue to be a marvel of a musical instrument.

She began with an aria from Rossini's "La Cenerentola," which was as much as to say that thirty or forty years ago Melba used to begin with the "Lucia" mad scene, or Calve with "Casta Diva" from "Norma," an incredible stunt, just to show what a real singer can do when called upon. It was something to gasp over, and by no means the less because later she sang melodies that melted into the soul.

Would that it could be said that her command of languages is up to her genius of melody making. It must be confessed, alas, that some of the songs later in her program that promised to be in English turned out to be only approximate English, that vowels went wide of the mark and consonants only partially enclosed the vowels. But as a musical instrument one needs only to think of her larynx as it was when she sang the "Cenerentola" except just mentioned, or Martini's old French, "Plaisir d'Amour," or, for that matter, the Schubert songs in a latter part of her program. At the end she sang another unknown number, an aria from Verdi's "Macbeth," an opera which seems never to have been sung in this part of the world.

Something new in the manner of giving concerts came to hearing in the Drake hotel ballroom yesterday afternoon when the Lake View Musical society under the sponsorship of the National Federation of Music clubs gave Chicago's first international exchange concert. It was a program of Dutch music, and is being answered today in Amsterdam, where a chamber orchestra is giving a program of American music under the direction of Daniel Ruyneman.

Extension of musical hands across the sea is an idea with many merits, the more since one is likely to hear agreeable and comparatively unknown works. The most noticeable point about yesterday's music was its air of gentle plaintiveness. There were two movements by Jan Brandts-Buys in the old manner, played by the Evanston Women's String quartet, a sonata for flute and harp by Sem Dresden in a quite modern idiom, played by Caroline Solsbronk and Peter Del l'Aquila, a group of rather charming songs by Valerius-Rontgen, Zweers, and Hol, sung by Margaret Lester with William Lester at the piano, and a string trio by Alex Voormolen, played by members of the Evanston Women's String quartet. All these seemed to show that the Holland composers are with the Holland tulip growers in having ideals of beauty.

Young Society Forgets About Valentine's Day

Popular Debutante Never Gets a Heart.

BY JUDITH CASS.

"VALENTINES? Why, I never get a valentine; that is, not a regular one," was the reply one of the most popular of the winter's debutantes made yesterday to the question, "How many valentines do you think you will receive tomorrow?"

"O, I see, you just get flowers and candy nowadays," went on the sort of middle-aged questioner [don't cut out those words sort of, Mr. Copy Reader!] and this brought forth, "Flowers and candy! Not much last year and certainly less this year. Young men don't even know that Feb. 14th is St. Valentine's day any more."

We felt sure this couldn't be entirely true, but we decided that perhaps it was when we asked Arthur Meeker Jr., one of society's most popular bachelors, if he were going to a valentine party and his reply was, "When is Valentine's day?"

Young men in society may not be aware that today is the day dedicated to the sending of valentines to their sweethearts, but at least sixty or seventy young women in society will know it this afternoon when they attend a tea that Mrs. George French Douaire is giving at her residence, 444 Oakdale avenue, for her future sister-in-law, Miss Mary Fortune, for the table decorations will be lacy and heart-y and in the valentine mood, and the girls who pour will have old-fashioned bouquets of forget-me-nots and roses.

Presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. Theophilus Noel II., Miss Jeannette Peterkin, Miss Dorothy Moorehead, Miss Frances Weary, Miss Jane Fortune, Miss Veronese Beatty, Miss Ann Robinson, and Miss Lillian Dudley. Miss Fortune's engagement to William J. Lawlor Jr. was announced early this year.

Another valentine party will be the luncheon that Mrs. Nelson J. Thomasson Jr. is giving today at her residence, 1345 Astor street, for Miss Eleanor Litsinger, whose engagement to Eugene Cary Jr. was announced recently. It is a birthday party, too, for today is Miss Litsinger's nineteenth birthday.

Johnson Couch to Give Party.

Quite a crowd of young people will dine and dance tonight at the Drake's Valentine party as the guests of Johnson Couch, for he is entertaining about twenty-five. Among his guests will be Miss Florence Carr and her fiancé, Edgar L. Marston II.; Miss Janet Ayer, Miss Margaret Chapman, Miss Nancy Traylor, Miss Edith Behr, Miss Barbara Graf, and her brother, Robert J. Graf Jr.; Eugene S. Talbot III., Charles Connel, and W. Edwin Stanley Jr.

Friends of the White Elephant rummage shop which is conducted at 27 East Ohio street for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital received a valentine yesterday reminding them to send their white elephants to the shop. Although the jingle in the red heart wasn't signed it wasn't hard to recognize the clever pen of Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, who counts the shop among her pet charities and who writes verses for it whenever the occasion arises. The valentine is a utilitarian one, for it is a blotter as well.

Will Give Tea for Italian Prince.

The trustees of A Century of Progress are giving a tea party Thursday afternoon for Prince Spada Veralli di Petenziani of Rome, but they are not giving it where they usually entertain, in the stunning modern trustees' room in the Administration building down at the Fair grounds, but at the Casino club on Delaware place.

The hours are from 4 to 6 o'clock, and every one who is invited to meet the Italian gentleman will be there undoubtedly, for there have been so few opportunities to meet him since he arrived in Chicago a little over a week ago. He has been so busy with the business that brought him here—to arrange for the building of the Italian pavilion—that he has had little time to accept social invitations, but when he returns for another short stay in March perhaps he will be less busy and able to be entertained in the way in which Chicago society likes to entertain visiting nobility. He will return to Italy after his second visit to Chicago, but will be back here for the opening of the exposition June 1.

Tomorrow afternoon Mrs. Edward A. Leight is to be a 5 o'clock tea hostess at her residence, 2416 Lake View avenue, for the prince, whom Mrs. Leight became acquainted with in Rome some years ago.

Although the prince speaks English very well, he will not have to use anything but his native tongue with his hostess tomorrow, for she is one of the most excellent linguists in Chicago; in fact, a noted Frenchman of letters who used to visit here said once that she had the most perfect French accent of any one not born in France whom he had ever known, and a visiting Italian said the same of her without her Italian accent.

News of Two Pleasant Trips.

We heard of two such pleasant sounding trips yesterday that four young women are to make that we were undecided which pair to envy the more, Betty Whatley and Carol Bloomingston, who are going on the West Indian cruise that the Frontier Nursing service is sponsoring, or Marianne Stevenson and Margaret Goehst, who are motoring to Phoenix to spend a month at that superdude ranch, the Jokake Inn.

Miss Whatley and Miss Bloomingston are leaving here on Wednesday of next week with Miss Whatley's mother, Mrs. Seaborn T. Whatley, to motor to New York to sail the following Saturday. Mrs. Whatley will not go on the cruise with them, as she will be busy getting settled in the

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new-made fortune, known as "Nosey Ingy," rows to town and sends Bart help and trixies home. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived in seclusion on the island fifteen years. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. He confesses in a letter left for Bart to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly Island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his invalid mother's sake, to guard the secret, and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bert calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a problem. When Bart realizes he loves Alice, he resolves to stay away from Folly Island. He sees a lot of Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcee, and soon finds himself unexpectedly engaged. The Bayleys visit New York and Mrs. Bayley calls on Bart at his office.

INSTALLMENT XXVI.

THE GIRL HE LOST.

"It was a funny accident," said Mrs. Bayley. "I thought maybe Mr. Warren had told you about it. Last week his yacht had some sort of engine trouble, right off Folly Island. He made a mistake, thinking we were Port England, and came ashore. He was so amusing and delightful that we kept him with us all afternoon."

Bart's first thought was, "So Ingy has hunted up Alice, as he threatened to do, the first day he saw her." Then a darker suspicion came to mind.

"I suppose he was crazy about your houseboat," said Bart very, very casually.

"He didn't really see it," said Mrs. Bayley. "I was housecleaning, so I made him stay in the garden admiring my flowers. He seems to have a taste for flowers."

"Really?" But Bart was sighing his relief. Ingy hadn't had a chance to gloat on the photograph of Trevor Burgess—not this trip, at least.

"What's the matter with him?" asked Mrs. Bayley shrewdly.

"O, just my personal prejudice. I guess we all have those." Something about Mrs. Bayley forbade the crude candor he used to Lora in describing Ingy. "There's nothing importantly wrong with him. A lot of men in Wyattville call him 'Nosey Ingy,' and he is something of a pest."

"What's this about Ingy Warren taking you to Wyattville?"

Her smile showed him that his criticism had been in very poor taste. "Aren't you being dreadfully harsh with him?" Ingy, then, had been on his good behavior. "He was so nice about my garden that it made me dreadfully vain. He tells me his mother goes in for flowers."

"That's the very word, dear lady. She goes in for them."

"He looked over my dahlias and wanted to see my Watchung Sunrises when they come to bloom." Ingy among the flowers! Suddenly Mrs. Bayley changed her tack and asked, "What sort of people are the Warrens?"

"Really very nice." Hesitantly, but this great lady had shamed him out of his smallness. "Rather late comers in Wyattville; they have the biggest place there. Quite nice, the Warrens."

He sat groping for some effective way of telling her why Ingy Warren should be kept forever and forever away from Folly Island. Then suddenly she asked:

"You don't think the Warrens are the sort of people to show Wyattville to Alice?"

"I'm afraid not, Mrs. Bayley." Then to drive the nail home, "Has Ingy asked you?"

"Well, yes. But you see how I value your advice, Bart." Did she really value it? Her look was so veiled.

Yet Bart was strengthened by the feeling that what he had hinted had appealed to Mrs. Bayley's good sense.

"O," she cried, looking at a clock across the room, "A quarter of twelve and I have a thousand things to do. Bart, would you have time to lunch with us?"

"But you must lunch with me," he insisted, and when her white glove went up in protest, "give me a chance to return a little of your hospitality. And we must all get together." Yes, that was imperative. Alice and her mother must be talked out of that crazy Wyattville idea. "Where shall it be?" he asked.

"The Ritz? Up in the Japanese Garden?"

How eagerly he agreed, fooling himself with sophistries. Yes, he must see the Bayleys again, as a matter of cold policy.

But his every nerve was pulling him toward the girl whom, against his every instinct, he had crushed out of his life.

The hot weather luncheon was nearly over. Alice, in a strawberry colored silk jacket, audacious with large pearl buttons, was eating an ice held in a tall compote. She and Bart had said very little; he had hardly taken his eyes off her. Her mother had done the talking, always away from the main point. About the taxi man, who confessed that he was an astronomer; about the theaters, the beautiful scenes in "Face the Music"; about the difficulty in finding what you want in large department stores. Mrs. Bayley was very Celtic just then, with the Celt's frivolous skill at evading the main issue.

Brooding unhappily over the girl he had lost, Bart was saying to himself, "She's more beautiful every time I see her. There's nobody like her. And how she must despise me."

But when she looked at him she smiled under her modish little hat. Had she forgiven him? Had what he had done mattered so little that she had forgotten it next day? Bart was chafing for Mrs. Bayley to be gone, to leave him alone for a while. Yet withal he was miserable with the things he must say to the girl at his side.

Now Mrs. Bayley was drawing on her gloves, and it was a relief when she said, "I'll have to make 57th street by two. Good-by, Bart. And thank you for a lovely lunch. We'll be back on the island next week. I hope you'll find time to come out our way. Alice, dear, don't forget your appointment with the dentist."

"No, mother."

When Mrs. Bayley was gone they resumed their seats and pretended to wait for coffee. Bart offered her a cigaret, but she refused; she gave him quite a different smile from the one she had shown before her mother.

"Bart, you're very foolish and very nice," she said, and her dimple showed.

"I'm very foolish," he mumbled.

"Sort of."

"What's this talk about Ingy Warren taking you to Wyattville?"

Innocent as the dawn, she looked across at him and said, "You wouldn't take me. I want to go."

"But that little rat. Alice!"

"Mother thinks he's nice. I think so, too." Now mischief was in her clear eyes. "Anyway, he didn't tell me that Wyattville's too expensive and snobbish for us."

His face flushed. "I suppose you think I'm a pretty cheap sort of person."

"No, nothing like that."

She weighed her chin in her hand, tudying him earnestly. Wildly he was asking, "What's she like?" He remembered a little breeze blowing across her island, bringing the breath of salt, the breath of honeysuckle from the clotted vines over the hill.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. H. BRADLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

AN OBVIOUS CLEW.

Prof. Fordney took in the scene. A woman lay on the edge of a blood soaked bed; beneath her head a dark red pool stained the floor. Blood on the bottom of an overturned chair, a crimson stained scarf hanging from the dresser was terrifying evidence of the brutal tragedy.

Neil Hanson, loved and admired by all who knew him, stared dumbly at the hacked form of his wife.

"I heard a noise in her room and came to see what was wrong. A man was standing over the bed with a knife and as I entered he stabbed her through the neck. I screamed and he slashed her several more times. He was twice my size; I knew I could never overpower him, so I got my revolver. Unfortunately, it had only one bullet in it and I missed. Then I made a lunge and would have gotten him if I hadn't overturned that chair and fallen. The beast escaped through the window before I could recover myself."

After Hanson admitted he touched nothing Prof. Fordney walked over and gazed at the body on the bed. Any one of the wounds would have been fatal! Strange he thought that there should have been but ONE shell in the gun. Suddenly turning to Hanson he said, "Surely you didn't do this job without getting blood on you. Where are the clothes you wore while murdering her?"

WHY DID THE PROFESSOR BELIEVE HANSON HAD MURDERED HIS WIFE?

Cherries Lend Colorful Note to Winter Meal

Provide Tasty Surprise in Biscuit, Rice.

BY MARY MEADE.

When the father of our country "did it with his little hatchet" he would have been a most surprised youngster if he could have guessed that sixty-odd years later some millions of people would set aside a week in which to celebrate the event—and unanimously eat cherry pie and cherry strudel in honor of his little hatchet.

But so it is. National Cherry week covers the days between Feb. 15 and 22, and hostesses and other food-wise folks are discovering that the week's national dish lends itself to breakfast, luncheon, or dinner menus in a glorious assortment of guises, and that if cherry pie becomes a too familiar story there are cherry biscuits, mousses, batter puddings, preserves, cocktails, and even confections lusciously ready to vary the menu.

And if we're knowing meal planners we'll still be serving cherries with pleasant frequency even after Cherry week is over, for with spring still flirting around some indefinite corner the end of winter sometimes becomes a bit drab in the kitchen. And the rich crimson of canned cherries drops in a touch of brightness that will do wonders to modest menus.

First, if you haven't adventured in cherry bread stuffs I'm going to recommend this little whirligig biscuit for a supper or tea time surprise.

CHERRY PINWHEEL BISCUIT.

1 cup sour red cherries in juice
5 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
Recipe of rich baking powder biscuit dough
2 tablespoons melted butter

Measure out one cup of drained, pitted red cherries and put them through a coarse food chopper. Add the sugar and spices. Mix, letting the combination stand for half an hour. Spread this mixture over the biscuit dough which has been rolled out to one-third inch thickness and brushed with the melted butter. Roll up quickly from the long side, as if you were making a jelly roll. Slice across the roll, cutting it into one-half inch slices. Place these pinwheel slices on a greased baking pan, baking them in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for twenty to twenty-five minutes.

Then, if some day the thought of any of the usual puddings leaves you uninspired, try out a rice ring filled with plump canned cherries. This makes an appealing topping-off for the noontime meal and is served at the table. Or it is possible to mold the rice mixture in individual rings and fill each with chilled cherries.

CHERRIES IN RICE NEST.

½ cup rice, washed
3 cups milk, scalded
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon almond or lemon extract
3 tablespoons sugar

Sift the rice into the scalded milk, add the sugar and salt, and cook in the top of a double boiler until the rice is tender. Add the flavoring and turn into a large ring mold or individual ones which have been dipped in cold water. Let chill until firm. To serve unmold onto a large platter or individual dessert plates, and fill the mold center with drained, canned cherries.

In Washington's day the idea of frozen desserts was still in its infancy—perhaps not even born. Yet today one of the most welcome of the Cherry week specials comes forth from the refrigerator, cold and ruddy, with no preparation at dinner time and only a few minutes spent conjuring it in the morning or the day before.

CHERRY MOUSSE.

¼ cup cherry juice, scalded
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, unflavored
¼ cup cold water
1 cup drained red sour pitted cherries
5 tablespoons sugar
2 cups whipping cream

Soak the gelatin in the cold water for five minutes, then dissolve in the scalded cherry juice. Bring the cherries to a boil, then press them through a sieve. Let the cherry pulp cool, then stir it into the gelatin mixture and add the sugar, stirring until dissolved. Whip the cream until stiff and fold into the cherry mixture. Turn into refrigerator trays and freeze for three to four hours.

Bronchial Infections Need Creosote

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medical elements quickly and effectively stops all coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of all colds and coughs no matter how long standing, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use. (adv.)

"Cast Iron Stomach?"

NO—It's two Diapepsin tablets!

Many men can eat anything and everything without any distress because they have learned how to regulate digestion. Each tablet of diapepsin saves half an hour's labor in the stomach. So you can actually correct slow stomach.

If you have gas, any sourness, or feel a "lump" an hour after eating, take two tablets of Pape's Diapepsin. Do this until the stomach empties as it should without aid. When it slows down, use this same harmless stimulant again. You can really control digestion this way.

A lot of men and women who once had the "soda" habit have found lasting relief through Pape's Diapepsin. Some need only one tablet; others as many as five. Just experiment until you can eat and drink anything and everything without any sign of distress. Get some diapepsin today! Remember, a "cast-iron stomach" just means one that empties in six hours.

Husbands Who Lose Jobs Need a Kindly Hand

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Dr. George K. Pratt, psychiatrist, advises unemployed husbands not to stay at home too much. And he cautions their wives not to criticize them for what, in most cases, is a condition due to no fault of theirs.

There are several dangerous avenues of escape for the depression victim. A sharp rise in the number of suicides, in resort to alcohol, drugs, and gambling is noted as effects of the depression. When the breadwinner loses his job all of the courage the family can muster is what he needs. Instead of which, Dr. Pratt indicates, there is often a tendency in the other members of the family to throw the blame on the father for the dilemma in which they find themselves.

And father reacts in several different ways. He may be totally submerged by the shame or injustice of it and go about with a hangdog air. Or he may develop symptoms of apparent physical disease [headache, general weakness, vague pains here and there] for which, however, the most careful medical examination fails to disclose any adequate physical cause. However, this man does not deliberately and intentionally manufacture his symptoms of illness.

Normal mental health is difficult to sustain in the face of unemployment. So the need of feeding as much cheer as can possibly be mustered by family members becomes apparent.

Dr. Pratt observes that "widespread mass insecurity in the past seems frequently to have been accompanied by a period of heavy consumption of alcohol, and from the partial evidence so far available the present appears no exception."

An attempt to dodge reality by overindulgence in drink, drugs, or gambling is the explanation.

Write Movie Story to Fit Adventure Film

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 13.—The film which Ernest Schoedsack is bringing back to Radio-RKO studio with him was taken in trans-Jordania and shows Arab natives and British soldiers, and will be used for a sort of British foreign legion film, tentatively titled "Arabia," something akin to "Four Feathers," of the silent days, which Schoedsack filmed, and which showed the adventures of British officers in the Sudan.

Phillip MacDonald, British author, is knitting together a story to fit Schoedsack's shots, and the star rôles and romance part of the plot will be filmed at the studio here and woven into Schoedsack's locale adventure shots.

Popular Debutante Never Gets a Heart.

Whatleys' new home in Hartford (Chicago society is sorry to say good-by to this attractive family), and Mrs. Mary Breckinridge will chaperon the girls, both of whom were debutantes this winter.

Miss Stevenson and Miss Goehst are going to start out on Feb. 24 in "Stevie's" little car to motor across the country to Phoenix, and when they reach there their address will be the Jokake Inn, Scottsdale, for the inn is about ten miles out of Phoenix and the postoffice is the little village of Scottsdale, where there are a few American residents and numerous Mexican ones. Jokake is on the slope of Camelback mountain, just at the edge of a part of the desert called Paradise Valley, which is a perfect name for it, especially in the early spring, when the desert is in bloom and every cactus, large or small, has a bloom.

Chiefs of Harvard Clubs to Meet.

Next Tuesday Chicago will be a center for Harvard alumni from all over the country, for men are coming from east, west, north, and south to attend the meeting to be held that afternoon at the University club of the executive committee of the Associated Harvard clubs. There is to be a luncheon for prominent Harvard men before the meeting, and that night the annual dinner of the Harvard club of Chicago will be held.

President Dwight P. Robinson of Philadelphia, Vice President Hugh L. Gaddis of Cleveland, and Secretary Mason Pereles Jr. of Milwaukee are among the members of the national organization who will be here for the day.

President Lowell is just recuperating from an attack of "flu," so he is unable to make the trip to Chicago, but he will be represented by Wallace B. Donham, dean of the graduate school of business administration at Harvard.

The Chicago members of the executive committee of the Associated clubs are Mitchell D. Follansbee, Joseph L. Valentine, and George C. Kimball, who hasn't been a Chicagoan very long, having moved here from Pittsburgh a year or so ago. Francis A. Bonner, another well known son of Harvard in Chicago, is chairman of a standing committee of the national organization.

Mrs. John Dern will appear for the first time in her new rôle of president of the Service club when she ushers today at the anunal luncheon of the Central Council for Nursing Education at the Palmer house. Other members of the club who will assist are Miss Ethel Dixon, Miss Edna Doering, Miss Betty Brawley, and Miss Nancy Traylor.

Dr. Winford H. Smith, director of the John Hopkins hospital in Baltimore, will speak on "Future Trends in Nursing."

Radio Ball at Winnetka.

Winnetka society will dance tonight and be entertained by radio stars at a radio ball the Women's Guild and Auxiliary of Christ church will give at the parish house. Mrs. Wyndham Channer has been in charge of the sale of tickets. Receiving will be the Rev. and Mrs. E. Ashley Gerhard, Mr. and Mrs. William B. McIlvaine, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sargent.

Tonight the Eugene McDonalds are giving a small dinner on board the Mizpah for Mr. and Mrs. Carveth Wells. The guests have been invited for 6:30 so they may finish their coffee in leisure before going to Orchestra hall to hear Mr. Wells speak under the auspices of the Geographical Society of Chicago. Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole, president of the society, will introduce Mr. Wells.

For her marriage yesterday to Hovey C. Clark, Miss Aline Wise Macy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Macy of Morristown, N. J., wore her mother's empire satin wedding gown trimmed in old rose point lace. Her cap of the same lace and tulle veil were held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and white orchids.

The bride's attendants were in striking contrast dressed in white crêpe gowns with three-quarter length red velvet coats and hats and muffs to match. Clusters of camellias were attached to the muffs.

Miss Elizabeth W. Macy was maid of honor for her sister and little Miss Anna C. Macy was flower girl. Mrs. Geoffrey R. Bennett, sister of the bridegroom, was the matron of honor. Thomas C. Clark of Winnetka served his brother as best man and Alan Healy of Evanston was among the ushers.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Donald Brookman in St. Peter's church, Morristown. A reception at the Whippany River club followed. After a wedding trip the couple will live in Peapack, N. J.

M. Claude Coulanges will discuss French politics at the meeting of Le Cercle Francais this afternoon at the Fine Arts building.

Capt. Guy Davis, U. S. Navy, commandant of the Naval R. O. T. C. at Northwestern university, and Mrs. Davis announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Helen, to Ensign Robert Lee Moore Jr., U. S. Navy. Miss Davis is a graduate of Miss Lesley's school in Cambridge, Mass., and now is a junior in Northwestern university. Ensign Moore is a graduate of the United States Naval academy, class of 1930.

The engagement was announced last night at the Alpha Phi sorority house. The wedding will take place the early part of March at Christ church in Coronado, Cal., after which the couple will sail for Honolulu where Ensign Moore has been ordered for duty.

News Notes of Winter Vacations.

Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin is planning to leave the end of this week for Palm Beach where she will visit the Gurnee Munns in their lovely home there.

Mrs. John H. Silverthorne, with her sister, Miss Jacqueline Goddard, sailed Saturday on the Augustus for an indefinite visit in Italy.

Attractive newcomers to Winnetka are Mr. and Mrs. George Lansing Davis and their five children, who range in age from 7 to 15. They are living in the John Stocker Millers' spacious and attractive colonial house at 700 Rosewood avenue.

Mrs. Stewart Sniffin, daughter of Mrs. Carleton J. Moseley of Highland Park, who has been with her mother since the death o. her husband last summer, has come into town and is at the College club for the winter, doing special work at the Lewis institute.

Mrs. Sniffin was the former Marion Moseley and it was while working in Labrador with Dr. Grenfell that she met her husband. Another Highland Park girl who has worked with Dr. Grenfell is Miss Mary Card, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Card.

Mrs. Eugene Talbot Jr., chairman of exhibits at Vassar house, announced an exhibit of oil paintings by Auguste L. Puel to open today.

Mr. and Mrs. Orton Elbert of 200 East Pearson street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son born on Feb. 8 at the Passavant hospital. Mrs. Elbert was the former Charlotte Van Sicklen, daughter of Charles F. Van Sicklen and granddaughter of John Griffiths. The baby will be named John, after his great-grandfather, John Griffiths.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice H. Karker with their daughter, Miss Mary Karker, are leaving today for New York. There they will embark for Florida where they plan to spend several weeks on the west coast.

First Valentine Made in U. S. Is Put on Display

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Post bags are heavy this morning with the sentiments of old Dan Cupid. For one day—St. Valentine's—this practical, workaday world is turning romantic.

Youngsters are ready to jump as soon as their names are called out of big red schoolroom boxes, young gentlemen who still remember the saint's birthday are expressing their sentiments with candy or flower filled hearts, and mothers and grandmothers are unwrapping the lovely lacy greetings they received in the days when flowers were "posies" and letters "missives."

This year there is a collection of these time yellowed valentines on exhibit at the Art institute. It was the gift to the institute of the late Mrs. Emma B. Hodge and is rated one of the two finest collections of its kind in the country.

It recalls the story of Miss Esther Howland, whom students at Mount Holyoke college will toast today as the maker of the first American valentine and the very first valentine in which printed verse was used. Two years after her graduation from Holyoke in 1847 Miss Howland told her father, a Worcester stationer, she could improve on the valentines he was importing from England. With lace and colored papers she went to work and made one of the small missives in the Art institute exhibit.

Also at the institute are the workbox Miss Howland used before she had a factory and three rare books, "New Gentleman's Valentine Writer," "Cupid's Annual Charter," and "The Girdle of Venus."

In the new home of the Chicago Historical society in Lincoln park are other valentines of historical interest, most of them contributed by early Chicagoans. Then there is the first comic valentine known to have been received in the city. The envelope bears the postmark of 1851 and is addressed to Miss Emma Taylor, then of 85 State street.

There are those who contend that the valentine custom goes away back to the time Adam presented Mme. Eve with a flower. But even for historic reference it is unnecessary to search back of the Roman Lupercalia in the third century and the story of the Christian martyr, Valentino, who wrote a message of love on Feb. 14, the day of his execution, to his jailer's daughter.

Exhibit to Aid Artists Opened by Loop Store

Follows Plan of Grant Park Open Air Show.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Another friendly hand is being offered to lift Chicago artists from obscurity. The Fair department store opened yesterday an exhibition by Chicago artists which occupies a large portion of the eighth floor space. Boys usher one into and out of the exhibit. The exhibit includes all sorts of pictures in various mediums, none of them charged with dynamite, most of them ultrapacific in character.

A family may browse among the easels and never a feeling will be ruffled nor an emotion stirred. The children will find a number of pictures of dogs and cats and a few little silhouettes that may excite them to squeals; the mothers will find various paintings of flowers and a few landscapes that would go well in the best room; the fathers will find marines and a few woodscenes to set them off.

This is a family show. The purpose back of it is generous and big, but doubt protrudes its naughty head making one ask urgently whether good intentions are enough in art. Carrying on the tradition of the Grant Park Open Air Art exhibit of last summer The Fair purposes to give the artists of Chicago a chance to exhibit their wares at no expense to themselves. Artists were accepted in the order of their application and space was allotted to them on the eighth floor in the same order. No favoritism or prejudice or jurying or any limiting factor was permitted to enter into the arrangement.

It is a similar plan to that of Mrs. Frank Logan in her United Exhibitors gallery, except that Mrs. Logan, it is said, did charge a slight fee, $5 a month, from each contributing artist to help carry expenses. Many of her exhibitors are seen again at The Fair. The Fair has added other names, however.

It is planned to continue the exhibition during A Century of Progress. It is hoped these artists will meet with financial rewards. It is hoped, to put it plainly, that the public will come, enjoy, and buy. Among the good things offered are works by Margaret Gardner, Carl Rosenberg, Hallick Frette, John Goossens, Signe Palmblad, Raymond Katz, Karl Wagner, Thomas Hall, Julia Thekla, and Annie Hawkinson.

Those on the committee, under Mrs. Barrett W. Wendell Jr., are Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Miss Alice Roullier, Mrs. Clay Bartlett, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mrs. Frank G. Logan, Mrs. Max Epstein, Chester Johnson, and Dr. Robert B. Harshe, director of the Chicago Art institute.

Four Piece Suit from Augustabernard Presents Varied Fronts to the World

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Spring fashions aim to give to an ensemble several rôles in every woman's wardrobe. They come, therefore, with little transformation gadgets that give them a fresh and different makeup.

Augustabernard, who makes some of the smartest and most useful clothes that Paris can boast of, has a spring suit in four pieces, which is wearable for a variety of different occasions. This suit is shown today. At the lower left the suit itself is shown. It is made of beige woolen, and has a hip length tailored jacket that is belted at the waistline and has a patch pocket on the left hip. This jacket has wide revers and a collar that can be worn open or buttoned up, as shown on the large figure. The skirt is a simple wrap-around, crossed over in front, and open at the left side.

There is, as a third piece, a capelet made of beige suede, shown on the large figure as it looks on the suit. This capelet is collarless and buttons under the closed suit collar on a single suede button.

In the upper left hand corner is shown the blouse, which is made of bright blue satin, and which has a wide collar that ends in two flaps.

Do this for Your Child in

TWO WEEKS

How to rid any boy or girl of sluggishness or constipation and build a big appetite.

The trouble with children who will not eat is usually stasis. The symptoms are a tongue that's always coated, bad breath, poor color, dull eyes that are often a bilious yellow. No appetite, no ambition—even for play. Hard to get to sleep, hard to wake in the morning.

There's an absolute remedy for this condition. It gives listless youngsters the appetite and energies of a young animal! They eat! They gain! They keep well!

The California Treatment conquers Sluggishness

It's not the stomach, but the bowel condition that keeps children from eating. But the trouble is in the lower bowel—the colon. California syrup of figs is the only "medicine" that is needed to stimulate the colon muscles. The very next day, your child is eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the syrup of figs a few days and you will see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight and spirits.

Any drug store has the real California syrup of figs, all bottled, with directions. Nature never made a nicer acting or nicer tasting laxative. (It is purely vegetable.) Remember California syrup of figs when sickness, a cold or any upset has clogged a child's bowels.

WARNING

Even when it's something to give children, some stores will try to substitute. So be sure the bottle says CALIFORNIA Syrup of Figs.

Child Merits Courtesy from His Elders

He Loses Respect When Adults Are Rude.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Grownups should be very careful to treat those not quite grown up with the same courtesy they would show toward adults. It means a great deal to these juniors, as the following incident, which a mother told me recently, shows.

"Hal came home from high school full of excitement. The high school society of which he was president was to have its Christmas reunion. The old members who had become freshmen in college were at home and they always attended this Christmas meeting. It was to be held at the president's home, where there was a large living room suited to such a gathering. Thirty or more boys would probably attend.

"You see," Hal xplained to the family, "I'm in a sort of fix, because the man we expected to have address us can't come and it's up to me to get some one who can really interest the boys. To make it harder, I have only four days to do it in.

"The family made several suggestions and finally the name of a very prominent citizen was mentioned. 'What the boys like is personal experiences,' said Hal, 'and Mr. Anderson could certainly give us some good ones, if he'd come.'

"'Well, go to the phone and ask him,' said his mother.

"Hal got the gentleman on the wire and in his abrupt, boyish voice asked, "Will you address our High school society Friday night?

"'What do you want me to talk about?" was the reply.

"'O, personal experiences, if you please, sir,' said Hal.

"'Well, I'm just going out, but I'll think it over and will phone you in the morning,' said the man.

"'Gee, I hope he can do it,' Hal told the family. 'He is one of the finest men I know.'

"So, when morning came Hal was up early to receive the expected phone call. School time came and no call. Hal looked very much disturbed. 'He said he'd call this morning. Well, maybe you'll get the message after I go.'

"But by dinner time n message had been received.

"'It's not up to me to phone him,' said Hal. 'He said he'd let me know. I'll give him till eight o'clock. Then I'll get some one else.'

"At eight o'clock started the hunt for a speaker. Fortunately, he got some one who went across finely and the meeting was a great success. But the boys all felt indignant at the way Mr. Anderson had acted.

"The day after the meeting, Hal came into the kitchen with a letter. 'What do you know about that?' he said to his mother. It was an apology written in long hand by Mr. Anderson himself. He told Hal that an important problem had been occupying his mind and he had simply forgotten about the meeting. He asked to be forgiven.

"That letter did Hal and the boys a world of good. It reëstablished their confidence in Mr. Anderson and restored their own wounde self-respect.

"The Left-Handed Child in a Right-Handed World," a leaflet, will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelope.

The Stage

Katharine Cornell's latest production, "Alien Corn," by Sidney Howard, had its first acting last night in Baltimore, Md. The New York engagement will begin next Monday night in the Belasco theater.

This play is the first Howard has written for the legitimate stage since his "Half Gods," staged in 1929. The scene of its action is a small college town about 100 miles west of Chicago. Miss Cornell has the character of a young woman of Viennese background and musical heredity. The clash between her love affair and her ambition for a career on the concert stage forms the plot.

Miss Cornell's company includes James Rennie, Siegfried Rumann, Luther Adler, Charles Waldron, Lily Cahill, Charles D. Brown, Jessie Busley, Richard Sterling, E. J. Ballantine, Francis Moran, Ludwig Steiner and James Vincent.

The management of an unacted play called "The Bride Retires" is flirting with the Blackstone theater, hopeful of an immediate booking. Its cast will contain Edna Hibbard, Mrs. Jacques Martin, Enid Markey, Jean Newcombe, and Gilbert Douglas. A play of similar title, adapted by Henry Baron from the French of Felix Gandera, was produced on Broadway in 1926 with Grant Stewart and Lila Lee in the leading rôles. Thus it seems that the Blackstone prospect may be a revival.

The Chicago Operetta company, now presenting "The Desert Song" at the Civic Opera house, supplements its recent announcement of reduced prices with a bulletin stating that main floor seats will cost 75 cents at the Wednesday matinées and $1 at the Saturday matinées.

Golden Goose Holds Tea for Two Aid Groups

Liveried motors and grocery trucks, smartly dressed matrons and hardware dealers gathered yesterday at the sign of the goose.

Members of the Kenwood Social Service club and the Hyde Park center, both of them branches of the Infant Welfare society of Chicago, were hostesses to the donors who keep alive the Thrift shop at 1461 East 55th street, more frequently known by its motto, "The Goose That Lays the Golden Egg."

And the goose was more fact than fiction yesterday afternoon, for the colored maid of one of the Kenwood members obtained a big white bird that was quite the most popular guest at the party. He was dressed in a perky yellow bow and his wings were tipped with gold to suggest the possibility of the golden egg.

"Of course the shop itself is really the golden egg," Mrs. Raymond A. Lukins, the new shop chairman, explained. "It contributes most of the funds we use to give needy babies at the Providence and Fuller Park stations a healthy start in life."

The Thrift shop has been operating 17 years.

RYERSON TELLS WHY RELIEF COST IS HIGHER IN CITY

Calls Aurora Commissary Plan Unsuited Here.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the Emergency Relief commission, yesterday discussed the reasons why the city of Aurora cares for its needy at an average cost of 64 cents per person per week, while in Cook county the cost to the local relief administration is $1.39.

In Aurora, he pointed out, there is a commissary distribution, with the idle giving assistance in preparing packages and bundles, and the unemployed calling personally for their groceries and supplies. In Chicago a large portion of the food given to the poor is supplied by grocery stores to which the needy families present orders furnished by the relief commission. Some is delivered.

"Our costs compare favorably with the costs in Aurora," Mr. Ryerson said. "I think we give more of nutritive value. The quantities have been decided upon after considerable study, and we don't think we give too much. We give fresh milk, while Aurora furnishes evaporated and powdered milk.

Commissaries Once Suggested.

"The commission is open to suggestions. I suggested at one time, but didn't recommend, the commissary distribution system. Conditions that might apply in Aurora might not apply here. The commission decided our system was more applicable to a city of Chicago's size and was least expensive.

"We must think of getting money in. If we were to change to the commissary system, the small merchants would object and protest. Many of them are kept in business only through the relief commission business. If we discontinued buying from them and bought everything wholesale, many of them would be forced out of business and would need relief for themselves.

Needs Backing for Sales Tax.

"Another consideration is the pending sales tax bill. The sales tax is needed to enable us to keep on providing for the poor. If we are to get it enacted into law we need the influence of those small merchants on the legislators.

"The commission is pondering many problems, and whenever a way can be shown to bring about improvements we'll be glad to adopt it. We are not extravagant in parcelling out supplies and we give only what in our opinion is absolutely needed. If our finances compel us to give less, we'll have to do it. We are not wasting anything now and our costs are kept at the minimum."

MOTHER'S 2,000 MILE AIR TRIP SAVES INFANT SON

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 13.—(AP)—A tired mother who brought her 9 month old son by airplane and steamer 2,000 miles to Seattle, in an eleven day race to save his life, was told today the child would live.

With the infant suffering from a persistent thymus gland trouble, physicians at Nome told Mrs. E. M. Nelson it needed special treatments within three weeks. Mrs. Nelson, accompanied by her 2 year old son, Donald and the baby, took off by chartered airplane for Cordova, Alaska. During the four days' flight over frozen Alaska, she said, their plane was forced down several times by storms.

At Cordova the liner Northwestern was held for several hours for them

A Stopped-up Nose

-may cause the MOUTH BREATHING • HABIT •

When a cold causes your child to breathe through his mouth instead of his nose, beware of the mouth breathing habit.

The nose filters out the deadly germs that enter with each breath, but the mouth cannot. During mouth breathing these germs invade the lungs and undermine vitality. Body and mind are stunted. The child is dull in school. The unnatural breathing distorts his mouth.

Take no chances! Keep the nostrils open by inserting Mentholatum night and morning. This soothing ointment clears the nasal passages and promotes natural nose breathing.

PICCARD SPEAKS TOMORROW NIGHT ON N. U. CAMPUS

Dr. Auguste Piccard, who became internationally famous through his two balloon ascentions into the stratosphere to study the cosmic ray, gave a lecture last night in Milwaukee after spending Sunday night in Chicago. He will return for a lecture engagement here tomorrow night in Fisk hall on the Evanston campus of Northwestern university. His subject wil be "Exploring the Stratosphere."

Dr. Piccard is making a lecture tour of the country accompanied by his twin brother, Jean, a professor of chemistry, who was from 1916 to 1919 a member of the faculty at the University of Chicago. They will return to Chicago on March 7, when Dr. Piccard will lecture in Mandel hall on the Midway.

While here yesterday Dr. Piccard said his studies of the cosmic ray complemented the studies of Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago. The controversy between Dr. Compton and Dr. Robert A. Millikan concerning the cosmic ray will soon be settled, in the opinion of Dr. Piccard.

TRACE BOND SOLD TO N. Y. ROBBERY IN SPRINGFIELD

Postal Inspectors learned yesterday that the $1,000 RKO bond sold to the Fernandes Grain company at Springfield for $80 was not a part of the loot taken in the $500,000 registered mail robbery at Adams and Clark streets on Dec. 6. However, William Golden, arrested Saturday with Jean Stenger, a half Indian, was still being held, because the bond he sold was stolen from a broker's messenger in New York.

Federal authorities were considering placing charges of violating the Mann act against Golden, who came to Springfield from St. Louis, bringing with him the Stenger woman. She claims to be a runaway wife of a wealthy Osage Indian of Bartlesville, Okla.

Inspectors Cecil R. Gant and John J. McCarthy, who went to Springfield from Chicago, were seeking to learn the identity of several persons said to have attempted to sell Liberty bonds taken in the Chicago robbery to a Springfield broker.

EMPTY TILL FOOLS GUNMAN.

A gunman entered the restaurant of Otto L. Dahlgren at 5207 North Clark street early yesterday and demanded money. Dahlgren pointed to the empty cash register and the bandit departed without searching the proprietor, who had just transferred $50 to his pockets.

DOG TEAM SAVED FROM ICE FLOE 10 MILES AT SEA

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Despite heavy seas 10 miles offshore, a dog team marooned in Norton sound a week ago was rescued from an ice floe by a power boat and taken to Shaltolik, a message from Nulato said today.

Mitchell Charles, master of the team, swam ashore when the ice broke loose. The dogs, hitched to a sled heavily laden with mail, drifted toward the open sea.

The malamutes and the mail were brought to Shaltolik Friday, the report said.

CANADIAN ARMY OFFICER OUSTED AFTER SCANDAL

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Capt. Charles Graham Brown of Lord Strathcona's horse was dismissed today from military service on charges of "scandalous conduct" at Fort Osborne barracks last Halloween.

Capt. Henry Rivert Rebitt, fellow officer, who was charged with shooting at Brown after Mrs. Rebitt said Brown had molested her, was reprimanded by a court martial.

Both men faced trial before the military tribunal held in the barracks, where the offenses were alleged to have occurred. Brown, a married man, was charged with having taken Mrs. Rebitt to a single officer's quarters. When she complained subsequently to her husband he went to Brown's quarters and fired a revolver at him, the court was told.

The court sentence was that Brown be cashiered, but leniency was recommended because of his long military service and gallant action in the field. The court also recommended that the convicted officer be granted his pension.

SHE ATE ALL-BRAN TWELVE YEARS WITH FINE RESULTS

Delicious Cereal Relieves Constipation

Read this very enthusiastic letter:

"Something like eleven or twelve years ago, I began eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. When I started, it was called simply Kellogg's Bran, and I believe it was one of the first products of the kind on the market.

"My friends often laugh at my fondness for ALL-BRAN. It gives such a clean taste in the mouth, and I do not feel satisfied until I have had my ALL-BRAN.

"If the Kellogg Company should ever stop manufacturing ALL-BRAN, here is one who would be greatly disappointed."—Miss Amy Person, University Park, Iowa.

Science says that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. How much safer than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily for most types of constipation. For serious cases, try it three times daily. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Sold in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Josie, the lovely trapeze artist, stands upon a small platform. At the will of the magician she leaps twenty feet into the air to reach her trapeze. She uses no ropes, no ladder! A phenomenal leap for a woman . . . or a man!

EXPLANATION:

Josie didn't jump . . . she was sprung! The twenty-foot leap is not dependent on Josie's ability, but on a powerful spring mechanism hidden beneath the stage which propels the artist upward through the air. The force is so violent that the lady wears a light steel jacket of special construction which protects her from injury as she starts her astonishing leap.

IT'S FUN TO BE FOOLED ...IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

Magic has its place . . . but not in cigarette advertising.

Consider the illusion that there is a mysterious way to give cigarettes a superior "flavor."

EXPLANATION: Cigarette flavor can be controlled by adding artificial flavorings. By blending. And by the quality of tobaccos used.

Cheap tobaccos can be "built up" or "fortified" by the lavish use of artificial flavorings.

Such magic, however, seldom holds the audience. Your taste finally tells you the truth.

The cigarette flavor that never stales, never varies, never loses its fresh appeal, comes from mild, ripe, fragrant, more expensive tobaccos...blended to bring out the full, round flavor of each type of leaf.

It's the quality of the tobacco that counts!

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Because Camel actually pays millions more every year for choice tobaccos, you find in Camels an appealing mildness, a better flavor.

And Camels taste cooler because the welded Humidor Pack of three-ply, MOISTURE-PROOF cellophane keeps them fresh.

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Ohio State won its sixth straight Big Ten game tonight by defeating Illinois, 31 to 29, but it required an overtime period to settle the decision in favor of the Buckeyes.

Jack Beynon's basket in the last minute of the second half was the climax of an exciting battle, as it put the Illini into a tie at 28 all. Then came the overtime period in which neither team was able to score a basket, but the Buckeyes profited by free throws.

Ohio State led the first half with a five point advantage, but the Illini in the second half finally caught up, only to have the Buckeyes go ahead again.

Colburn of Ohio State was the big scorer, with three baskets and four free throws, while Froschauer of Illinois scored four baskets and one free throw. Froschauer and Beynon were both banished before the second half ended and their absence was keenly felt by the Illini.

PURDUE, 41; CHICAGO, 21

Purdue's basketball team defeated the University of Chicago at the Midway fieldhouse last night. The score was 41 to 21. Except for the fact that the game was faster than the customary Maroon pace, a description of the game could have been written in advance, with the score inserted at the end. It was another Chicago game, point for point like previous games, including the crowd of 1,200, the sterling Maroon defense in the first ten minutes, the collapse of Chicago at the start of the second period, and the fact that the opposition center led the scoring.

Inspired in the first half, Chicago was just about a match for the Boilermakers, and the score was 12 to 7 for Purdue after twenty minutes of fast, loose play.

The Boilermakers emerged after the rest period and ran up ten points before Chicago counted again. Dutch Fehring, Purdue center, who scored a total of seven baskets and three free throws during the game, personally accounted for fourteen points to set the score at 29 for Purdue and 15 for the Maroons. Then Norman Cottom contributed three long shots and Purdue made substitutions which placed the teams on a more even basis. Lineup:

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa basketball team won its fifth consecutive conference game tonight by defeating Wisconsin, 31 to 25.

Although threatened in the last half, the Iowans clung to a slim lead throughout most of the game. They were ahead, 19 to 5, when play ended for the first period, but the Badgers pulled up to 19 to 17 a moment after play was resumed. Hamman then added a free throw when fouled by Bastian, putting the visitors within 1 point of the home team.

N. U. Defeats Minnesota Quintet, 41-25

BY STEWART OWEN.

Northwestern defeated Minnesota's basketball team, 41 to 25, last night at Patten gymnasium to stay in the running for the Big Ten championship. While the Purple clung to the heels of Ohio State by its victory, the game spelled disaster for Capt. Joe Reiff's aspirations to a new conference scoring record, the close guarding of the Gophers holding him to a total of only seven points, two field goals and three free throws. It was the Wildcats' sixth straight Big Ten victory.

While Reiff was being tied up by the barnacle tactics of Bill Farrell, Don Brewer stole the spotlight, leading the Wildcat attack with 14 points.

Northwestern's victory was not accomplished with the ease which the score might indicate. Minnesota clung tenaciously to the Purple's heels until the middle of the second period when Northwestern, with Brewer and Elmer Johnson leading the attack, opened a bombardment on the basket that ran its margin from five points to fourteen in a couple of minutes.

Throughout the first half Minnesota stayed within striking distance and was only a point behind a few seconds before the gun cracked, when Johnson sank a field goal to make the score 19 to 16.

Fidel La Barba Beats Butch in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Fidel La Barba, former world flyweight champion, won a ten round decision over Mose Butch of Pittsburgh tonight.

OPERATION ON ERNIE SCHAAF ENDS IN DEATH

Boston Boxer Succumbs to Carnera Blow.

New York, Feb. 14.—[Special.]—Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, died last night, following a three hour operation for the removal of a blood cloth from his brain. Schaaf collapsed in the 13th round of his fight with Primo Carnera Friday night and was removed to the hospital a half hour later.

The police, informed of the boxer's death, notified every one connected with the bout to be available for questioning.

Dr. Byron Stookey, brain specialist, who with three other surgeons operated, said tonight Schaaf had been injured some time before he collapsed. The blow recorded as the knockout punch was not the one which ruptured a blood vessel in the brain.

Next Two Days Will Tell.

"Schaaf must have been out on his feet," Dr. Stookey said.

When Schaaf failed to respond to treatment Saturday and Sunday, his family was notified and a consultation held. Sunday night Schaaf was anointed by a priest and at midnight he received the last rites of the church. This morning a priest called to administer communion but Schaaf was unconscious and unable to receive it.

The following bulletin was issued after the operation, signed by Dr. Stookey, Dr. Harold Meeker, Dr. Philip Goodhart, Columbia university neurologist, and Dr. William V. Healy of the hospital staff:

"An operation to relieve intracranial pressure was done under local anesthetic. The patient stood up well and was able to move his left arm, which was previously paralyzed."

The operation, while successful as far as removing the clot was concerned, did not result in the stoppage of the hemorrhage. The surgeons explained that it was impossible to go into the brain and tie up the tiny blood vessel that had been ruptured.

Schaaf's right side, it was revealed, had developed a paralysis which improved perceptibly before the end of the operation.

The police notified Carnera, James Johnston, Madison Square boxing director; John Buckley, and Jack Sharkey, co-managers of Schaaf, and Carnera's manager and American representative to hold themselves in readiness for questioning.

Sharkey, who had gone to Miami, telephoned long distance three times today and made arrangements to come north tomorrow.

Carnera Describes Punch.

Carnera, who has never before inflicted severe punishment on an opponent, said he was sure almost everybody had underestimated the power of the punch with which he felled Schaaf.

"The final punch only looked light," he explained, "but it had a twist to it that would have knocked out any man."

Buckley revealed that influenza had prevented Schaaf from training properly for the bout and that he had entered the ring with only ten days' conditioning work. He started work, Buckley said, only after he had apparently recovered from the flu attack which had put him in a Boston hospital.

WHEN GOLDEN GLOVES DREW WEST SIDERS' CHEERS

The sixth annual Golden Gloves tournament opened last night at Guyon's Paradise with the beginning of the west section trials. The west section seekers after Golden Gloves will continue to do battle tonight and tomorrow night. So many were the aspirants in the novice class that a continuous barrage of punches was kept up in the two rings.

Fake or No Fake, Schaaf Bout Is Challenge to Commissions

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Unfortunately, the injuries which Ernie Schaaf suffered at the hands of Primo Carnera are certified by several doctors to be absolutely on the level. Therefore those of us who saw the fight in Madison Square Garden Friday evening and came away not quite convinced are filled with a sense of rue.

It is not pleasant to have questioned the agony of an inoffensive young man who lay on the scaffold, beaten, as the physicians now intimate, close to death, and I only wish Schaaf's injuries were phony, for a fake fight is not bad entertainment of its kind and the injury to the customers' sense of honor would not have been serious.

The indignation which fakes arouse is largely synthetic and the prize-fight commissions recognize this fact by declining to disqualify notorious fakers for more than a few weeks. A still wiser course would be for the prize-fight commissions to acknowledge that they have no excuse for existence and disband.

Why Not Make It Stick?

It must be remembered that the prize-fight industry, including the prize-fight commissions, invited the doubts that Schaaf did wrong. Schaaf was fighting a man with a shady reputation who had once been ruled out for unethical practices in California.

If he was guilty of the misconduct alleged against him and his party on the Pacific coast then he should never have been allowed to fight again or even box exhibition bouts anywhere within any of the jurisdictions. But after a short time he was restored to good standing and now finds himself on his way to fight some one within a year or so for the heavyweight championship of the world.

If the customers are asked to show faith in the prize fights, then the prize-fight racket should be reasonably careful to avoid suspicious appearances and the commissions should refuse to issue permits to notorious characters. It is not reassuring to the patrons to attend these operas and identify celebrated incorrigibles openly attending the gladiators in the corners. It would be much better for the fair name of the noble sport to keep such people hidden from view. Then, of course, they would still carry on their mischievous practices in hotel rooms and hideaways, but the appearance of things would be nicer.

They Like to Be Fooled.

To make matters worse, last Friday evening Schaaf went down and out under the impact of a very unimpressive push in the face. That he was suffering from the effects of previous blows on the head the patrons had no way of knowing, for there had been no one punch delivered before which seemed at all likely to put him down.

Nor was it entirely convincing when Ernie's seconds put him upon their shoulders, passed him through the crowd, and presently carried him to the Polyclinic hospital across the street. This had been done before, too, and nowadays when a licked fighter is carried across the street it may only mean that his handlers wish to make the knockout look good.

This skepticism didn't just grow. There have been funny looking things in the Garden and elsewhere and alleged fakers have been permitted to fight again, with the result that the customers can have no confidence at all. It is my belief that they would rather not have confidence but prefer their suspicions and derive a special enjoyment from the fake fight. It

JIM CORBETT IN SINKING SPELL; USE STIMULANTS

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—James J. Corbett, the former heavyweight champion, was being kept alive by stimulants today at his home in Bayside, Queens, after a sinking spell in the early morning hours. Corbett awakened suddenly and apparently was in great distress.

His physician was summoned. He administered a hypodermic injection to the patient, who was slightly relieved.

Corbett is suffering from an ailment of the heart. Hope for his recovery was abandoned last week, but he listened over the radio to the account of the Carnera-Schaaf bout in the Garden Friday night.

3,000 APPLAUD 330 NOVICES IN TWO RINGS

Battles to Continue Tonight, Tomorrow.

Boxer Dies in Sleep

Henry Zuziak, 921 North Damen avenue, who fought in the Golden Gloves tournament last night, died early this morning. His bout in the lightweight division was stopped in the second round.

Young Zuziak was accompanied home by a friend. He told his father that he was beaten and then retired. Shortly afterward his father visited the bedroom and found him dead.

Dr. Thomas L. Dwyer, head of the physicians who examined the Golden Gloves boxers, said Zuziak passed all required tests.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The sixth edition of Chicago's Golden Gloves tournaments started last night on the west side at Guyon's Paradise by smashing all records. In two rings, before 3,000 fans, the army of novice boxers, recruited from a field of entries which doubled the west section entry last year, hammered and slugged to continue in the elimination tournament which leads to the novice championship at the Chicago Stadium two weeks hence.

Three hundred and thirty amateur boxers reported in the novice division. None of these had won more than one bout in any major tournament. This overwhelming field was joined by 60 entries in the open division. These were sent home early, when it became apparent they would not have an opportunity to fight last night.

Receipts Better than 1932.

The paid attendance more than doubled the number who saw the first night of 1932 west side trials. Despite reduction in admission from 75 cents to 60 cents, which included the federal tax, last night's net receipts also totaled more than the preceding year.

Tonight and tomorrow night again in two rings the west side boys will continue in quest of amateur boxing's highest honors. Ninety bouts are scheduled for tonight. The first of the contestants will climb into the rings at 7 o'clock. All boxers who won their matches last night and all those who reported last night and did not fight, must be on hand tonight not later than 5:30 o'clock at Guyon's for physical examinations.

2-3 of a Cent a Bout!

Admission tonight will be 60 cents. Thus, with 90 bouts on the card, each three round fight will cost two-thirds of one cent, another record in Golden Gloves amateur shows.

The tremendous enthusiasm accorded Golden Gloves on the west side has made it necessary to extend the eliminations another night. The sectional trials at Guyon's will end tomorrow with the qualifying finals Thursday and Friday the scene will shift to the State theater, 110th place and Michigan avenue, for the opening of the far south sectional matches.

Ready at 6 o'Clock.

Shortly after 6 o'clock the first group of boxers were ready for the pairings, which were made by lot. From then on a steady stream of con-

A FELLOW NAMED KELLY TAKES UP BOXING AT GARY

And Slugs Way to Title in Golden Gloves.

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Gary, Ind., Feb. 13.—All the good Irishmen in Chicago and Chicagoland will want to see Charley Kelly in THE TRIBUNE'S tournament of champions. A crowd of 7,000 cheered for Kelly in Memorial auditorium tonight while the Gary Post-Tribune was picking its team for the great amateur boxing carnival.

Can this fellow Kelly slug and box? Can he take it?

Yes, sir, Kelly can do all this and a little more. At least the Gary folks think so.

Kelly wore green trunks, and with his black hair bristling under the bright lights, he whipped Tony Stiles and Paul Luptak, two terrific punchers from the steel mills, to win the light heavyweight championship. The victories made him a member of Gary's Golden Gloves team.

Gary Team Good.

Kelly slapped and he jabbed and he slugged. He flitted around the ring like a phantom and had the folks so excited they almost forgot Jack Kranz won the heavyweight title and that Gary's team shapes up as the hardest slugging team the city has ever mustered.

That's saying something, for ever since Bud Hammel won the Golden Gloves in the welterweight division back in 1929, the Gary boys have been capturing titles in the tournament of champions. This year's Gary champions are:

Heavyweight—Jack Kranz, Gary.
Light heavyweight—Charley Kelly, East Chicago.
160 pounds—Bill Krant, Gary.
147 pounds—Anthony Zale, Gary.
135 pounds—Francis Skidmore, Gary.
126 pounds—Johnny Niez, Gary.
118 pounds—Paul Stedina, Gary.
112 pounds—Joe Loosemoore, Gary.

Bill Kranz, the middleweight champion, is a brother of Jack. He won his title by the narrowest of margins after three rounds of slugging with Francis Zale, another rugged, hard punching Gary kid.

Zale Stops Weigus.

The Polish National Alliance team carried away the team trophy.

Bill Weigus of Gary looked like the most sensational boxer ever developed in Gary until he encountered Tony Zale in the welterweight title scrap. Weigus had knocked out every opponent as he fought his way on to the championship round. He threatened to knock Zale out of the ring in the early part of the first round. Then he took one of Zale's rights on the chin and his championship dream ended.

Preliminary rounds will be held tomorrow and Thursday, with semi-final and final bouts Friday.

Four of last year's champions, Joseph Nate, flyweight; George Vanderheyden, featherweight; Julius Cousens, middleweight, and John Kronewitter, light heavyweight, will defend their titles.

Six teams will compete for the team trophy, offered in the South Bend tournament for the first time this year. Notre Dame has one entry, Hart, 195 pound heavyweight from Omaha, Neb.

testants passed through the hands of the clerks to the glove handlers and then to the rings. There the judges and referees took command. Bout after bout was decided. Some ended with a well placed blow; others went by opinion of the officials.

The opening of the tournament brought together boys from all walks of life. College boys, high school students, and those working at many trades came with a common thought. Each would win a championship. The novices, two of whom will qualify for the final tournament in each of eight weights, were seeking titles in this first competition for inexperienced boxers. The lads in the open class were hoping to be named on the select list of 64 Chicago boxers who will oppose champions from 22 cities in the Tournament of Champions.

Randazzo, Krand Win.

The honor of opening the tournament last night went to Tony Randazzo, fighting unattached, and Dan Windle of the Catholic Youth organization, novice featherweights. Randazzo won the decision. The second bout, also in the novice 126 pound class, ended in a technical knockout with Patrick Krand of the Central Y. M. C. A., the victor over Horace Plankinton, a Downers Grove High school basketball player.

If the amount of energy expended in both rings last night could have been harnessed there's no telling what might have happened. Wild swings, some of which missed, and others equally wild, which landed with resounding thumps on bare flesh, kept the thousands in continous uproar. The shrill cries of a girl, who urged "Come on Walter, come on Walter you can lick him," almost stopped the show. But Walter didn't respond for his opponent, a husky Negro, knocked Walter out.

William Janakos, unattached featherweight, and Elmer Bentcliff, also unattached, put on the wildest bout of all. Each took a turn knocking down the other, and twice both went to the floor. Bentcliff finally won the decision with a score of approximately 9 knock downs to 8 with two double falls each.

Fake or Not, Schaaf Bout Is Challenge

makes them feel wise and also righteous.

It is remarkable that Jack Sharkey's presence in a ring is almost a guarantee of unexpected and unconventional happenings. He fouled Fainting Philip Scott and Max Schmeling amid great excitement, he wept hysterically on the night of his very strange fight with Jack Delaney, who was never encouraged to fight in New York any more, he tried to hop over the ropes and leave the ring the night he fought Carnera, and last summer when he had taken a complete belting from Schmeling in Long Island City he was awarded the heavyweight championship of the world.

Then, last Friday evening Sharkey appeared as one of Schaaf's seconds and his man folded up when poked on the nose with a jab no worse than a hundred other jobs which Primo had dealt him in the earlier rounds.

I would not argue that the prizefight industry should be pure and wholesome, for the racket is low and rough and in its ideal state nobody without a police record would be eligible to take part in the game. But if confidence is demanded of the patrons then all known fakers should be ruled out permanently, including all known horse painters, sponsers, and needlers, and all persons known to be engaged in the bootlegging, dope, milk, and other rackets.

The customers were placed in a difficult position in the present instance, but upon it being certified to them that Schaaf was actually injured, a normal sympathy went out to him. Schaaf's record is clean, but just offhand I can recall some parties conspicuous in the entertainment whose personal histories might bring the whole affair under suspicion.

Six national A. A. U. and possibly one international meet will be held in Chicago in connection with A Century of Progress, it was announced last night by the Central A. A. U.

National cross country running championships.

INSURANCE CO. HEADS INDORSE CALL FOR FACTS

Will Improve State's Control.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Insurance company executives yesterday enthusiastically indorsed the action of Ernest Palmer, new Illinois superintendent of insurance, in calling for additional financial information on life insurance companies. Mr. Palmer specified that special reports must be made monthly hereafter.

H. A. Behrens, president of the Continental Assurance company, forwarding a copy of the Palmer letter, says: "This is the sort of thing that I have referred to as indicating a proper administration of the existing life insurance laws of the state. This is constructive and tends to breed confidence."

Alfred MacArthur, president of the Central Life Insurance company of Illinois, says:

"We are heartily in accord with this step. It should stop questionable practices. The superintendent of insurance will be able to keep himself informed concerning current developments. Under the old system as many as 14 months could elapse before information was placed in the hands of the state insurance department. It's simply a case of locking the door while the horse is still in the barn."

First Report March 15.

Companies must make their first reports March 15, covering the period from Jan. 1 to March 1. Thereafter reports will be made monthly.

Information demanded follows:

Description of property purchased or exchanged and price paid.

List of loans made, specifying in each case the borrower, amount, and collateral security.

Description of property sold or exchanged and price received.

List of loans repaid and disposition of collateral.

Amount of company funds on deposit in any closed bank.

Amount of company funds deposited in any bank of which any of the company's officers or directors are officers or directors.

Full explanation of any transaction in which any officers of the company were financially interested in the property bought, sold, or exchanged either personally or as officers of the organizations dealt with. Also statement as to whether any of the company's officers are related to persons to whom loans were made.

"I have reason to believe that the reports of 90 per cent of the companies will be satisfactory," said Mr. Palmer. "I am merely seeking information and decided a questionnaire

N. Y. Life Pays a Record Sum on Policies

During 1932 the New York Life Insurance company exceeded by $27,600,000 the largest amount that it has ever paid in any one year to policy holders, according to the annual report, issued yesterday, by President Thomas A. Buckner. At the same time, the company closed the year with the largest amount of cash on hand of any year-end in its history.

"Though it has been nearly 88 years since the New York Life began business," Mr. Buckner said, "1932 was unquestionably our year of maximum service to policy holders. The total paid to living policy holders and to beneficiaries was $255,200,000, exceeding by $27,600,000 the largest amount so paid in any previous year Income Exceeds $407,000,000.

The income for 1932 was $407,235,904, and the company met on demand every contractural obligation from its current cash income without having to sell a single security and without borrowing a dollar from any source. We made new investments amounting to $46,623,000 and closed the year with a larger amount of cash in bank than at any other year-end in the company's history."

The balance sheet of the company shows assets of $1,974,076,041, compared with $1,860,106,138, the excess of assets over liabilities being close to $114,000,000. This amount of unassigned funds, or surplus, is available for unforeseen contingencies.

The report states that there is also a special reserve fund, not required by law, amounting to $36,630,709 and a provisional apportionment for 1933 dividends of $52,059,288.

Cash on hand or in the bank as of Dec. 31 amounted to $27,697,804, according to the report.

HANCOCK ASSETS GAIN

The assets of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance company of Boston increased $18,177,558 to $839,455,691.51 during 1932, according to the report submitted by President Walton L. Crocker at the 70th annual policyholders' meeting.

The company paid out more than $105,000,000, exclusive of loans on policies, to policyholders and their beneficiaries during the year. Its special contingency reserve for adjustments was increased to $13,500,000, and its general surplus fund was raised to $44,070,619.91, making a total emergency fund of $57,570,619.91.

Judge Hears New Plans for Illinois Life Today

Further proposals for the salvaging of the Illinois Life Insurance company and objections to the two plans favored by Receiver Abel Davis and his actuary will be heard by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today. Yesterday's court session was taken up with arguments in support of the proposal of James S. Kemper & Co., Chicago, to reorganize the company with new capital, and of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company's plan to reinsure the 75,000 policyholders.

GRT. NORTHERN ASKS EXTENSION ON BOND ISSUE

Plan Affects Road's Main Subsidiary.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Great Northern Railway company, one of the few great railways of the country which has never undergone reorganization, yesterday notified bondholders that it is seeking an extension on a $42,000,000 issue of St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Manitoba consolidated mortgage bonds, which fall due July 1.

WM. P. KENNEY.
[Assoc. Press Photo.]

The St. P. M. & M. is the foundation of the Great Northern system and its bonds are secured by first liens on 2,542 miles of road, the St. Paul and Minneapolis terminals, and the land grant of the company. They rank ahead of the Great Northern's first and refunding mortgage bonds and its subsequently created general mortgage bonds.

Urge Deposits of Bonds.

William P. Kenney, Great Northern's president, in a letter to the holders of the first and refunding mortgage issue, urges the deposit of the bonds under a plan assenting to an extension not exceeding 15 years on the underlying debt. Interest, redemption, and other terms under the extension plan will be subject to approval of a committee which has been organized to represent holders of the first and refunding bonds, he said.

Assent of these bondholders is necessary because such an extension is not permitted under the first and refunding mortgage. Under the general mortgage, however, the company is authorized to extend such underlying debt at maturity. Therefore, agreement of the latter holders will not be necessary.

Great Northern Leased Line.

The origin of the present Great Northern system lies with the acquisition in 1890 of the Manitoba. The latter, one of the oldest lines in the country, had been developed into a large and profitable system before the incorporation of the present company. It began as the Minnesota and Pacific railroad in 1853. It was acquired, following the panic of 1873, by James J. Hill, who was backed by the group of English capitalists that later developed the Canadian Pacific.

After the Great Northern was chartered in 1889 the Manitoba was leased for 999 years to the new company. Its bonds were assumed by the Great Northern.

The consolidated issue on which an extension is now sought consists of three series totaling $41,963,000. Of the total $20,797,000 are 4½ per cent bonds, $13,344,000 6 per cent bonds, and $7,822,000 4 per cent.

The Great Northern itself has long been regarded as one of the soundest of the American roads. Under the guidance of Hill, it was never burdened with the unwieldy capitalization that carried down so many of the transcontinental lines. Under Hill it expanded judiciously.

In connection with the extension plan, President Kenney said the company has agreed to pay in advance the July 1 interest on all bonds deposited by April 1.

Wheat Advances at Winnipeg; Liverpool Market Irregular

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

American grain exchanges were closed yesterday in honor of Abraham Lincoln's birthday. Liverpool and Winnipeg were open as usual and trading was active, the feature being the buying of 500,000 bushels of July wheat in Winnipeg by Jackson Bros. of Chicago, and the selling of an equal amount of May at ⅞c difference to close spreads.

Exporters were good buyers of wheat at Vancouver, with 500,000 bushels sold there. The latter trading had a good influence on the market and closing trades were at net gains of ⅛ to ¼c, May being 48⅝c; July, 49⅜c; and October, 50½c.

Liverpool Prices Disappoint.

Liverpool's action was a disappointment to the traders, as it failed to follow the strength in Chicago at the close on Saturday. Old March was ⅜c lower, and new ¼c higher. There were light offerings at times which made it easy for traders to sustain prices. Liverpool March finished at 47c, a gain of ⅜c, while May was up only ¼c, the latter closing at 42⅞c.

Weather reports on the whole were for snow over a large part of the middle west, Nebraska and Kansas, with lower temperatures particularly through Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. Private reports from the southwest suggested much uncertainty as to the outcome of the crop.

Buy Country Corn.

It is said that close to 100,000 bushels of corn was bought yesterday by Chicago interests, to come in from the country. There has been a fair export business in corn of late, as shown by clearances of 285,000 bushels last week, as compared with 58,000 bushels the previous week, and only 8,000 bushels last year.

Cash wheat in Winnipeg was well maintained with No. 1 northern, 46¼c; No. 2 northern, 44⅜c, and No. 3 northern, 42⅝c; No. 4, 39⅜c. No. 2 white western Canadian oats were 23⅞c, and No. 2, 22⅜c. Canadian No. 1 flax was 79½c, No. 2, 75½c.

Liverpool reported Argentine parcels 3d lower per quarter of 8 bushels, while Manitobas were 3d higher.

Packers Plead Unequal Rates on Live Stock

A hearing on live stock freight rates, which Chicago packers say is of first importance to the middle west packing industry, was reopened by Examiner William A. Disque of the interstate commerce commission at the Sherman hotel yesterday. Eleven interests are now involved in the case, including a number of western and middle western cities, cattle producers, stock yards, and railroads.

Briefly, the case deals with the right of producers to sell their live stock in transit, in which case they secure the benefit of through freight rates while actually making use of intermediate haul rates, which are proportionately higher. Three cities, chiefly Denver but including Salt Lake City and Ogden, have had the privilege of moving their live stock eastward on a through rate basis. Live stock shippers from these points have been enabled to stop at yards en route to try for sales. If unsuccessful, they have been able to move on under the through rate basis.

Charge Denver Is Favored.

Now stockyards at St. Joseph, Sioux City, Kansas City, and Omaha are alleging that rate discrimination is being made in favor of Denver. They are asking that either they be given rate parity with Denver or else the present system be discontinued.

The packers complain that they have to pay the regular rates to Denver and packing centers on the Missouri river where their slaughtering is done, after which they must pay a higher rate on the finished meat product to eastern consuming centers. Eastern buyers, on the other hand, are able to buy their live stock in the west, move it on the through rate, taking advantage of sale-in-transit privileges, do the slaughtering in the east, and have their products at the consuming centers without having to pay the higher rates on finished meat.

Western Packers Seek Equality.

The packers assert that if the sale in transit privilege is extended to Omaha, Kansas City, and other points seeking it, it will be possible for eastern packing houses to move 100 pounds of live cattle for 85 cents, while it would cost their western competitors $1.13 to move their finished products to the eastern markets.

Western packers therefore are asking that they be allowed to move their finished products on a sale in transit basis.

The Chicago Live Stock exchange yesterday sought to intervene in the hearing. Other exchanges objected. Examiner Disque is to decide this point this morning.

INSULL JR. OUT AS DIRECTOR OF PEOPLES GAS

Gets New Job as Aid of Chairman.

Samuel Insull Jr. has resigned as a director, member of the executive committee, and as vice chairman of the Peoples Gas, Light, and Coke company, and has been made assistant to the chairman of the company, the annual report, issued last night, discloses.

[Keehne Photo.]

This creates a fourth vacancy on the board. The other vacancies resulted from the death last year of Edward F. Swift and the resignations of Samuel and Martin Insull. It is expected that these positions will be filled at the annual meeting of stockholders, which is to be held Feb. 28.

Simpson Tells Changes.

James Simpson, chairman of the company, in a foreword to the report, details the policy changes which have been inaugurated by the new management. Financial readjustments made by the company as the result of the special audit made last year by Arthur Andersen & Co., are also set forth in the statement.

Mr. Simpson declared that the company has definitely abandoned the practice of purchasing its own stock in the open market, through its investment subsidiary.

"So far as the directors were informed this policy was based upon the theory that such stock would be available for redistribution for the purpose of increasing customer ownership," Mr. Simpson said.

Cites Stock Purchase Loss.

"This program," he added, "resulted in a substantial loss. The board of directors, while approving the principle of customer ownership, had no realization of the extent to which

To Holders of

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY

FIRST AND REFUNDING 4¼% GOLD BONDS:

On July 1, 1933, $41,963,000 St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Consolidated Mortgage Bonds, assumed by Great Northern Railway Company, will mature. These Bonds are secured by a first mortgage on 2542.18 miles of railway in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, including the Company's main lines in those States between St. Paul and Winnipeg and St. Paul and the Pacific Coast, and are prior with respect to such mileage to the Company's First and Refunding Mortgage (now closed) and its subsequently created General Mortgage.

Under the General Mortgage, Bonds are reserved to retire the Consolidated Bonds and other underlying debt, but the Company is also authorized to extend such underlying debt at maturity. Such extension is not, however, permitted under the First and Refunding Mortgage.

Under these circumstances, and in view of conditions in the railway securities market which are too well known to require restatement, the Company has determined to request from the First and Refunding Bondholders cooperative action assenting to an extension of the principal of the maturing Consolidated Bonds, without impairment of lien, for not more than fifteen years, on terms as to rate or rates of interest, redemption and otherwise, to be approved by the below-mentioned Committee.

Holders of First and Refunding Bonds are, therefore, asked to indicate such assent by depositing their Bonds with the Depositary or one of the sub-depositaries below-mentioned, for stamping under a Plan and Agreement, copies of which are available at the offices of the Depositary and sub-depositaries.

A Committee, consisting of James H. Perkins, Chairman, Lewis Gawtry, Henry S. Morgan, Henry S. Sturgis and Frederick W. Walker, has been constituted to act for the First and Refunding Bondholders and has approved the Plan and become a party to the Agreement. The Committee has agreed to serve without compensation. Holders of a large amount of First and Refunding Bonds have indicated their approval of the Plan.

First and Refunding Bondholders are requested promptly to deposit their Bonds, with July 1, 1933 and subsequent coupons, with The First National Bank of the City of New York, 52 Wall Street, New York, N. Y., Depositary, or with The First National Bank of St. Paul, Fourth and Robert Streets, St. Paul, Minn., or Old Colony Trust Company, 17 Court Street, Boston, Mass., sub-depositaries, to be stamped in evidence of the subjection thereof to the Plan and Agreement.

Bonds deposited will be returned promptly when so stamped. No charges of any kind will be made against Depositing Bondholders, as the Company has agreed to pay all expenses incidental to the Plan. The Company will also reimburse Bondholders, upon request, for the ordinary expense of transmission of Bonds to and from the place of deposit, including cost of insurance.

In order that the Company may be assured at an early date that the Plan can be declared operative promptly, the Company will pay, in advance, with the return of the stamped Bonds, the interest due July 1, 1933 on all Bonds deposited on or before April 1, 1933 accompanied by any necessary Federal Income Tax certificates with respect to such interest.

Annual Report Shows Net of $6.20 a Share.

the company was committed by the purchase of its own stock until the early part of 1932. The board of directors, though appreciating that the loss was due in the main to the decline in the market price of the company's stock, was definitely critical of the extent to which this policy had been carried, and it has been abandoned. Nevertheless, it was necessary to provide for these losses through appropriate charges to surplus."

Mr. Simpson then reviews the reserves set up against losses on investments in affiliated companies. These totaled $11,000,000, as was previously disclosed in the audit made public last year.

"In spite of the shrinkage in values of investments and losses referred to," he added, "the company, as a producer and seller of gas is in a strong position, as shown by the financial statements accompanying this report."

Earns $6.20 a Share.

The financial report, which is signed by President George F. Mitchell, shows net income for 1932 of $4,162,683, equivalent to $6.20 a share on the 671,938 shares in the hands of the public. This is the same as shown in the preliminary report. In 1931 the company reported net income of $6,691,978, or $10.31 per share on the 648,901 shares then outstanding.

The company's revenue from gas sales was off only slightly more than one-half of 1 per cent from 1931, Mr. Mitchell points out. Revenue was $33,536,000 last year from this source, against $33,761,000 in 1931.

Revenue from gas sales to general customers was down $1,931,460, of which $1,666,210 represented the loss in income due to the rate reduction put into effect in October, 1931.

"Wholesale" Sales Increase.

The loss in the revenue was offset to a large extent by a substantial increase in the sale of gas to other gas utility corporations and to customers purchasing gas on an "interruptible" supply basis. Delivery on the latter class of sales is made when the company may have the available gas for sale at special rates. Revenue from this class of sales showed an increase of $1,757,114.

Increased taxes materially affected the company's income. Mr. Mitchell pointed out that the company had to make appropriation for state and local taxes of $3,063,699, an increase of 14.1 per cent over similar charges in 1931. This is exclusive of federal taxes. This increase in state and local taxes reduced net income of the company by 56 cents per share, Mr. Mitchell asserted.

In line with the policy of the new management the appropriation for retirement was increased $403,939 over 1931. Interest and amortization charges for the year also showed an increase of $537,136 over 1931, as the result of the $20,000,000 refinancing program carried out by the company.

Cut Increase in Charges.

The net increase in charges for interest and other deductions, however, was only $364,925, because of the reduction in the interest on bank loans and other items.

The company had a consolidated surplus balance of $3,463,924 at the close of the year. This compares with a book surplus of $29,160,787 at the end of 1931. This big reduction reflects the reserves set up and the writeoffs as the result of the Andersen audit, made when the company was carrying out its midyear refinancing. In addition to the investment reserve of $11,000,000 the most important deductions were those made for losses on market transactions, losses under the employés investment funds, and on advances made to officers, employés, and affiliated companies.

"The management," Mr. Mitchell said, "believes that the accounts for the year 1932 are conservatively stated and that all known and probable losses have been provided for."

FALSE TEETH EXPORTS OF U. S. TOTAL MORE THAN MILLION DOLLARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—American false teeth were one of the important exports of this country in 1932, more than $1,000,000 worth being sent abroad, according to department of commerce figures. Commonplace articles made here, such as paper bags, shoe polishes, tooth brushes, razor blades, electric fans, sewing machines, hats, and caps, retained their popularity in foreign markets "despite the destructive effects of the world-wide depression and innumerable barriers set up in various foreign markets," declared F. M. Feiker, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

Mr. Feiker valued paper bag exports for 1932 at $488,158; shoe polishes and cleaners, $257,915; tooth brushes, $340,293; razor blades, $1,254,617; electric fans, $222,839; sewing machines, for household use, $1,621,487; hosiery, $1,527,010; hats and caps, $765,548; false teeth, $1,080,631. Overissue of old newspapers, valued at $1,472,722, were sold abroad during the year, he said.

SENATORS LIMIT BANKRUPT BILL TO INDIVIDUALS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—A bankruptcy bill stripped of all relief proposals as regards railroads and other corporations and applicable only to farmers and ordinary individual debtors was reported out of the senate judiciary committee today.

The bill as reported is authoritatively understood to represent what leading senators believe to be the ultimate bankruptcy legislation that can be acted upon at this session of congress. Whether even the now twin bill can be adopted is considered debatable, but the report represents the virtual surrender by members of this "lame duck" congress of efforts to enact legislation that will help railroads and great corporations, represented as being most in need of assistance.

Physically the bill has shrunk from 55 to 19 pages.

ILLINOIS FIRMS' PENSION PLANS TOLD IN REPORT

Long Running Concerns Lead in Work.

What Illinois companies are doing to take care of their aged, long term employés—through pension and work adjustment plans—is disclosed in a survey just completed by the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

The survey indicates that a majority of the concerns having pension systems are long established ones which require the services of highly trained workers and experienced unskilled or semi-skilled workers, and which manufacture products for which there is a stabilized demand.

Plans vary from formal or contributory systems to informal discretionary annuities made for individual cases. They extend pensions of from 10 to 75 per cent of the last year's salary or wage, depending upon length of service. Retirement ages are from 50 to 70 years. It was found that women retire five years sooner than men.

Lighten Older Men's Work.

Work adjustment consists of giving lighter employment with easier hours to the older employés.

The plan of the McClintic-Marshall corporation—a subsidiary of the Bethlehem Steel company—is typical. It provides that the annual amount of the pension after an employé has been with the company 25 years and has reached the age of 65 should equal 1 per cent of the average yearly wage of such employé for the 10 years prior to retirement, multiplied by the number of years employed.

The Standard Oil company of Indiana, which established a pension system in 1903, reported that it has paid approximately $660,000 annually to pensioners. In 1932 the company had 28,000 workers of which 21,000 were covered in the pension plan. The retirement age is 65 years for men and 55 years for women. The method of computing retirement benefit is to take 2 per cent of the average salary for each year of service, the average salary being based on 10 years' earnings immediately preceding retirement.

Offer Low Cost Annuities.

The Westinghouse Electric Elevator company has an annuity plan, started in 1929, under which its employés are given the opportunity of buying annuities from an insurance company at special rates. The employer contributes a share.

Swift & Co. have a plan in effect since Aug. 1, 1916. The concern, which now has 50,000 employés in various parts of the country, pays pensioners $1,800,000 annually.

Some industries reported that the turnover is so great that they do not have pension plans. Others said the nature of their work permitted the employment of young persons only.

COURT RULES GRAIN FUTURES SALE GAMBLING

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 13—(AP)—Branding commodity futures trading as "a gambling transaction," the Mississippi Supreme court today denied the right of a brokerage firm to recover claims for margins, and declared null and void that section of a 1928 legislative act authorizing recourse to courts for recovery of losses or earnings in futures.

INFLATION TALK AND BANKS

Talk of inflation and moratoriums and miscellaneous proposals for depreciating the value of the dollar appear to have affected the attitude of both banks and their depositors, according to the federal reserve report on the condition of banks in principal cities.

Yesterday's report showed that in the week ended Feb. 8 there occurred a severe decline in both deposits and loans of reporting member banks.

Net demand deposits shrank 200 millions to a total of 11 billion 699 millions on Feb. 6. Time deposits were down 22 millions for the week, the total on Feb. 8 being 5 billions 626 millions. Prior to last week the trend in bank deposits has been upward.

U. S. DECIDES JIG SAW PUZZLES ARE SPORTING GOODS, SO TAX IS 10%

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Uncle Sam, in the person of Lester B. Kaplan, chief of the Rochester division of the internal revenue department, today announced his ruling that jig saw puzzles came under the listing of sporting goods and that collection of a 10 per cent tax on them had begun in this division.

Several factories in this vicinity have been working 24 hours a day turning out puzzles to satisfy the demand for the nation's latest craze. Kaplan said the tax must be borne by the manufacturer.

3 miles of Washing

FOR the same amount of money spent for electricity in 1928, the average Associated customer last year got enough additional energy to run a washing machine for three years. If this washing were strung on one long clothesline, it would reach for three miles.

The dollar spent for electricity gives bigger value now because residential rates in the Associated System have declined steadily. Lower rates have led to greater use of electric energy. The average Associated domestic customer now uses 29% more electricity than in 1928.

North American.

I would like such information as you can give me on North American preferred and common.—M. M.

North American company is a holding company, one of the largest in the United States. Subsidiaries operate mostly in four well defined groups.

The Missouri-Illinois-Iowa group furnishes electricity, and in some cases gas, to St. Louis, East St. Louis, and 94 other Mississippi valley communities. The Wisconsin-Michigan group furnishes electricity, and in some cases gas and transportation, to Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, and 320 other Wisconsin and upper Michigan communities. The Ohio group [Cleveland Electric Illuminating company] furnishes electricity to Cleveland and 133 other Ohio communities. The District of Columbia group furnishes electricity to Washington, D. C., and to 29 Maryland and Virginia communities. It furnishes Washington with transportation service.

The company owns 19 per cent of Detroit Edison company common stock, a 48 per cent interest in North American Light and Power, and a 33 per cent interest in Pacific Gas and Electric. Income from these holdings is reported on a nonconsolidated basis.

About 74 per cent of gross is from sale of electricity, about half of which is for industrial uses. The decline in industrial activity has made itself felt in earnings.

Gross for the twelve months to Sept. 30, 1932, was $109,416,000 and net income was $18,992,000, or $31.31 per preferred share and $2.42 per common share. For the preceding twelve months gross was $120,685,000 and net was $25,210,000, which equaled $41.55 per preferred share and $3.64 per common share.

Gross for 1931 was $117,922,000, against $133,751,000 for 1930, $147,780,000 for 1929, and $135,552,000 for 1928. Net income for 1931 was $24,273,000, or $3.29 per common share, against $28,823,000, or $3.96 per common share, adjusted to number of shares outstanding at the close of 1931. Net for 1929 was $28,807,000, against $24,403,000 for 1928.

On Sept. 30, 1932, current assets were $46,173,000 and current liabilities were $27,195,000. Cash assets alone were $24,128,000. There were no notes payable. Working capital was $18,978,000, against $7,563,000 the year before.

Subsidiary funded debt totals $294,687,000 and parent company funded debt aggregates $25,000,000. There are outstanding 1,516,695 shares of $50 par $3 preferred and 7,348,103 shares of no par common. The common pays 10 per cent a year in common stock.

The preferred is rather high grade. The common deserves a fairly good rating.

Twenty Year 5½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, Series A

To the Holders of Twenty Year 5½% Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, Series A, Cigar Stores Realty Holdings, Inc.:

Holders of the above Debentures are again reminded that under the Bankruptcy Law individual proofs of claim in the bankruptcy proceedings of both Cigar Stores Realty Holdings, Inc. and United Cigar Stores Company of America, the guarantor of the principal and interest of the Debentures, should be filed on or before February 28, 1933.

The Committee can serve Debentureholders who deposit with it by furnishing blank forms for proofs of claim and attending to the proper filing of such proofs. The Committee understands that the Referee requires Debentures to be filed with proofs of claim, and gives only an informal receipt for such Debentures, whereas the Committee issues transferable Certificates of Deposit to its Depositors and will arrange for filing of deposited Debentures with the Referee when required. The Committee therefore strongly recommends that all Debentureholders deposit their Debentures and execute and return promptly the blank forms of proofs of claim which are forwarded to them.

Debentures should be deposited with Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Depositary, at its Corporate Trust Department, 140 Broadway, New York, N. Y., and must be in negotiable form and accompanied by all interest coupons maturing on and after January 1, 1933.

The Committee will be glad to answer inquiries addressed to the Secretary and to furnish copies of the Deposit Agreement. Letters of transmittal for use in depositing Debentures may be obtained from the Secretary.

What Marinello Training Means

We regard our graduates as personal representatives of the Marinello System. Therefore every girl is trained to the highest degree of efficiency before receiving her certificate which, in fact, is practically the equivalent of at least a year's practical experience and ready to earn big money at once.

The most money is made in shops where particular women gladly pay good prices for the kind of service that Marinello Beauticians render. Why not train for positions that pay the most? That's good economy, good sense.

Day or evening classes now forming. Easy tuition payments. Free international Employment Service—or we will help you establish your own business.
